In what appeared to be an all-out attempt to crush surprising Republican sympathy in North Carolina, Senator John F. Kennedy, Democratic standard bearer, roared into the Tar Heel state this past Saturday, beseeching North Carolinians to remain true to the cause of the Democratic Party, the senator lashed out against the farm policies of the Eisenhower administration under the auspices of Ezra T. Benson.

In what might well have been an unprecedented venture for a presidential candidate, Mr. Kennedy skipped over North Carolina from West to East, shaking hands and smiling gingerly. The senator was well supported on his jaunt by Governor Hodges, Governor-elect Sanford, and Senators Jordan and Ervin. After stopping off at Greenville, Greensboro, and Charlotte, the candidate ended his day of campaigning at the Raleigh Coliseum. State Democratic leaders affirmed the success of the Kennedy visit and pledges 100% support for the ticket.

Women's Dorm Rules Changed

The Woman's Dormitory Council has had several rules approved for the women residents of High Point College.

The major change is that all upper-class girls are allowed to date every night.

Freshmen girls may date on Saturday (12:00) and Sunday (11:15) nights during the first semester. Provided their averages don't fall, they will be permitted to date on Friday nights (11:15), commencing with the second semester. This rule may be subject to revision, however.

Another of the more prominent innovations is the rule that all lights must be out at 12:00 p.m. with the exception of Saturday night, when the blackout time is 12:30, exam time, and those times when a girl has obtained special permission from the Dormitory Counselor. According to the old system, only freshmen girls were required to have lights out at 12:00. Upper-class lights were under no restrictions.

A few changes have also been made in the times the girls are allowed to go to the bookstore. Seniors may go at 9:30, and all other girls may go between 9:45 and 10:30. All must return to the dorm by 10:30.

The dormitory system has undergone a small modification concerning the number of dormitories reserved for certain offices.

This year, for the first time, all Freshmen girls are grouped together in Woman's Hall.

1050 Enrolled

On September 11, 310 Freshmen began to stream onto the HPC campus. Besides the freshmen, 90 transfer students brought the total of new students to approximately 1400.

For the new plan of night classes, about 120 students have enrolled for college credit courses.

The Registrar's Office reports that the total enrollment is about 1950. This total includes representatives of about 25 states and five foreign countries.

SGA Begins New Year

The first task of the Student Government Association officers was to help with the orientation of freshmen. A copy of the Student Handbook, which was completely rewritten, was presented to each student.

On September 17, the SGA sponsored the annual Student-Faculty Reception which was concluded by a dance. Music for the dance was furnished by the Casuals.

On September 26, the SGA will hold a meeting of freshmen and transfer students in the auditorium. At this meeting the SGA will explain its work on the High Point Campus.

The House and the Senate of the SGA will hold their first meetings within the next few weeks.

Minimum Wage May Hurt the Working Student

Washington—The housewife working to supplement her husband's earnings and the student working to help pay his way through school would be among those hardest hit by changes in the minimum wage law now being considered by Congress, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States reports.

The National Chamber, which speaks for businessmen, says that if Congress extends the minimum wage law to cover retail stores and if it raises the minimum above the current $1.00 an hour, then inexperienced housewives and students would have much greater difficulties finding jobs.

Retail stores as a whole operate on a margin of profit that is but one per cent of sales, the National Chamber points out. Since wages are well as being income are costs, merchants faced with an increase in costs would turn to labor saving devices and streamlined operations.

It is the inexperienced and the low productive workers who would be most vulnerable to such changes, the National Chamber states.

But we don't want your life with us to be nothing but work and drudgery. Accept your responsibilities, but live each day to the utmost. College is fun for those who put forth the effort. So have a good time and build joyful memories that will last a lifetime.

The faculty and staff are here to help you. There are people trained to assist you with every type of problem. Make use of them. And if ever you feel that you need assistance that you aren't getting, I hope you will come by to see me. My office will always be open to you.

With best wishes for a happy and successful year, I am

STUDENT IS PRO-NIXON

The 1961 presidential election will undoubtedly go down in history as one of the most important and decisive elections ever held, therefore every eligible voter should feel the obligation to study the policies and beliefs of both candidates before issuing his ballot in November. Our next president will be undertaking a position with more problems and difficulties than any other president before him. It will be his responsibility to lead the second best country in the world, but the best, to new and greater heights economically as well as scientifically. In order to achieve this, a man must be equipped not with a certain religion or great wealth, but experience. Democrats, as well as Republicans, will have to agree that there is no substitute for experience no matter what field or vocation is considered. If we are going to build our own home, we had to choose between a carpenter's apprentice, who has had experience and practice, and a side-walk superintendent. I'm sure that we would choose the apprentice. If this is true in this instance, why would it not also be true for the selection of a president, the person who is going to be building our nation.

The controversial religious question in this election is not being used against Senator Kennedy by Vice-President Nixon but for Senator Kennedy by Senator Kennedy. This issue is being used by the Democratic presidential candidate as a vote-getting device. He, not Vice-President Nixon, is constantly referring to it, playing on the sympathy of the American people, those people who do not wish to be called prejudiced and will prove to their friends that they are not prejudiced by voting for Senator Kennedy, and for no other reason. If he had not built up such an issue in this election, the religious question is also being used to subordinate other more important facts: such as the failure of strong support to Senator Kennedy by his own party. Proof enough of this fact is found when thought is given to the recent $1.25 minimum working fee bill, introduced by Senator Kennedy, was dumped by his own party in Congress.

The Kennedy-Johnson election is also another good example of this. Anyone watching the Democratic national convention was well aware of "deceit in the ranks" displayed there. Congressional records also show the disagreement of these two men in their voting, especially on civil-rights actions.

In such an important election as this year's presidential race, I could not feel justified in voting for a person who is in constant disagreement with his running mate and does not have the full support of his party.

Senator Kennedy may be running for the presidential position of the "second-best" country in the world, but my vote goes to Vice-President Richard Nixon, the qualified and experienced man running for the office of President of the best country in the world, the United States of America.

—Don Drapeau.

NEW CLASS IS SPECIAL

I would like to personally congratulate the new "beanie-bearers" on their outstanding attitudes, manners, and enthusiasm.

One cannot help but be impressed by the number of freshmen offering their services in extra-curricular functions, their attendance at morning devotionals and vespers, their appearances in the cafeteria, their intelligence in classes and discussions.

This is a superior group of people . . . and we're happy to have them here at High Point College.

Alumnus of Month READING LIST

Editor's Note: This article is a reprint of "Twenty College Books for the Pre-College Student" by Matthew I. Malloy which was issued in the September, 1960 issue of McCall's Magazine.

Any student going through college is likely to encounter certain great books. Even if literature is not his field of interest, he'll find many of the classics for his required English or humanities courses—and he'll have a head start if he's already read the books.

Some of them are difficult and require interpretation, but even they can be understood to some degree by the student reading for himself, and preliminary acquaintances will make the books more meaningful and alive when they're reread under a professor's guidance.

With this in mind, we took a poll of colleges and universities across the country to compile this list of 20 books a college student is likely to read. These are the books most commonly mentioned by professors as required readings, though most of them probably will be found at more advanced levels.

Not all schools require all 20. Some, in their freshman English courses, require the study of composition and grammar rather than literature; others use different authors or different works by the same authors. Still, the student who enters college can be pretty sure he'll find some of these works (and often all) at his school's library.

And for him, or for anyone, reading all 20 will provide about as good a general education as the best writing as one can get. (Other editions are available, so browse around the library for your local dealer before you buy.)

1. HOMER: The Odyssey. The Greek epic poem (often found in prose translations) by the first European writer of his time.

2. SOPHOCLES: Oedipus Rex. A play over 2,000 years old and just as moving and provocative now as it was when Sophocles wrote it. Considered by many critics, from Aristotle to the present, the greatest play ever written of the South.

3. PLATO: The Republic. A philosophical discussion, in dialogue form, illustrating the nature of justice and the nature of a "just" state. He's not read Book VII, with the famous "Parable of the Cave."

4. GEOFFREY CHAUCER: The Canterbury Tales. Stories, funny and serious, told by a group of pilgrims on their way to Canterbury Cathedral. "The Prologue," "The Knight's Tale," "The Miller's Tale," "The Pardoner's Tale"—all among the best known.

5. NICCOLO MACHIAVELLI: The Prince. A realistic look at political immorality, which, using Cesare Borgia as its model, defines the attributes of the "ideal" ruler. He reputedly, Machiavelli's book was an inspiration to both Hitler and Mussolini.

6. WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE: Hamlet. The student should also read King Lear, Othello, Macbeth, and Henry IV, Part I.

7. JOHN DONNE: Poems. Early in his life, Donne was a playboy; later, he became a profound religious thinker. Both aspects are presented in his poems with unexcelled power and wit. Representative poems, "Song," "To and catch a falling star," "A Meditation: Forbidding Mourning," "Good Friday, 1613," "Aiding 'Sweet' Eve," "The Holy Sonnets," and "Hymn to God, my God, in my sickness."

8. JOHN MILTON: Paradise Lost. Perhaps the greatest epic poem in the English language, a monumental work concerning Satan's rebellion against God and the story of Adam and Eve. It's a start, read Books I and through IV.

9. JONATHAN SWIFT: Gulliver's Travels. This is hardly the children's book many people think it is. Rather, it is a brutal and profound satire on 18th century England in particular and human nature in general.

10. ALEXANDER POPE: An Essay on Man. A long poem, epitomizing 18th-century philosophical speculation on the nature of man and the order of the universe.

Dr. Patton, since your recent inauguration as president of this col-other romantic poets, notably Coleridge, Shelley, and Byron, might also be read; but Keats is surely an ideal representative of the romantic movement. Be sure to read "On First Looking into Chapman's Homer," "When I Have Fears," "The Eve of St. Agnes," "La Belle Dame sans Merci," "Ode on a Grecian Urn," and "Ode to a Nightingale."

12. CHARLES DICKENS: Great Expectations. Illustrates the morality inherent in many 19th-century English novels. It is filled with the usual magnificent Dickensian characters, both comic and tragic.

13. FYODOR DOSTOEVSKY: Crime and Punishment. Considered one of the five or six greatest novels. A profound look at the nature of sin, redemption, and God.

14. SAMUEL CLEMENS: (Mark Twain): The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn. Some critics believe this is the finest novel by an American. Like Culliver's Travels, it is not just a children's book, but a revelation of human nature.

15. GEORGE BERNARD SHAW: Saint Joan. A serious work—with little humor—by the great Irish playwright. Many think it his best play. Don't fail to read the preface.

16. WILLIAM BUTLER YEATS: Poems. Most critics agree that the greatest lyric poet of the 20th and late 19th century. Some of his best poems are "The Song of the Shovel," "Who Goes with Fergus?" "The Song of Wandering Aengus," "The Lake Isle of Innisfree," "Easter 1916," "Sailing to Byzantium," and "Under Ben Bulbin."

17. THOMAS STEARNS ELIOT: The Waste Land. The exceedingly difficult and obscure post-war expatriate notes by the author, which by no means clear up the complexities. Nevertheless, it is modern poetry at its best.

18. WILLIAM FAULKNER: Light in August. The obscurity of Faulkner's style is less difficult in this novel than in some of his others. A model of construction, as well as one of Faulkner's most searing studies of the South.

19. ERNEST HEMINGWAY: A Farewell to Arms. Hemingway is one of the most influential writers of the 20th century, and this novel, in both style and theme, shows why.

20. ARTHUR MILLER: Death of a Salesman. A tragedy of contemporary American life, full of anger and compassion.

THE SPORTS SHOP Pennant Race Looms

UP GOES THE CURTAIN

Once again they have squared off in thunderous scrimmage, run countless miles, and spilled rivers of sweat. The tang of Autumn is in the air, the playing fields are green in the September sun.

As football's first big weekend approaches, a vast audience waits, impatient to hail its victors and fling laurels to its conquering heroes—or hang losing coaches in effigy.

North Carolina college football appetites were whetted Saturday when Roman Gabriel and company of N. C. State triumphed over Virginia Tech 29 to 14. Headlining this week's action will be the clash between Clemson and Wake Forest. Two of the nation's top quarterbacks, Clemson's Shingler and Wake Forest's Sneed, will be matched in that contest.

Carolina, who piled up a total of 91 points to 0 in the final two games of the '59 season will go against N. C. State. Duke, whose first team will see many newcomers this season, will be matched against South Carolina at Columbia.

HIPC INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL

As the curtain arises on ACC football, so it also rises on HIPC intramural football. Since High Point College is without a varsity football squad, much interest is shown by students in the intramural football league.

Last year's champions, the TKES are expected to be the team to beat once again this season. Also in strong contention for the championship will be the Theta Chi and Delta Sigs.

WATCHING THE WORLD SERIES ON TV?

Thanks to TV, millions of baseball fans will be watching the World Series in October. Watching baseball on TV is different from watching it in the flesh; but with a few simple, practical tips you'll find to look for, you'll be surprised at how much more you'll find to see, understand, and enjoy.

Fans often look for the big things and lose a great deal of fun by overlooking the small details. For example, when a game begins and the first batter moves into position, you'll often see him stop to knock dirt from his cleats. This is often a cover for an unobtrusive look at the fields, to see how they are playing him. Quite often you'll see the catcher walk out to the pitcher for a conference. He may be reminding the pitcher of some special hitting peculiarities of the batter, or he may be just trying to settle the pitcher down.

Watch for signals, which are continuously being flashed by the managers, coaches, and even the players. If there is a runner on base, you may get a TV close-up of the short stop and second baseman bringing their gloves over their heads before each pitch. This is no idle gesture; they're probably hiding a signal—mouth open or closed—to indicate which of them will cover second base on a particular pitch.

You will soon discover that baseball is an intricate game, filled with many strategic moves. But you must be alert for the most subtle details that can mean the difference between a pleasant viewing experience and a really exciting one.

And thus it is . . .

Arthur Malt, of England, has been quoted as saying after running 100 miles non-stop: "I must be crazy."

New Coach Athletic Head Likes New HPC Post

By HARRY C. SMITH

A new addition to our coaching staff this year is Mr. Frank Hassle. He will be head track coach and will help with basketball.

Mr. Hassle is a native of High Point. He graduated from Lenoir Rhyne where he played basketball. For the past five years he has been in N. C. public high schools. He now lives here in High Point with his wife, two sons, and a daughter.

When asked what he thought about the prospects of this year's track team he said, "I don't know too much about the track squad here, but I understand he had a good team last year." Mr. Hassle also said, "We want to run a track program which will give an opportunity for more students to participate."

The Athletic Department is now headed by Jim Hamilton of Pittsburgh, Kansas. He attended Pittsburgh State College, the University of North Carolina, and George Peabody College. As a newcomer to the High Point area, he comments that his new job at HPC "is a good place to work."

This semester he is teaching the following physical education courses: 211, 217, 304, 436, 313, and 107. He, his wife, and two children, ages ten and seven, are residing at 911 West College Drive.

As the major league baseball season gets into its final two weeks, the players on all the contending clubs are casting their eyes on World Series checks.

The American League has a three-way race between the Yankees, Orioles and White Sox. The Pittsburgh Pirates appear to have the flag all wrapped up from the Cardinals and Braves in the National.

Pittsburgh is quite a noisy place these days, with the entire city steamed up over the play of the Sox. "Beum 'em, Bucs" is a slogan found on bumper stickers in the steel city. The Bucs fight song blares day and night over Pittsburgh's TV and radio stations. World Series tickets are selling like hot cakes. Sermons are preached and editorials written on the wonderful Pirates. There are railroad and steel strikes in the city, but who cares? The Pirates are on their way to their first pennant since 1927.

The Bucs success this year has been a team effort all the way. It took conclusions by Bob Friend, Bill Magerok, Bob Skinner, Bill Virdon, and Roberto Clemente. It took some smart trading by General Manager Joe E. Brown. Brown acquired Wilmer Mizell and Gino Cimoli from the Tigers, and Hall Smith from the A's. Mizell has joined with Vernon Law, Bob Friend, and Harvey Haddix to give the Bucs four outstanding starting pitchers. Labine has done a wonderful job in the bullpen perched by Ray Fiacco and Fred Green. Smith has aided Smokey Burgess with the catching and has a particular knack for hitting the ball over the "Los Angeles" Chinese Wall. Cimoli has been outstanding as an outfielder.

Dick Stuart has been the club's top home run threat, with Rocky Nelson backing him up on first base. Don Heck is the team's sparkplug and a fierce competitor. But the captain and shortstop of the club, Dick Groat, probably has done more than any other individual in the Pirates' drive.

Dick is a team player all the way and very adapt at the hit and run play. Groat was a candidate for MVP and may be leading the league in hits when he suffers a broken wrist against Milwaukee, September 6. He was replaced by Dick Schofield and may miss the series.

The credit for molding the team together and getting the best out of every player goes to the Irish skipper, Don Marquage. He has shown the harshest critics that the Pirates mean business.

Meanwhile, the Yankees, Orioles, and White Sox are pressed to go right down to the wire. The Orioles, a young team, are really tearing down the stretch. Chuck Estrada, Matt Fagan, Jack Fisher, Skinny Brown from Winston-Salem, N. C., Steve Barber, and Hoyt Wilhelm are the pitching heroes. Jim Gentile, Ron Hanson, and big Gus Triunfo give the club power to go with one of the best defensive clubs in baseball.

The big bat of Ray Sievers has played a big part in the White Sox's drive. The come-back of Herb Score has taken some of the pitching burden of Early Wynn, Bill Pierce, and Bob Shaw. Newcomers Gene Fricke and Marmie Minoso have also helped.

Whitey Ford, Bob Furley, Jim Coates, and Art Ditman must do a yeoman's job of pitching if the Yankees are to win this year. The big hurs of Roger Moore, Mickey Mantel, Bill Skowron, and Yogi Berra are the Yankees' best asset.

"WHEN I SAID GET YOUR CARDS—I MEANT YOUR CLASS CARDS!"

Frosh Write Thoughts After First Week Here I LIKE IT!

By BONNY COVEY

Now that much of the dust has settled from all the hubbub of first week riddles, I am sure that most freshmen have formed an opinion of the High Point College campus.

In choosing a college, I had an opportunity to visit numerous colleges and universities, both the North and South. A great many persons wonder why I, hailing from Aft., came so far to college. In simple terms, the one main factor for final choice is the impression the campus and its occupants make on the freshmen to be.

The campus of this college isn't the largest or possibly even the prettiest of those I encountered. However, what it lacks in size and exterior qualities, High Point makes it up in other more important things. There exists a friendly atmosphere between all the student body. The upperclassmen seem to be right there, delighted and willing to help in any way possible. This, I might add, really assists us freshmen in becoming adjusted to college life and taking us out of the category of "newcomers."

Another point I recognized and one which I sometimes take for granted, is the food. I feel sure the food here is far superior in quality and flavor; something which is rarely found in such institutions of learning.

Although we haven't had much of a chance actually to encounter the long arm of the law, in both administration and teaching, I believe I am safe in saying that the majority of instructors impressed me as being very experienced and proficient in their respective fields.

Now I come to a part upon which you may or may not agree. I am speaking of the appearance of the campus itself. As I said before, it isn't the most elaborate one in the world; however, it has a quality that makes an elaborate scheme, High Point has simplicity. I don't mean the college was founded by some rustic, arts-and-crafts professor offering degrees in shipwreck. What I am implying is merely that the campus has plain but eye-catching beauty.

After looking over this article, I believe as well as the rest of the freshmen will have a very enjoyable and successful year on the High Point campus.

MASS CONFUSION DESCRIBES IT ALL

A. Got up too early but figured we had better hit cafeteria since we missed evening meal the day before.

B. Auditorium — given welcomes and speeches.

C. English, Literature, not as pleasing — A lot of much confusion about Lip, Lard, and pencils, we found we had no sections, no complete by making cross marks over numbers corresponding to what we needed, since a student who could just imagine the number of red marks placed by the professors before our answer.

D. Soft, Sleep, blunders and other.

E. Food, not hungry but good and good people. Realized we had no money. Faces didn't react to money.

F. Assembly — auditorium — told much of lives and rules regulating the learners.

G. Psychological test — never knew. Some questions can be answered with numbers, squares, and circles.

H. English and Spanish placement — Being pretty jolly from together.

I. Back to rooms to discuss pencil case and cross marks.

J. Night more pleasure — street car in front of Robert's Hall.

K. Now, I believe, we are beginning to know a few stupid moves but the teachers who deserved the remarks we often heard while passing overpassion. Oh well, they are just "Grown Frosh."

"GOSSIP TOWN"

Have you ever heard of Gossip Town,

On the shores of Falsehood Bay, Where old Dame Rumor, with rustling gown, Is going the livelong day?

It isn't far to Gossip Town, For people who want to go; The Illness Train will take you down In just an hour or so.

The Thoughtless Road is a popular route, And most folks start that way, But it's steep down grade; if you don't watch out You will land in Falsehood Bay.

You glide through the Valley of Vicious Talk, And into the tunnel of Hate, Then crossing the Add-to-Bridge you walk Right into the city gate.

The principal street is called "They Say," And "I've Heard" is the public well, And the breezes that blow from Falsehood Bay Are laden with "Don't you tell."

In the midst of the town is "Tell-Tale Park," You're never quite safe while there, For its owner is Madame "Suspicious Remark," Who lives on the street "Don't Care."

Just back of the park is Slander Row; 'Twas there that Good Name died, Perced by a dart from Jealousy's bow, In the hands of Envious Pride,

From Gossip Town peace long since fled, But envy and strife and war still reign, And sorrow and care you'll find instead If there ever you chance to go.

THE FRESHMAN STORY

By BROOKS GARNETT

This story begins when a high school senior scrambles through his mail and comes across a letter from High Point College.

"Dear Sir: We are happy to inform you that you have been accepted for the 1960-61 academic year . . ."

From then on, that student has the security of knowing where he'll be the next year, and the spirit of "Look out, HPC, I'm coming" soon stir.

During the summer months, freshmen becomes a steady correspondence with the college administration. He finds out such details as how many times he has to be punctured with booster shots, how much money his father would have to borrow from the bank to make expenses meet for tuition, whether he lived in a green or pink room—as well as the number of windows, who the lucky person was who would have to look at his messy housekeeping all year, and how many clubs welcomed him and wanted his membership (along with his membership fees, "magic marker talent," and cooperation on dirty work.)

The month of August flips up on the calendar, and time for the "drudgery tasks" begin. Mothers become automatic "name-tag sewers-on," "Should I put name tags on my socks? My shower cap? My laundry bag?" queries the future freshman.

Fathers become the cronic hearers of "But, Daddy-O, dear, I don't have a thing to wear!" For girls, a modish wardrobe complete with above-the-knee-dimple hemlines, shoes with pointed toes (with which someone could stab an enemy by kicking him), and fuzzy fur jackets (no home-grown products allowed).

Last minute bustling for toothpaste, no-doze, a waste-basket that looks collegiate, "irresistible to the opposite sex" shaving lotion, cut-hangers, and other minute but necessary details are rounded up in early September.

With mothers losing all hopes for any organization in packing and feeling sure that her darling will come home without all his belongings, and fathers mentally swearing in anguish for the need of a two-ton transfer truck, his "car-cramming process" begins.

Arriving on campus, usually after three or four wrong turns, the "entrails of the car trunk" are piled out. Mustering up all masculine strength, pooped papas trudge up and down the narrow steps to Woman's Hall with wide trunks, while other fathers (and sons) try to figure out where all "the mess" is going to be put in the McCulloch Hall "cubby-holes."

Boys brandishing orientation tapes on their sharp Ivy-League clothes politely welcome all the bewildered but excited families in the right direction. Mothers stutter confused orders to their off-spring such as "Now be yourself" or "Now remember what I told you about these college men, dear." While absent mindily running around in circles.

Heaps of clothes, boxes, luggage, food baskets, shoe trees, plastic bags, and other apparatus is unfolded along with the lumps and rugs and bed-spreads.

For several days, a continuous search goes on for the blue shirt that was in the wastebasket or the notebook paper in the cosmetic kit. Being a freshman takes stamina, strength, (and money). Registration lines, dormitory trunks after eleven o'clock in the evening, hearing purple and white bonnies (which never-match anything except one's complexion after thinking his first exam), is all an ordeal . . . but ain't it fun?

OKAY-WORDS

ORIENTATION AND RUSH WEEK

WELL-ROUNDED PERSON—What your college catalogue says they hope to make of you, and orientation speakers keep exhorting you to be.

DO YOU KNOW?—The most popular collegiate opening gambit, used either to ask, "Are you like us, our kind?" or simply to use up the time until the next person appears.

WHAT'S YOUR MAJOR—Like above, or a way of determining how seriously one is going to take his studies, whether he is going to be an eye-head, a grind, or a good off.

SHARP—A catch-all expression defying precise definition but indicating approval.

WE'LL SEE YOU AROUND—A polite farewell meaning "no need to come back."

CUT SESSION—The grubby process of weeding out unwanted rushes, usually by not too flattering means; also used to describe any conversation or bull session containing extensive personal criticism.

HATCHET MAN—That friendly, congenial guy assigned to escort "undesirable" rushes out the side door.

"Back to the grindstone!" Gail browses through the library book shelves for parallel reading for freshman history.

A Yankee (Gail is from New Jersey) and a Rebel (Bobby Bracken is from Raleigh) forget the Civil War and attend HPC's first big affair.

Ann Bowman, an orientation member, reaches out to help Gail Geyer on the long trek to her new room for the year.

Three new members of the "Mickey Mouse Fan Club"—(l. to r.) Butch Bartlett, Ronnie Seawell, and Gail, converse around the steps of Roberts Hall. Could they be counting the days to Thanksgiving?

"Oh, me, where do I start?" ponders Gail after a hard and busy day during orientation week. The books, clothes, and stuffed animals seem to pile up—like homework soon will be doing.

CONTESTS SCHEDULED

MAID OF COTTON

A college campus is a good place to look for Maid of Cotton candidates. That's the belief of the National Cotton Council, which conducts an annual search for a young beauty to represent a great agricultural industry on an international fashion and good will tour.

The contest is now officially open, the council announces, for the 1961 Maid of Cotton, who will be the American cotton industry's 22nd representative. Of the 21 former Maids, all but one have been college coeds or recent graduates at the time of their selection.

It's also a widely accepted fact that the majority of college coeds rate high in personality, intelligence, beauty, and background. These are the qualities the cotton industry looks for in its Maid of Cotton.

Twenty finalists will be named to compete in Memphis, Tennessee, on September 28 and 29 for title Maid of Cotton winners from Alabama, California, New Mexico, and the South Plains area of Texas will automatically be included in the group. Other finalists will be selected from individual applications mailed to the Council's Memphis office.

To be eligible to enter the contest, a girl must have been born in one of the 18 cotton-producing states, must be between 18 and 25 years old, must be at least 5 feet 6 inches tall, and must never have been married.

The girl who wins the 1961 Maid of Cotton title will succeed Sandra Lee Jennings of Riverside, California. Sandra has returned to her studies as a sophomore at the University of California. She plans to follow a career in fashion designing.

The 1961 Maid of Cotton will travel to all 48 states, all 50 United States and also will visit key Canadian and European cities. Everywhere she goes, she will be accompanied by government officials, cotton industry leaders, and other dignitaries. Wearing the latest cotton fashions, she'll pose for newspaper and magazine photographers and appear on radio and television.

Official entry blanks may be obtained from the National Cotton Council, Box 9605, Memphis 12, Tennessee.

MADEMOISELLE

Mademoiselle magazine announces that its 1960-61 College Board Contest is now open to women undergraduates under 26 years old who are regularly enrolled in an accredited college or junior college. The contest offers a chance at winning one of 20 Guest Editorships—a staff position with MADEMOISELLE.

To try out for membership on the College Board, a girl must be a critic (1,200 words or more) of the editorial section of a current issue of MADEMOISELLE, or depict in words or drawings the life of her campus. (For other suggestions visit the magazine.) You will be notified by January 15. (Photos work by your tryout has been accepted.)

Each college board member will do one semester for MADEMOISELLE. The list of assignments to choose from will appear in the January issue. The contest is open to all. There will be a variety of selections, so a girl will be able to pick one that best suits her interests. (Photos will be given for both tryouts and assignments.)

College board members who come out among the top twenty on the tryout and assignment win a salaried position on the staff of MADEMOISELLE.

YVONNE VAUGHN

BELLE FROM MOUNT AIRY

Legend has it that the hills of North Carolina hold much for the antiquing tourist in terms of adventure, mystery, and beauty. We shall choose the latter to best identify Miss Yvonne Vaughn, that indeed that is only the beginning for a wealth of personality, poise, and amiability take over immediately.

It was just three years ago that "Von" came down from the hills to the grounds to major in English, and since that time our girl has done better than par for the course. From her very first days on campus Von has been one of our most vibrant personalities. Her freshman year saw her elected a class senator and a cheerleader. As a sophomore she continued to spell bind our most eligible bachelors and still found time to take an active part in sophomore class functions and the Baptist Student Union. This, her junior year finds Von secretary of the junior class, chief cheerleader, and vice-president of B.S.U.

And yet most once more her for a beauty contest on or off our campus. Since her first days at High Point, our girl has been elected to virtually every beauty pageant held, serving in the May and Miss High Point Courts and highlighted by her selection as Homecoming Queen and North State Conference Queen in 1959.

This past summer, "Von" worked in her older brother's restaurant in California. She was featured as a singer several of the summer nights during her stay in California. Even though she held a busy college schedule, Von found time to go to Camp Phylmore, founded by Coach Von, where she worked with the cheerleaders.

Ironically enough, autumn found a somewhat homesick young lady eager and waiting for school to open. Now that she is here, Von lists studies and sorority work in Alpha Gamma Delta to be her two most consuming interests, but we are sure she will find room for a date or two. If you happen to be one of those many underdogs who called too late, you unfortunately will miss the hills of North Carolina, only to find that her sister is married.

PUBLISHED BY THE STUDENTS OF HIGH POINT COLLEGE

Vol. XXXV; No. 2

High Point, N. C.

October 29, 1960

President Wendell Patton chats with (l. to r.) Pat Yokley, Ann Bowman, and Betty Johnson, representatives of Alpha Delta Theta Service Sorority. This organization was the first one on campus to give their approval of "Education for Leadership," and is planning a demonstration "brainstorming" session with Dr. Patton to be open to all HPC students. This session is to help students understand this phase of leadership training.

HPC Excited About Leadership Plans

After months of study and research, Dr. Wendell Patton, president of the college, suggested that HPC develop its potential by integrating "Education for Leadership" in its program.

This program for leadership is now becoming development. Only a few outstanding schools have any program available in this area.

Psychologists have just scratched the surface on new ideas in leadership. The college has many programs, group dynamics, decision making, leadership principles, brainstorming, and creativity.

The Board of Trustees, the Faculty, and the Student Government Association at High Point College have given their unanimous support of this program. Ideas are sparking all possible steps that HPC may take.

Suggestions have been made that HPC can build the best library on leadership in the country within two years time.

With appropriate funds, HPC could hire top experts in this field to come to the college and co-ordinate the program.

Voluntary leadership training sessions may be made available to students for their personal development.

Patton is planning a November visit to New York to include interviews with representatives of Ford Foundation, Norman Vincent Peake, Zerkowich and other top officials in varying fields to discuss this new idea for HPC.

A pamphlet about the Education for Leadership program states: "Any college—old or young, large or small—must have a living personality separate and distinct from all others. This is what makes it worthy of its name. This personality, this individuality should be deeply rooted in its philosophy and objectives, and revealed through its activities. We want our public to know what we are and what we believe . . . by accepting the 'fundamental tenet' of Educating the Students of Today to be the Leaders of Tomorrow."

Nixon & Gavin Win in HPC Poll

After an informal debate between six High Point students in assembly, the HPCO sponsored a poll among students which tallied with Nixon and Gavin having the top numbers of votes.

Nixon was represented in the debate by Nancy Gillespie, Jerry Kyle and Don Drapman. Kennedy's point of view was presented by Al Neal, Allen Sharpe, and Daryl McQuire.

HPC students gave Nixon a 35 vote lead with 369 votes to Nixon 334 for Kennedy.

Gavin won a larger majority of student votes with a total of 359 over Sanford's 250. Only N. C. students voted in the gubernatorial selection.

New Organ Arrives in Fine Arts Dept.

Wednesday, September 28, saw the arrival of a new organ for the Fine Arts Department, and an audition. The new organ will replace the three rank J. P. Muller organ which has served the auditorium and Fine Arts Department inadequately since 1956. The new organ is an Allen transistor organ which means that the tone is produced electrically. There are five speakers for the organ and four of these speakers will be placed in the rear and both sides of the stage, but the fifth speaker will be transposable on the stage. The new Allen has quite a variety of tonal qualities ranging from a F. Fife to a 32' Solo-Flute.

The Muller will be moved down stairs to the choir room where it will serve as a practice organ for organ students. The consoles of the Allen, as well as that of the Muller will be set upon "dolles" to enable them to be moved in place at all times.

The new Allen will be especially beneficial to the Music Department in presentation of student recitals.

All students are urged to attend these student recitals which are given periodically.

Psychology Tests To Aid Guidance

This year marks the first year that High Point College has had a separate counseling department. This job had been tackled previously by the Dean and Students.

The first step in counseling is to understand and know the student in total. He likes, dislikes, and strong and weak points. By so doing, Mr. Wheeler, the new guidance counselor, can provide a battery of tests to aid in career and transfer studies during Orientation week.

The general purpose of these exams was to find out something about each person so that the guidance counselor and the students could form a sound foundation for the future.

With the exception of the English and French placement exams, this will be the first year for the presentation of four psychology tests. The tests include: (1) The California Study of Values survey, which measures cognitive and planning, and the attitudes of the student; (2) the Academic Preference Inventory, which checks social and personal adjustment; (3) The Kuder Preference Inventory, which shows interests; (4) The American Council on Education Psychological Examination, which notes general abilities.

After the assembling of the information is completed, Wheeler plans to give each person an evaluation of his or her abilities and interests. He hopes that this information will aid the student. However, Wheeler made clear that no one test indicates what a person can or cannot do. That particular test, and under those particular conditions.

BULLETIN! HPC's Fees Increased

The High Point College Board of Trustees has approved a recommendation for an increase in student tuition and fees for 1961-62.

The Board declared their action in favor of the increase as a necessity because of the rising costs of living, wages, food, maintenance, and repairs. The approximate costs for one student per two-semester year is $1400, of which the student only pays 80 per cent. The remainder is paid by contributions to the College.

For the first time, part of the students' fees will be placed in scholarship and financial aid funds.

Other colleges are finding the same problem of balancing actual college costs with the funds received. Comparisons composed of tentative tuition changes for next year (which have not yet been fully approved by their Boards) are as follows:

Ten Four Year Co-Educational North Carolina Church-Related Colleges

College	58-59	59-60	60-61

According to this chart, High Point is higher only than Elon and Atlantic Christian Colleges. A list of the actual changes in fees for the HPC students is as follows:

Jr. Class Gives Party for Fresh

Dick Holt, president of the Junior Class, and a committee from that class made elaborate plans for a "real nice clam bake" given by the Juniors in honor of the Freshmen.

The clam bake took place at City Lake in High Point. Hot dogs and soft drinks got the evening under way with plenty of dancing on the patio following.

This is the first time that any activity of this nature has ever occurred on this campus in recent years. The Junior Class hopes to make this an annual event.

Peterson Completes Financial Brochure

by STACY STORY

College cannot run without money. The money derived from tuition fees is not sufficient, so other means of raising funds must be applied. Dr. Herbert H. Peterson, Director of Endowment and Development, is the man to whom the task has been given by High Point College.

Dr. Peterson has worked out a plan for the College whereby both donors and the college will benefit from contributions to the college. His plan is indeed valid, and has been approved by two tax lawyers in High Point. A brochure delineating this idea is now being printed.

Under the plan, donors, how a donor is enabled to reduce considerably or to avoid entirely certain taxes.

Endowments to High Point College may be made in a number of various ways. A few are restricted to unrestricted bequests, mutual fund plans, outright gifts from income or capital, and gifts of property.

There are two basic forms of endowment. These are living endowments of specific funds donated to the college, and non-living gifts consisting of stocks donated in annuities, cash, or property in memory of a person or in honor of a designated purpose. All endowments benefit restricted or unrestricted according to the wish of the donor. This is called the "donor's intent" and is specified for a certain purpose or object.

Living endowments can be ordered on a current income. These gifts could reduce the donor's income tax by placing him in a lower tax bracket. For example, if a person earned $5000 per year, and gave a small gift to High Point College, he might fall into a lower bracket, and thereby substantially reduce his taxes. This is illustrated clearly in the new High Point College booklet.

Gifts donated in cash, securities, or other property are invested in tax-saved securities by the college, and the donor receives an income from these securities which are set aside.

18 MPH Involves Roadside Safety

Students and faculty members gathered for a discussion of the 18 MPH speed limit on campus roads. The discussion was held in the Student Union building. The 18 MPH speed limit is a new measure to improve roadside safety on campus roads. The discussion was led by a representative from the State Department of Transportation. The representative explained that the 18 MPH speed limit is a measure to reduce the number of accidents on campus roads. The representative also explained that the 18 MPH speed limit is a measure to improve the safety of pedestrians. The discussion was a success and the 18 MPH speed limit will be implemented on campus roads.

RESEARCH EPSC's First

Researcher

The first research project of the EPSC (Earthquake Prediction Science Center) was completed. The project was a study of the relationship between earthquakes and the Earth's magnetic field. The project was led by a team of researchers from the EPSC. The project was a success and the results of the study will be published in a journal. The project was a first for the EPSC and it shows that the center is capable of conducting high-quality research.

Across The Desk

English Dept. Rated "A"

There is a small but important crop of intellectuals who master-minded an "A" Class Department from the English classes of Roberts Hall. The average student or sightseer does not always get an opportunity to see this small organizational function as a unit, yet the curricula and framework accomplished by their combined efforts will one day bring merit upon High Point College.

Blackstock, Sowder, and Company have succeeded in polishing up a pretty, dusty apple, and the future promises an even brighter glow. The newly arrived freshman can rest completely assured that he is getting the "best" in terms of his English curricula.

Whether individually liberal or conservative, these gentlemen possess the wealth of experience and knowledge which their credentials show.

The English Department of High Point College represents a dynamic advantage toward a better institution and diploma. It has accepted the "Patton Challenge" and is approaching it with fervor. This is obvious because there is not one clock-puncher in the club. —T.L.

Yell A-Little Louder . . .

YOU are the school, and the school is YOU and what YOU make it.

School spirit is not just a slogan. It's more than yelling your head off at a game or pep meeting, more than backing your team in defeat. It's more than collecting clothes for the clothes drive or getting ads for the yearbook. It's more than buying tickets to and attending basketball games and school plays. It's more than putting an entry in the door decoration contest. These are just externals; they are not, of themselves, school spirit.

School spirit is the force behind all these externals.

School spirit goes still deeper.

School spirit is joining the athletic teams and playing your heart out win or lose.

School spirit is joining and participating actively in the extracurriculum.

School spirit is the basketball player who does not laugh at the cultural side of school—and the honor society student who does not turn his nose up at athletics.

School spirit is going to church and living your religion, while not thinking you're less of a man for it.

School spirit is studying adequate time to make good grades and not regarding scholarships as a weakness.

And why? School spirit is its own answer, because school spirit, when you get down to it, is love—a love for High Point College, and all it represents. A love that should make everyone of us want to do everything in his power to make the whole world recognize High Point College, at all times and in everything as the best. —Lois Campbell.

Shirley Yokley

Former Campus Beauty Becomes English Head

In her four years at High Point College, Shirley was very outstanding. Everyone held this tiny, black-headed girl called "Yokley" in great respect.

She was known by everyone on campus. During her few years here she was president and pledge director of Phi Mu Fraternity, president of Panhellenic. She was also head cheerleader for two years, program chairman in Baptist Student Union, and on the Zenith staff. Shirley was also honored to be selected to Who's Who and one of the ten top writers. Along with her many scholastic honors, Shirley was Homecoming Queen, Miss High Point College contestant and in the May Court.

After graduation in 1959, Shirley received her masters at Appalachian College in Boone, N. C. While she was there she was counselor to a freshman dorm.

Shirley is now very happy as being Head of the English Department at Mitchell College in Statesville, N.C. She is loved by her students and held in high respect by the faculty. The only hard thing about Shirley's job is—she is not able to cut classes anymore!

Review of New Books By English Professors

by JUDY ROGERS

This past spring saw the publication of two books on poetry which should be of interest to the students and faculty of High Point College. These two new books, Miracle of Flesh and Quest of Dawn, were written by Dr. Walter Blackstock, head of the English Department; and Dr. Lincoln Lorenz, also of the English Department, respectively.

For Dr. Blackstock, a native of Atlanta, Georgia, Miracle of Flesh is the English book on poetry that he has published. In this volume his poetry cannot be strictly classified as traditional or contemporary. Rather it is a mixture of both.

While reading this particular volume of poetry, I was struck by the beauty of the writing, especially the figures of speech. Equivocal epithets are scattered throughout the poems. Dr. Blackstock writes of the "pearl-gray monotonies of ice-bound ponds," "the fit-to-ice of spring," "like sleep, star-stared in ancient pastures of bliss," "moonlight pours its golden light down a winnowpane," "final daylight casts the hour with flames of saffron fire," and "the spidery spinning of frost."

In addition to Miracle of Flesh, Dr. Blackstock has edited a book of poems by James Larkin Pearson, the Poet Laureate of North Carolina. The book, entitled Selected Poems of James Larkin Pearson, will be published around the middle of October.

Dr. Lincoln Lorenz has published his first book of poetry, Quest of Dawn. However, he has written three other books. The Life of Sidney Larnier; John Paul Jones, Fighter for Freedom and Glory; The Admiral and the Empress; John Paul Jones and Catherine the Great. Quest of Dawn is produced by a discussion on the values of poetry from the time of the Greeks to the present day.

Letters to the Editors

WHAT'S WRONG WITH TRUE-FALSE TESTS?

In my first three years of college, I was given a variety of tests or examinations, but the one test that I found unnecessary and difficult to pass was the true-false test. I do not wish to imply that it is wrong to give true-false tests because they are hard to pass, but for the following reasons, I am stating my test's wrong for a college professor to give his students a true-false test.

1. A true-false test does not give a student adequate opportunity to express what he knows about the subject.

2. If it is a varied subject, the teacher and student may have affinities for different aspects of the subject—this would limit the student's opportunity to express himself adequately.

3. True-false tests are beneath the intellectual-level of college students and tend to efface an attitude of seriousness toward the subject.

4. Frequently, when the professor consistently gives true-false tests, none of the students will report to the professor, thus they make good grades, but acquire little or no knowledge.

5. True-false tests are oversimplification. —Abel Dillard Hiatt.

PROFESSOR QUESTIONS STUDENT COMPOSITIONS

Dear Editors:

I sit down to grade a set of freshman themes. One is fair, one poor, another good, and another—well, another one is admirable. What do I do? Write down an A and commend the student? No; I ask myself, "Who wrote this?"

Give me an excellent freshman theme, and I will set off on the track of its source. I know that these students are clever; that is, I know that some students can find a really good article in an old Collier's magazine and adapt it to the assignment I give. Sooner or later, I'll find the article.

Now a teacher should not be a cynic, and I try to control my spite of mind. But I recollect that this my mental tendency is not innate: I developed it by reading the news. Every student in my past who copied from a book or magazine contributed to my present frame of mind. And every time I impugn the writing of a genuinely first-rate student, I am passing on to him the legacy of my past crooks.

Some of our students are honest but slow, and some are honest and intelligent. On behalf of such students I would gladly accept every petty cheat that has reached our school. As for the bold plagiarist, the examination thief, the grade robber—I sometimes think his offense against all of us is that he should be punishable by death.

CAFFERTIA LINES DECLARED INFANT

Dear Editors:

A few days ago I hurried to the cafeteria so that I could eat lunch and get out of the building before I went to work. The line was back to the side entrance which, in itself, wasn't bad. Normally the line moves quickly along. On this particular day, however, I wondered why I was standing in the same spot for ten minutes or more. Come to find out, so many people were cutting in line ahead of me that I wasn't moving at all. When I first got in line, there was one freshman girl in front of me. By the time I got through, there were seven of them. This was not all of it. There was a lot more sitting in farther on up the line. It took me 35 minutes to go from the side door to the cafeteria.

This sort of thing has got to stop. It's bad enough when we have to stand in line in front of me. By the time I get through, there are seven of them. This was not all of it. There was a lot more sitting in farther on up the line. It took me 35 minutes to go from the side door to the cafeteria.

I am appealing to the students who cut in the cafeteria. Please be considerate of those who have been standing in line longer than you. The line would actually move faster if everyone went to the end. Besides, you can't be that hungry.

—A Disgusted Student.

BOYS DORM RULE HAMPER CONDITIONS

Dear Editors:

During this past week I have noticed that the men living at H.P.C. have been given many rights and privileges, never accorded them before. Imagine, for the first time the men are allowed to have a bed in their room and in a room they will be able to bring books into their rooms to study from. Soon students will be able to bring more than one set of underwear to use.

Yes, there is finally going to be a change in the boys' dormitory. Oh, the pleasures and comforts, unheard of and unknown until now, the boys' men living at High Point College.

I realize that one can't have all the pleasures in life, but certain things are. One can have a room eight by 10-foot cell one's home for nine months out of the year have now been taken away from the men living on campus. Simple things that keep one happy and content away from home such as a rug on the floor, a picture on the wall, a bureau large enough to hold a week's supply of clothes, a night case, a clock, a clock at 10:30 at night (and 10:30 in the morning for that matter) have been taken away from the men living on this campus.

The place to hold the student's toys is in the dormitory. It is allowed in some sections of the men's dorm. It would seem to me that if one is to do any kind of work in college that is to gain any merit, he should have the use of as many reference books as possible in his room. This would include encyclopedias. One person was mocked for having a set in his room. Does this foster scholarship?

I also cannot understand how a person can live for a little over a week in a room and not have a dresser in his dresser and a pipe rack in his closet (if he is lucky enough to have one). For myself, an out of state student, it seems ridiculous to even consider such a proposal. Even when one does offer to provide for an extra dresser, paid for out of his own pocket, he is refused because, "It will take up too much space."

At any rate, I am waiting impatiently for the allowance of the simple things that I have been denied in here at High Point College. I also wonder if certain rules were made for the sake of making rules.

Sincerely, Walter H. Schenck 10/19/90

HPC Student Writes About a Friend . . .

Taylor Caldwell

by BETH LEBERMAN

Janet Taylor Caldwell, the noted author of such popular novels as "Dynasty of Death," "This Side of Innocence," "Never Victorious, Never Defeated," and her most recent best-seller, "Dear and Glorious Physician," has just had published another novel called "The Listener."

Miss Caldwell, or as I know her better, Mrs. Mary Caldwell, was born in Manchester, England, on September 7, 1900, came to this country in 1907, is a graduate of the University of Buffalo, and now resides in Eggertsville, New York. A student of the English language, she has written more than 20 books. During the year or so that I have known Miss Caldwell I have found her to be a wonderfully warm and genuine person. Because of the fact that my mother was very fond of her, I have had occasion to be a guest in her home, and feel very fortunate to have known her. She has made me feel truly welcome in her home.

"The Listener" is a modern religious novel wherein Miss Caldwell has revealed in part her convictions regarding the existence of the modern man. It is the story of 15 people who have a problem, but have no one to turn to for help. It is not until these 15 people have had a mysterious experience of discovery, that they are able to find an inner peace, understanding, or a solution to their problem.

In the last chapter of her book Miss Caldwell relates the story of a scientist who, through an inner quest to discovery, can bring help, destroy the world, or help cure a lot of its material ills. It is in this chapter that the author finally reveals the mystery of "The Listener."

A TIME

To everything there is a season;
For every deed and word, a reason.
There's a time to give,
a time to keep;
a time to wake and a time to sleep.
There's a time to laugh,
a time to cry;
a time to live and a time to die.

The secret is not what, but when
A thing's a right or a thing's a sin.
He hath made everything in His time;
Everything with a side divine.
A time to sew and a time to rend;
A time to start and a time to end.

Lindley Given W.E. Scholarship

Winifred E. Lindley of Pittsboro, N.C., was recently named as the recipient of the Western Electric Fund Scholarship at High Point College for the academic year 1960-61. Lindley is a sophomore at High Point College this year and is majoring in chemistry with a minor in math. After completing his four years of undergraduate study at this college, Lindley plans to enter the field of research chemistry and further his preparation by obtaining the master's degree in chemistry.

The Western Electric Fund Scholarship granted to Lindley is one of more than 150 such scholarships provided to institutions of higher learning over the nation. This scholarship covers the cost of tuition, books and fees for a full academic year of study for the recipient.

Lindley was also the recipient of this scholarship during his freshman year at High Point College in 1959-60. To further his knowledge in the field of chemistry, Lindley was employed this past summer at the Western Electric plant in Burlington, N.C., where he received in training experience with the company.

Winifred Lindley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lindley of Pittsboro, N.C.

Perhaps a man wishes to present a gift to High Point College in the form of an irrevocable trust. In this case the college would act as trustee of the estate, investing the gift in mutual funds, which the donor could select. The person would then receive an interest for life from the fund.

There are other forms of donations which are equally effective and mutually beneficial. All are contained within the explanatory pamphlet.

It is a great privilege to have the opportunity to aid in the molding of the embryonic minds of youth. Only the deepest satisfaction comes from giving for such a worthy cause. The right to give belongs to everyone, not simply the well-to-do, a contribution need not be vast to be appreciated.

Dr. Peterson has been working on this project since September, 1959. Copies are available to interested persons.

NOTICE: This edition of the Hi-PO is late because of various difficulties which could not be helped. The Hi-PO staff asks for the continuance of student participation, interests, ideas, and enthusiasm, for with these, "The Hi-PO" will become stronger and clearer each issue.

METHODIST STUDENT FELLOWSHIP

by SHERWOOD NANCE

This year the Methodist Student Fellowship has undertaken a very timely emphasis on a national level. . . . The Mission of the Church in the Academic Community. Last year complete plans were made on the state and local levels for participation and involvement in this emphasis which will lead up to the National Methodist Student Conference in August.

The following quotation comments on this emphasis on the state level: "The Church in the Academic Community. . . . Notice the word 'In' because we as Christian students are called to witness within the college situation, not 'to,' as if it were a hostile object. The excitement and challenge of Dr. Albert Outler at Regional at Lake Junaluska drove home the fact that we as Christians are called to the books, called to be scholars (even unfashionable eggheads), to use Dr. Outler's word."

Too often in trying to minister to the University we try to turn it into a church — too often we do not even know what it means for us to be a church. This will be the year to begin to find out who we are as Christians must witness to in a situation that is God-given. —from Macroscope, N.C. Methodist student publication.

Just to give you a heads up, the Methodist Board of Education conference will be at Duke University, January 27, 28, and 29.

Our own local MAF is already involved in this emphasis. On the first Wednesday night, Dr. Thomas Langford, from the Duke University department of religion, spoke on the Nature and Task of the College. This address is to be followed up by discussion groups on the following Wednesday nights.

Dr. Langford gave us some points to ponder in discussion. He made it clear that he would try to give his conception of what an academic community should be, that it, all institutions of higher learning, college related, private, state-owned or otherwise, and then that he would relate this to his conception of what a church related academic community should be. To summarize a few of his remarks:

A college or university must be a community of scholars, old and new, committed to the search for truth or the meaning of existence — not just a place where the students feed back facts to the professors. Instead of a place where the old inculcate their prejudices in the young, the college or university should be dedicated to the search for truth and should be a community that serves a critical function. The academic community should reflect upon society instead of reflecting society.

The Christian college or university should heighten and bring into sharper focus the true purpose of all academic communities. The so-called Christian college often provides a very narrow atmosphere, however, regardless of what kind of college one attends, narrow view points and conformity to society may be found. The true church on campus is a redemptive community where isolation is overcome and a person knows that he is received — a place where vital issues can be dealt with openly.

WHAT IS ALPHA DELTA THETA?

by PAT CLARK

When a young person begins a college career, there are many clubs and organizations competing for his attention. It is the wise student who is able to distinguish between the organizations worthy of his time and talents and those which have no worth while purpose.

In my opinion one of the best organizations on this campus is Alpha Delta Theta. This organization is a religious sorority for girls from any denomination who are interested in Christian living and service.

The purposes of the organization are:

1. To enrich the spiritual life of the young women of High Point College.

2. To encourage Christian stewardship.

3. To provide Christian fellowship.

4. To provide Christians in experience and training in avenues of practical Christian service.

5. To promote exchange of ideas and experiences among members of the organization.

6. To correlate Christian living with vocational plans.

When a young woman becomes a member of this organization, she is sister in the service of God. Being a sister, I would like to express what Alpha Delta Theta means to me. I enjoy being a sister because of the closeness, sincerity, and friendliness of the girls who compose its membership. There is a deep bond between the girls socially and spiritually. Being in this group has brought Christ to God and to serve Him and other people.

Just to cite one example of serving and other people, I would like to tell you of a project that this organization did last year. Knowing how lively and how much in need of friendship older people can be, the Alpha Delta Theta sisters visited the Presbyterian Home. Here they presented for the residents a group of songs, and skits, and sang numbers which those at the home requested. After this period of fellowship, a worship service was held.

The warm, friendly smiles, the glowing faces of those people at the Home — these told more of their thanks than hundreds of words.

This is just one example. There are many others. Each one gives an Alpha Delta Theta sister a privilege —

— a high privilege.

"This privilege is to be a true 'Sister in the Service of God.'"

Freshman Tells of Fun & Flurry in Sorority Rush

by KATHY STURM

"Mind come back. . . . I've just got to get this studying done. If I think the history test, I'm doomed! Now, the stone Age was divided into two parts, the Paleolithic and Neolithic. . . . I wonder what the girls thought when I spilled the tea at our first formal rush party that Sunday afternoon. Why did that have to happen at the first party? Everyone looked so sophisticated in their cocktail dresses, and then, there I was, with a wet skirt."

The ice-breaker parties on Tuesday and Wednesday were so confusing. With only 20 minutes to get acquainted, I just couldn't remember all the names and felt so conspicuous as my eyes searched for that familiar name tag whenever I greeted a new lady. . . . I've got to meet a lot of new girls. . . . I want a lot of new friends. . . . We could tell what activities the girls participated and excelled in, and they gave us a chance to see the jewelry, crests and sorority souvenirs.

At the Wednesday night ice-breaker, faces and names began to connect, and it was so much easier to talk.

Back in the time that night, all our conversation centered around the fact that we were not only glad to talk to the upperclassmen, but overjoyed with their sincere friendliness. . . . The girls had a great debate opinions; the majority decided to wait until after the parties. . . . I've got to meet a lot of new girls. . . . I want a lot of new friends. . . . Back in the time that night, all our conversation centered around the fact that we were not only glad to talk to the upperclassmen, but overjoyed with their sincere friendliness. . . . The girls had a great debate opinions; the majority decided to wait until after the parties. . . . I've got to meet a lot of new girls. . . . I want a lot of new friends. . . . We could tell what activities the girls participated and excelled in, and they gave us a chance to see the jewelry, crests and sorority souvenirs.

At the Wednesday night ice-breaker, faces and names began to connect, and it was so much easier to talk.

MRS. JAMES WARREN

New Social Director Already Busy

Above you see one of the new faces on our campus Mrs. James Warren, new North Hall housemother and Campus Social Chairman, comes to us from Woman's College in Greensboro.

One needs only to be with Mrs. Warren a short time to become aware of her joy, sparkling personality, her warmth and sincerity, and her seemingly endless store of energy.

She has already begun to formulate plans for improvement in the Student Center. She is, in connection with these plans, hoping to get androns for the fireplace, draperies for the windows in the game room, and more equipment for the kitchenette.

"In time, I hope that we can get new furniture for the game room, too!" she said.

Also—and this will be good news to the bridge-players—new card tables are on the way for the game room.

Mrs. Warren is "very much impressed" with our campus. She finds the campus friendly—from students to administration.

"And I'll put a plug in for the cafeteria—I think the food is excellent!"

She is encouraged that a number of people have volunteered to help with some projects she has in mind.

I was also very pleased to see that the boys followed so well my suggestion of 'dressing up' for Sunday dinner; I hope that this will continue.

And she is also impressed with our school paper.

"Things are excellent," she said.

Soon we will all be looking forward to seeing Mrs. Warren's plans become realities.

Roving Around

by FOOTLOOSE

Well, here we are, luck for another year at HPC. Just rovin' around, here are some of the main strains of campus comment:

From the starving Americans, "Wouldn't it be lovely if 12-20 classes were 12-45 classes?" Or, translated: Why must lunch be a luxury?

It used to be that we could sit watches by the 12-10 and 6-00 music from Roberts Hall. Seems funny only to have heard music three times this year — and "Beautiful Dreamer" all three times in the wrong key!

And while on the subject of Roberts Hall Tower—we will pass this on what it's worth—Sears and Roebuck proudly announces it's new line of spotlight bulbs.

Several people have commented on the good attendance at Vespers. Two Sundays the attendance reached a peak of 91. Let's encourage more people to take advantage of this worthwhile hour.

Noticed something new in the cafeteria lately? If you can't find out, just ask Mrs. Wright. She'll be more than glad to point it out to you.

From the Freshmen, The January Council gets a yearning for dollars at this time of year! If someone asks you what's in your mind, it better be your bean!

Hear that the entire girls room says "Inchua Gracious" to Delta Sigma? A wonderful serenade.

Was nice to see even the non-church-going males in coats and ties at dinner on Sunday.

Quotable Quote from the Readers Digest: "One man talking politics to another man who is a player and a golfer. You know who I'd like to see get in now? A bowler."

Scary! The scary story of the night, you know how it is, Dean Nelson—Lights out at 12!

The American spirit of free enterprise had free play, and free play did the lordly state, was also, almost, a saint, was then monarch of all he surveyed, as he enjoyed what should be the inalienable rights of every young American male—the rights of life, liberty and the happiness of pursuit.

Yes, those were great days, and I conformed to you, gentlemen, the lessons of that glorious past, graduates of the world, arise—you have nothing to lose but your silk and nylon chain!

ALL-SEASONS SPORTS PROGRAM?

What has happened to cross-country and wrestling at High Point College? Why has the sport in which the college could probably take the District, Conference, and State championships been cast from the ranks of High Point College's intercollegiate activities? These are some of the questions posed and aimed to be answered in this article.

TAKE DOWN!

Wrestling was new to High Point last year and met with limited results. It is a certain factor that the student body did not give its support to the wrestling team. However, there are good reasons to support the non-support. Probably the most important of these reasons is lack of publicity. Another contributing factor is the lack of matches held by the team, especially at home. To my knowledge the only wrestling seen was a demonstration during half-time at one of the basketball games. It is, therefore, reasonable to understand that wrestling is being dropped. The reasoning could also include lack of funds. It does, though, seem funny that this new sport at the college hasn't gotten a better break.

DISTANCE, DISTANCE, AND MORE DISTANCE

Cross-country is a highly competitive sport which is similar to Track and Field. It challenges its participants to hard endurance and provides them with the chance to excel in the time and work spent in training. Last year's cross-country and track team were second only to Duke University. This is truly a tremendous effort on the part of our boys and they should be commended on their achievements. The possibilities of even excelling in this year's competition is now only a mere "dream of the past" as far as cross-country team is concerned. The activity has been dropped as a part of HPC's athletic program. Granted there hasn't been a great deal of interest in the sport, but whose fault is that!

IS THIS THE END?

In conclusion, it seems only fair to express the viewpoint of the administration on items which have been discussed so far. The college is in no way condemning or trying to dispose of the sports. It feels that the athletic staff is at present heavily overworked, and they feel it would be unfair to ask one of its members to assume the extra responsibilities of coaching both wrestling and cross-country. Another factor contributing to the expulsion of these sports is basically financial. The college feels that supporting participation in sports activities by members of the student body. In other words, the college feels that student participation should be placed on an area of greater concentration within a minimized number of sports activities.

The main question which this editor would like to present is not basely concerned with the dropping of these two sports. He does, however, feel that a balanced sports program should be maintained at the college. It is present that the school does not have the opportunity of viewing a fall sport, whether it be football, wrestling, or cross-country. I can accept with much respect the feelings of the college administration on these points. However, I would like for the administration to take into consideration the possibility that a fall sport would provide one of the many needed activities on campus to keep the students at college over the week end. It would be greatly appreciated if we could hear from both the administration and students on their ideas concerning this subject. It is evident that as long as there is no student interest in a fall sport the college administration has no alternative but to say that there is no need for a fall sport. If there are any suggestions as to the solution of some of these problems, please send them to the sports editor for the HI-PO.

One last point for those of you who take time to read this and think about it. High Point had cross-country and wrestling last year. Before condemning the administration for dropping them, think and ask yourselves how many times you came to see them. This is our school and we should love it and support it. If we can't do this we shouldn't be here. Let's really get behind our college.

Varsity Football at HPC?

by JOHN WARD, JR.

The rumor is out once again: "High Point College is going to have a football team." And once again this rumor is very untrue. At the present a varsity football team is impossible at HPC according to Dr. Wendell Patton, president of the college. Dr. Patton is very enthusiastic about the idea as is also the case with most of the students. (In a small poll taken by the writer the students were found to be almost 100% for the idea of having a varsity football team.) Dr. Patton said, "It's not that I'm not interested in getting a football team here at High Point College; but unless we find a fairy godmother, the idea seems impossible." He also gave a reason for this statement. In the first place, it would take between $20 and 50 thousand dollars per year to operate and much more than that amount to get started."

In conferring with other small college presidents, namely of North State Conference schools, Dr. Patton has found that several of our neighboring small colleges are contemplating changes which will inevitably result in discontinuing football as a major sport at these institutions. The

NUMBER NINE RETIRES

Last week the last of the super-star dynasty who could capture a huge crowd solely by personal magnetism and might ended an unprecedented playing career with a dramatic home run and then announced that he was retiring. Yes—this was Ted Williams, famed outfielder of the Boston Red Sox, who has finally hung up his uniform—no, 9—for good. Williams will be remembered as the "hardest man in baseball to pitch to," as a man whose name mastered the bat but not his temper, and as a man whose name clogs the record book with such feats as 521 home runs and a lifetime batting average of .344. Although it is hard to believe, the "Pride of the Red Sox" is now history.

SYRACUSE LABELED AS TEAM TO BEAT

Which will be the nation's top football team in 1960? This is indeed a hard question to answer since some of the top teams—Texas, USC, and Pittsburg—have already suffered surprising losses. Syracuse, unbeaten and tops in offense and defense last year is expected to repeat as the national champion. Coach Ben Schwartzwalder has plenty of manpower this season. Washington, which has all eleven starters returning from 1960 Rose Bowl Champions; and Auburn, which will post one of the nation's best defensive teams; are expected to give Syracuse a battle this season.

ORIOLE OR COLT FAN?

A few weeks ago after the New York Yankees had swept a double-header from the Baltimore Orioles and therefore assuring themselves of another American League pennant, a Baltimore reporter was overheard making the following comment: "Let's go home and root for the Colts in baseball, we've had it."

It seems as though he made a good choice as the Baltimore Colts are undefeated thus far in the regular season.

WANTED AT HPC: A FAIRY GODMOTHER!

Dr. Patton, HPC president, has been quoted as saying that we would have to find a fairy godmother in order to get a football team at High Point College. I've been wondering what he meant by that statement. I suppose we need to find one that is wealthy because I don't think he was wanting to use the godmother as a football player. If anyone knows the whereabouts of a fairy godmother who is interested in sponsoring a varsity football team, please don't hesitate to inform us, especially if she is related to the fairy godmother that seems to be so helpful to our good friends in Hickory, N.C.

Note: A more sensible explanation of this problem is given elsewhere in this paper, so please don't panic.

JEAN KNOWN FOR SMILES

by LINDA WOOD

Working seriously toward a college degree, participating in a full schedule of extracurricular activities, and yet always finding time for a sweet smile and friendly hello, is a large order for any co-ed.

Even though she holds one of the most responsible offices on campus, (women's dormitory president), Jean Thomas manages to do all three. Her secret is that she "loves working with people," as evidenced by the fact that she is majoring in Social Studies and plans to teach.

Jean, who is a Jackson Springs beauty, came to HPC three years ago. As a freshman and sophomore, her activities were Alpha Delta Theta and the fellowship teams. While serving on the judiciary council and dormitory council as a junior, she found time to be in the "Miss HPC Contest." This year, as a senior, Jean is a junior marshal, belongs to the Order of the Lighted Lamp, is vice president of Kappa Delta sorority and Women's Dormitory president. She says her main interests (besides Mac) are her job as dorm president and work in Kappa Delta sorority.

Perhaps she doesn't realize it, but Jean's biggest activity is helping to maintain that friendly atmosphere for which High Point College is known.

THETA CHI

RUSH: "It is our sincere desire that all men interested in fraternity life go out for rush. Fraternity life is certainly a definite and important part of a man's college years. We, the brothers at Theta Chi, would urge that all students not affiliated with a fraternity at present, go out for rush and pledge the fraternity of his choice."

RUSH PARTIES: Stag Rush Party, for those rushes invited on 28th of October at the Yurborough Restaurant in Lexington. Rush Drag will be held on November 4 at the Hotel Sheraton here in High Point for those rushes invited and their dates.

ON A SPONSOR FOR MISS HPC: Miss Linda Ferean, a freshman from Ustick, Florida.

ON A SPONSOR FOR THE 60-61 ZENTH: Miss Margaret Burns, a freshman from Charlotte.

Forums To Be Held At HPC

At the request of the students, the Library Committee, with the help of four other faculty members and four students, has worked out plans for a series of forums or panel discussions to be held through out the year.

Faculty members working with the Library Committee on this are Dr. Bryden, Mr. Porter, Mr. Burhans, and Dr. Le Vey. Students serving on the Committee are Brooks Garrett, Vance Davis, Dale Brown, and Pat Peels.

Dr. Blackstock and Mr. Dixon met with the President's Advisory Committee to get the student's suggestions as to how they want the forums set up.

The students made the following recommendations and suggestions:

1. That such a panel should be set up and started functioning as soon as possible. The quiding purpose would be to stimulate interest among students, faculty, and town people in the long run, pull together effort, which would help raise the estimate of HPC and improve the picture of the college in a multiple way.

2. Each panel should consist of not more than four to six persons per session.

3. That there should be a permanent moderator of such a panel.

4. Panel should be made up of students, faculty, and townspeople.

5. That the meetings or discussions should last no longer than one and half hours.

6. Open to community, professors, students, and that the affairs be publicized as widely as possible.

7. Topics selected for each occasion be as varied as possible and that special guest" as expert be invited each time.

The first forum, "Morality in the Arts," is to be held Wednesday, November 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center. Dr. Locke will be the moderator, and the panel will be composed of faculty members: Dr. Hudgens and Dr. Sowder, students—Emma Lou Noell and Mike Carrington, and townspeople—Mrs. Lew Lewis and Mr. Gilbert Gray.

Whether or not these forums continue will depend upon the interest and response of the students.

Watch bulletin boards and the assembly bulletins for further publicity.

Contestants will be judged on personality, poise, beauty, and talent. Plans are being made for a walkway out over the top of the mountain. It is hoped that the judges will be able to meet contestants at a tea before the formal judging. The theme will be "Somewhere over the Rainbow."

Accreditation Team Visits High Point

During the first week of November, a visiting team composed of five outstanding members of the National Council for Accreditation for Teachers were touring our campus for three days in view of national accreditation of High Point College's Teacher Education Program.

Dean Louis Smith of Berea College in Kentucky was chairman of the team, the other members being Professor William P. Sloan of Manchester College in Indiana, Dean Robert J. Young of Radford College in Virginia, Dr. J. F. Freeman, Director of Professional Services, State Department of Public Instruction, Raleigh, North Carolina, and Dr. A. K. King, Director of Summer School, University of North Carolina.

High Point College has already been accredited by the North Carolina State Board of Education, North Carolina State Department Public Instruction, North Carolina College Conference, University Senate of Methodist Church, and the Southern Association of Colleges.

Before the committee came to our campus they were presented with a one hundred page report on High Point's Teacher Education program. During their visit the team spent every day on campus interviewing the faculty, administration of the teacher's program, and many students who are participating in the Student Teaching Program.

Dr. Dennis Cooke, Director of Teacher Education at High Point, said it would be a great honor and eight months before the college will receive a report as to what action the team has taken.

"Teahouse of August Moon" Presented Here

"The Teahouse of the August Moon," the Pulitzer Prize-winning comedy that scored one of the biggest hits of the mid-1950's in New York, was presented by the Tower Players of High Point College, November 18 and 19. The play was presented in Memorial Auditorium, and performances began at 8:00 P.M. each night.

Adapted by John Patrick from a best-selling novel called "The Yellow Sky" by the play tells of an American Army officer's bewildered efforts to administer tiny village on Okinawa early in the occupation of the little Pacific Island.

The duty of the earnest Captain Flibby is to aid to the reconstruction of the village a listful of memorized rules, called by Plan, which has been run up for the purpose by Army Brass in far-away Washington. Under this plan he is to educate the natives in education, build a school and establish industries that will set them on their feet economically.

Across The Desk

A DEFINITION OF UNITY

One of the most unique aspects of the American Political Science is the so-called closing of the ranks. Though partisan politics at times become intensive, forthright, and even dirty, once the results become apparent the objective becomes common. The cohesion of diverse attitudes and ideas is a factor which establishes rather than falsifies American Democracy.

The underlying theme of our political system is a majority rule with basic regard for inalienable minority rights and with specific respect to constitutional law. To disregard such requisite institutions would produce anarchy at best and despotism at worst. Therefore, it is the duty of the American to protect his way of life by supporting that which is best for America, regardless of political affiliation the American is expected to at least give honest appraisal to each administration and to support a elected administration sincerely but not blindly. The drums of discontent may forever beat the good ship U.S.A. should be placed in the highest esteem always.

In this, an interlude of violent world tensions, the backbone of the nation must be preserved ever so emphatically and strongly. The problem America faces now is a problem which must be met and solved by all Americans, not just Republicans or Democrats. For parties alone are nothing so short of powerless in meeting the bold challenges of the day. The call has been sounded to all Americans to lay down their verbal weapons and to unite in the common and most important cause—the good of America and the good of universal freedom through peace.

"WHAT'M I DOIN' HERE?"

The college year is passing. What are we receiving for our $495.55?

Have we learned anything? Have we developed any skills? Have we read any books? Have we used our full abilities? Have we been stimulated to do "our best"? Do we know any more about our chosen profession? Are we more socially poised? Have we helped someone else?

Few of us can say anything but No . . . No . . . No! Why? Everyone has his own theory about what is wrong with High Point College . . . "The professors don't care," or "The students lack interest," or "There is no intellectual charge," and on and on and on.

And an important factor that most of us forget as students is the tremendous lack of purpose. For example, most girls are either planning to major in education or business—to be teachers or secretaries. But in reality, most girls dream of marrying an ivy-league businessman, living on Country Club Lane, and enjoying a life of leisure (with a maid included). Few of us realize that not only do men spend all of their lives working, but very few women get through life without a profession. (Femininity may be going "out-of-style," but so is the man-of-the-house's salary.)

College men know that they, as future bread-winners, will have to have the skill and knowledge to hold down a good-paying job in today's inflation-flushed world. Yet, grades are dropping lower than morale or stick-to-it-ness. A college diploma does not represent knowledge mastered but perfection at memorizing in most cases.

Something must motivate us to achieve higher learning. Something must stir our energies.

Dr. Wendell Patton recently described college as "an OPPORTUNITY." College should not be a "fact-factor" or an "egghead-heaven." It should be a prohibition center or a party parade. It is "an opportunity."

Roving Around

by FOOTLOOSE

Well, after the weeks of excitement and the election . . . here we go again.

It's surely nice to see Roberts Hall tower all glow again. The downtown merchant who sold enough specialties to replace those burned out really made a good haul. I'd say . . .

Seems that we have some mighty strong ping-pong players on campus. Evidence: the chipped and/or cracked ping-pong paddles in the Student Center. Let's take it easy . . . PLEASE . . .

Here's one from the finely-defined department: Elephant! An animal occurring in one of three forms, depending on whether you are on a safari, working on a church bureau committee, or attending a weekend party! . . .

And from the "In-Case-You-Might-Have-Forgetting" Department: The exhibits in the library are planned to be interesting and informative to the student body. Let's give these exhibits, many of which are done by sophomore students, more of the attention they deserve . . .

November ninth will long remain a memorable night on our campus. A word of congratulations to all on their new pledges . . .

And speaking of dates, we bet that the Fresh won't forget November ninth, when they were allowed to remove those infamous sun-up to sun-down rain-strained purple and white menues—their beanies, of course. Congratulations, gang, you came through the ordeal.

Congratulations also to the fifteen finalists in the Miss HPC contest, and good luck to all of them. Well, not to dash off, but just remembered that I received a letter message from the Dean of Students. "THESE DAYS AGO which I better attend to . . . I'd just love a ten-day vacation, but Siberia is cold of cold at this time of year . . ."

BETTER CITY-COLLEGE RELATIONS

by DAN EARNHARDT

Editor's Note: First in a series of articles on the progress of student efforts to bring about a better relationship between the city and the college.

After a great deal of planning and deliberation, the Senate branch of the Student Legislature of High Point College has organized a program to foster better city-college relations. The action is headed by Jimmy Edwards, president of the Senate, and this report. After action is under the counseled guidance of President Patton at the college and leading men of the city. Planning for the directions of advancement that the program has taken thus far.

A conference was held with the presidents of HPC where suggestions were voiced concerning the desires of both the president and the students for better town relations, and the following points were taken as immediate objectives, with the understanding of future modification.

Teams of students will approach the leading business and civic leaders in High Point with the proposals herein stated, with the desire of obtaining their suggestions and advice on carrying them out to the fullest extent.

These teams of students will offer suggestions concerning the possible increase in advertising the college by signs being placed at strategic points around town, directing people to the college.

Ideas will be heard concerning the possible installation of a personal counseling service for High Point residents. A service of this type was successfully initiated at Hickory, N.C., by the board of trustees at Lenoir Rhyne College. (President Patton was an active member of this board.)

Identification and improvement of the college campus by interested students working with the science department and civic organizations, in particular garden clubs, will be another facet of the program.

Possible arrangements concerning reduced theatre rates and better merchant relations in general are other factors being investigated.

The results of such a program will be the feeling of this reporter and all concerned that relations between the school and the city are progressing, but we want to make certain that the students of the college do more than their part in bringing this about. We are always open to constructive suggestions about items that HPC students feel should be initiated and emphasized.

THE RETIREMENT OF A BEANIE

Dear Editors:

November 9 will be remembered as "B-Day" at High Point College. The Student Government Association has finally given the word that freshmen will no longer be required to wear beanies on campus.

Just ask any freshman what he thinks of his beanie. Of course you will get different responses, (some of them not so nice), but that is understandable. However, there is a mutual feeling of one thing—nobody can see the point in wearing them.

Perhaps some day we can look at our duty beanies and think of our experiences during our first year of college life. These beanies may bring back memories that will never be forgotten.

Personally, my feelings are like that of the young child leaving the dentist's office. It was rough for a while, but now it's all over with.

Sincerely,
Bergie Hatcher

MY HEART CRIES OUT

Stars,
Moon,
Darkness finds its wayward path
Into the night of blissful solitude.
Mountains punctuated from the darkness
Seem to be thrilled that night
Has come too soon.

Stars,
Moon,
Drapes of black are spread across the Evening skies,
And silence is beckoned into rest—

But yet my heart cries out with pain for that which I left undone,

When all my expectations could have brought me peace!

I left it undone and now it is too late!

Why must darkness come too soon?

Professor Defends Essay Examinations

Dear Editors:

Discussion-questions on English examinations in literature are not popular among today's college students, who, like non-students and others about them, have blossomed (or wilted) in an age of comic-books and television. Contemporary English usage is incredibly thin and unimaginative.

Our culture, alas, lives in pictures, not in words. In 1960 we write with a blurred vagueness and an illiterate nonchalance. A professor can acquiesce in the low levels of present-day communication—in the widespread, intellectually sub-standard responses—if he eyes only a high rating in a popularity-poll among his students.

He can fill his classes with plus-and-minus markers; he can choose the easy way out for himself and the correspondingly no-way-out for his students, meaning a passing grade for sloth, ignorance, and incompetence. In this respect, I do not choose to barter my professional ideals for a soothing mess of ephemeral potage.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Bibler

The Significance Of Leadership

Editor's note: The following is the list of beliefs concerning leadership of High Point College. They are printed in a brochure titled "The Philosophy of a College" available to all interested persons.

- The following are the beliefs:
1. That the need for true leadership in our schools, churches, industries, communities — in all areas of human relations — is greater than in any previous period of history. That the very existence of our world may well depend upon the quality of this leadership.
 2. That our world has become one of technology and rapid change. In this nuclear age we are in danger of being hypnotized by the awesome prowess of the physical sciences and the incantations of digital computers, rather than guided by the pulse of the social sciences, the heartbeat of the humanities and the wisdom of religion.
 3. That the true leaders of tomorrow will be called upon to supply the morality and ethics for our brave new world of technology; that there exists, therefore, a tremendous responsibility for the preparation of these leaders.
 4. That no greater purpose or more difficult task lies ahead than that of preparing men and women for the roles of leadership and equipping them to add the spiritual and moral dimensions to tomorrow's world of limitless horizons.
 5. That leaders are made—not born. That with the great body of knowledge developing in group dynamics, decision making, and leadership principles, colleges can not only supply this knowledge but can provide laboratories in applied leadership where these skills can be practiced under the watchful eye of trained leaders.
 6. That education for nothing more than an immediate vocation is a costly waste; that those who will rise to strategic positions of leadership and responsibility will be those who are capable of producing through other people rather than through technical skills alone.
 7. That a small, church-related liberal arts institution is best equipped to provide a quality education for leadership . . . to practice democracy—the rule of the majority. The interpretations of the meaning of democracy by these delightful Alabamians are odd, to say the least!
- The Captain finds, however, that the East is not so easily converted to western way of life as he hoped. The villagers do not want the school house he is supposed to build for them under Plan B, but want a tea-house instead a club for leisure enjoyment.
- They reason that the majority of the citizens is too old to go to school. The majority wish a tea-house. And under democracy

"WHAT I DOIN' HERE?"

I found a list titled "The Education for All American Youth" that I had clipped out of a magazine. I do not have the author's name, but the purposes or needs listed are worthy of sharing:

- All youth need—
1. To develop salable skill.
 2. Good health and physical fitness.
 3. To understand the duties and rights of citizenship.
 4. To understand the significance of the family for the individual and society.
 5. To know how to obey gods and services intelligently.
 6. To understand the influence of science on human life.
 7. An appreciation of literature, art, music, and nature.
 8. To be able to use leisure time well and budget it wisely.
 9. To develop respect for other persons.
 10. To grow in the ability to think rationally.
- The college year is passing. What are we receiving for our $495.55? . . . opportunity, perhaps.

Pi Kappa Alpha Memorial Foundation Honors HPC

Robert L. McLeod, Jr., the executive vice president of the Pi Kappa Alpha Memorial Foundation, recently announced the presentation of a one-year terminal scholarship for the 1960-61 academic year.

The foundation is part of the Pi Kappa Alpha National Fraternity. The main objective of the organization is to improve scholarship throughout all fraternities and to assist needy students.

Out of 117 institutions in 38 states in consideration, HPC was among the 12 chosen for this honor and opportunity.

The recipient must meet the following qualifications: he must be a worthy fraternity sophomore of fine Christian character, must display leadership, be of financial need, and must also maintain a C average.

Each fraternity on campus will submit the names of two of its brothers who meet the qualifications. The recipient will be selected from among those by the college committee on student aid and will be notified in the near future.

"Charlie" McCorkle

Leadership Stressed At West. Maryland

Westminster, Md. (LP)—Designed to study the basic problems which confront campus student leaders, Western Maryland's third annual Leadership Conference this year dealt with two primary objectives. According to a conference report, released here recently, the first objective noted the necessity to draw more people into leadership positions by:

1. Encouraging campus organizations to explore and utilize all their leadership potential.
2. Expanding the interest in, and membership of the Student Government Association and its committees.
3. Encouraging more enthusiasm for, and participation in class activities.

The second objective was to better equip the present leaders for the positions they now occupy by:

1. Teaching them to delegate responsibility.
2. Informing leaders of campus problems, telling them what is being done, and encouraging them to suggest possible solutions.
3. Acquainting them with the faculty.

4. Acquainting them with the college objectives, thus enabling them to come and evaluate their own objectives.

Campus Profile Baseball Captain Is Versatile

For those of you who have spent only a short amount of time on our campus and still do not recognize Charlie McCorkle we offer you a card "Where have you been?" Because indeed you have overlooked one of our top personalities and sharpest men.

Whether you are looking for a 1943 copper penny or a good dentist in town, just look up Charlie and if he cannot help you he will introduce you to someone who can.

North Carolina (one caution light and mail when the postman gets through) Charlie has never claimed to be anything more than just a wholesome country boy. And yet we can find this hard to believe when we examine his merits: captain of the Purple Panthers baseball team, past president of the Physical Education Majors Club, and Head Proctor at McCulloch Hall. When we add these distinctions to a top-flight friend of all and notice that he manages to keep quite a healthy academic average, we realize, as he is quite a young man, "Claz," as he is commonly referred to, is a great exponent of common home sense and his ability to utilize this asset has carried him a long way and will continue to do so.

Rumor has it that if the Baptists and the Methodists ever had an all out conflict on our campus that "Claz" would most certainly be asked to head the peace delegation. In closing, we would like to remind all that if in need of a favor, advice, or just a good anecdote, see Charlie because we guarantee help. And when you next see him, say hello because though he may be going in all different ways at once, he is never too busy to return the greeting and add a few lines.

Fraternities Hold Fall Rush Parties

October 21, was the long awaited moment in the lives of non-Fraternity boys on the campus of High Point College. This was the date that began fraternity rush. Fraternities are one of the main phases of campus life.

Rush began with a meeting in the auditorium. This meeting was held for the purpose of acquainting the boys with the ideals and standards upheld by our six fraternities. One hundred and 45 boys were present. A roll was made of these boys and sent to each fraternity. This aided the brothers in selecting prospective pledges.

The first parties were informal and stag. Each fraternity took a night and entertained the boys in various ways at points near and around High Point. The parties were given in this order: Wednesday, October 26, Delta Sig; Thursday, October 27, IAE; Friday, October 28, Theta Chi; Monday, October 31, Lambda Chi; Tuesday, November 1, Sig Eps; Wednesday, November 2, Phi K.

These parties were given so that the brothers and russees could meet each other and ask unwelcome questions. After the parties the brothers met and made a list of russees that they wanted to invite to their drag parties.

The drag parties were all given Saturday, November 5. The boys could attend as many parties as they received invitations from; however, the invitations were imperative. The object was to be narrowing their choice to one or two. These parties were held in various clubs around High Point. They were decorated by the brothers in decorations pertaining to this season. The music was provided by various combos. The girls attending were very impressed by the thoughtfulness of each of the fraternities.

After the drag parties, the fraternities met and cut their lists to the number of pledges they could take.

Formal rush began Sunday at noon. Silence was the main object of formal rush. This extended until 6:00 p.m. Monday night.

Each boy having made his choice was greeted warmly by his chosen fraternity. Much whooping and noise making blending with the fraternity song brought the formal rush season to a close.

Fraternity Philanthropies and Projects

In an effort to make us aware of the services which fraternities render, the Panhellenic Council is attempting to point these out.

The Council has compiled a list of the local services which include the following: making Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets, sending clothes abroad, supplying money to the needy for school lunches, visiting the homes for the aged, and helping any civic organizations with drives. Each fraternity, in cooperation with the social committee of the college, is planning an activity which is aimed toward raising the cultural level of our school. One fraternity has started placing centerpieces on the tables in the cafeteria for Sunday lunch while another fraternity has planned a tea for Sunday, December 4. This tea, which is to be held in the Panhellenic House, is opened to the entire student body.

Not only are activities participated in and services rendered locally, but also on a national and international scale.

Working for the cerebral palsied is the overall philanthropy of the Alpha Gamma Delta Fraternity. The international fraternity makes its contribution of $6,000 annually through the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults. The fund provides fellowships for trainees in a counselor training program, is a pioneer venture. In this program, job counselors and job placement specialists learn special techniques for meeting the work needs of the handicapped. In the local service phase of the project, the members have the privilege of giving service, equipment and supplies in their communities.

Wise Sayings

From Poor Richard's Almanac

Keep your eyes wide open before marriage, half shut afterwards. There may keep a secret if two of them are dead.

Proof of gold is fire; the proof of a woman, gold; the proof of a man, a woman.

To err is human, to repent divine; to persist devilish. He that falls in love with himself will have no rivals.

Administration Busy with Projects

Are you aware of the vast amount of work that goes on in the office of Endowment and Development? Up to date, Dr. Herbert H. Peterson has either completed or is presently working on thirteen projects for the betterment of High Point College.

The first of these was the Book of Remembrance which is placed in the Wren Memorial Library. Already four North Carolina people have been remembered by friends of the college, and this has been done in the High Point College Book of Remembrance. The Book was donated in the memory of parents of someone connected closely with the college.

Second, is a growing plan for Annual Giving, and this is basically an Alumni program which is never completed. This plan is now being used in colleges and universities all over the USA. It constitutes trying to get Alumni and friends of HPC to give at least a small amount each year.

Another proposal that will be instituted soon is the Associates Program, a plan to bring outstanding men and women of the community into closer contact with the college. The purpose of the associates is not only to help develop the college, but also to develop better understanding and cooperation between distinguished leaders of High Point, and High Point College.

Third, Fund Raising, another project, constitutes raising money for additional building on the campus. At the present time plans are under way for the erection of a number of new buildings on the campus. Plans include our hopes for a new dormitory for a hundred men, and a new physical science building at the estimated cost of a million two hundred thousand dollars. Besides this, there are high hopes for an industrial and new Home Economics facilities.

In the City of High Point, the old, gracious southern homes are being torn down to make room for new construction. The acquiring of one of these homes for the use of the college is another project on hand. The building would provide Dr. Patton with suitable quarters for his Management Development Program. It would make possible the establishment of a guidance center for the Methodist students of high schools of North Carolina. It could be used by Mr. Whicker and Mr. Broadway, and other guidance personnel for testing, and for discussing plans and problems with prospective college students. This would be a fine place for such work, because there would be a minimum of distraction.

Sixth on the list of projects is the Fellow Program. A Fellow is one who shares with another in official dignity, or in the performance of work. He usually receives no emolument and has no part in the governing of the School. As matters now stand, there are ten men or women who qualify as a Fellow of High Point College for the current year.

Next, Life Income, was discussed in the last issue of this paper. The eighth, then, is a program of Life Insurance for Seniors. The program has been made available to the members of the Senior class services of the vice-president of the Alumni Association of High Point College. Through him, a policy was made available at an unusually low rate. While it was not mandatory, it did make possible that a student could designate High Point College as part beneficiary.

Living Endowment, the ninth plan, has been in effect for some time. In this particular plan, for instance, anyone who gives the college even $50 a year, is giving the equivalent of five per cent on a thousand dollars. This kind of endowment is not put into a fund, but "lives" because you still have the basic money to operate your business on.

There is a Parent Campaign, too. As its name signifies, this would be directed toward parents of students. Since a High Point College student pays only about 74% of the cost of his education, the other 26% must come from somewhere. In this plan, parents who can afford it, and who can profit tax-wise on a contribution, may do so through gifts to High Point College, through this Parent Campaign.

The college is interested in acquiring pieces of property that border on the campus.

The college needs room to expand, and this could be one way for expansion. In the thinking now are some suggestions on this particular piece of work.

Dr. Peterson put at his first task when he was appointed Director of Endowment and Development, the obtaining of wills for the benefit of the college. In the month of October alone, he was able to locate three wills naming High Point College as beneficiary.

Finally, there are some pledges to the college still outstanding, some date from as far back as March, 1953. Dr. Peterson has pledged to Dr. Patton that he will collect $5,000.00 of these outstanding pledges between July 1, 1960 and June 30, 1961.

Although it is apparent that the director of Endowment and Development is busy with many projects, this is not the entire story. He has just finished five lectures in Greensboro, he broadcasts every Sunday morning from 10 to 10:30 on WFHE, and Thanksgiving week he is doing five morning devotions from 8:40 to 8:50 over Station WMFH. Certainly we commend Dr. Peterson for his fine work on our campus and in the community.

Berkis Has Article Published

Dr. Alexander V. Berkis, Associate Professor of History at High Point College, had an article entitled "The Reign of Ernst Biron in Russia and Courland" published in the September, 1960 issue of the Latvian educational journal Akademiska Dzive (Academic Life).

Dr. Berkis is a native of Latvia having once been a lawyer in that country before it was completely taken over by Russia. Dr. Berkis has been in the United States since the early 1950s and studied at the University of Wisconsin prior to his appointment to the History Department of High Point College in 1958.

den at hospitals. Individual groups are encouraged to select programs best suited to their interests and abilities, and all projects are not limited to children; but all are trying to live up to our Creed, "To lead those less fortunate a helping hand..."

Zeta Tau Alpha has continued its service to the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, making possible additions to the Equipment Manual for Cerebral Palsied Children. Copies of the Manual have been sent to clinics in this country and all around the world.

Two other projects were financed by Zeta Tau Alpha and completed this biennium under the auspices of the National Society, namely:

Parent Education Visual Aid Series: a set of five film strips with accompanying explanatory cards designed to help and inform parents of cerebral palsied children about "any" areas in which parents need to help their handicapped youngsters in order to be able to make everyday living and "any" problems easier for them.

Parent Education Booklet: dealing with the problem of cerebral palsy as it must be faced by the parents of a handicapped child.

Zeta Tau Alpha Foundation offers annually scholarships to worthy students, primarily on the undergraduate level with special emphasis on the field of education. During the biennium about 40 such scholarships were made available.

SABINO COPS TITLE

Mike Sabino won the NAIA District 26 cross-country meet at Catawba College. There were fine schools taking part in the meet, with about 30 boys running. Mike's time for the grueling four-mile course was 22 minutes and four seconds. The previous district record, for the course, in competition is 22 minutes and 11 seconds. This means that Mike broke the record by seven seconds. The meet was held on November first.

On November 7, the State cross-country meet was held at State College in Raleigh. There were two divisions in this meet. The freshmen runners competed in a two-mile race and then the upper-classmen endured a four-mile test. The freshmen and upper-class first places were taken by runners from U.N.C. Mike Sabino took third place in this meet. His time for this four miles was 21 minutes and 56 seconds.

PHI MU'S VICTORIOUS

The Phi Mu sorority took an impressive(?) victory away from the KD's. The only game score came in a two-mile race on a touch-down run by Mary Brooks. The attempt for the extra point was no good and the 6 to 0 score held true through the remainder of the game.

Both teams provided a lot of fun and entertainment for those who attended as spectators. These girls put in a lot of hard work in their attempt to master the game of football. They are certainly due recognition for their efforts. Congratulations to the victors.

BASKETBALL SEASON CLOSE

The first HPC basketball game will be played within the next three weeks. The team is going to need a lot of support from the students. Everyone please do your share in contributing to the needed school spirit. The next edition of the HI-PO will feature the basketball team on its sports page.

ODD-BALLS ARE PIGSKIN CHAMPS—INTRAMURALS

Intramural director Frank Hassell announced that the Odd-Balls are the new champs of intramural football. The Odd-Balls went undefeated, nursing out the Sig Eps and Delta Sigs for the championship.

The standings (final):

Odd-Balls	6	0	0	1,000
Sigma Phi Epsilon	4	2	0	667
Delta Sigma Phi	3	2	1	600
Pi Kappa Alpha	2	4	0	333
Lambda Chi Alpha	2	4	0	333
Tau Kappa Epsilon	1	3	2	250
Theta Chi	1	4	1	200

Director Hassell also announced the All-Sar football squad, picked from all seven teams. They were chosen by playing ability and sportsmanship.

All-sar football team:

Mickey Dean	Sigma Phi Epsilon	Odd-Balls
Hal Snyder	Theta Chi
Haywood Edmunson	Tau Kappa Epsilon
Don Reber	Odd-Balls
George Srouer	Lambda Chi Alpha
Don Cashion	Delta Sigma Phi
Jerry Koontz	Theta Chi
Don Schmitt	Pi Kappa Alpha
Gary Thornburg

On November 8 the champion Odd-Balls played a team of all-stars selected from the fraternities. The two teams battled to a 0-0 deadlock. The All-Stars made three first downs, and the Odd-Balls were a warded one on a penalty. Quarterback Don Cashion completed two passes to Mickey Dean and one to Carroll Hawkins. Cashion missed his big chance for victory by firing over Mickey Dean's head with 26 seconds to go.

PRO CAGE NEWS—BASKETBALL

The St. Louis Hawks and Boston Celtics are again favored to win the titles in the National Basketball Association. Minneapolis has moved its franchise to Los Angeles and will seek its fortunes on the West Coast. Oscar Robertson of the Cincinnati Royals and Jerry West of the Los Angeles Lakers seem to have made the switch from college hall to the pros quite successfully. Veteran stars Charlie Share, George Yardley, and Slater Martin will not be playing this year.

Women's Intramurals In Full Swing Now!

The girls intramural program at High Point College is in a state of expansion. Program changes have already resulted in a wider variety of activities, and are emphasizing informal participation as well as organized competition.

This year the girls intramural program is being directed by Mrs. McCall of the Physical Education Department. Recently the Women's Athletic Association of High Point College elected the following officers: President, Nancy Campbell; Vice President, Janet Stone; Secretary, Louise Stokes; Treasurer, Nelda Price; Publicity Chairman, Arlene Lauzere. The Intramural Council consists of Doris Ann Joyce, Betty Beachamp, Louise Stokes, Arlene Lauzere, and Nancy Campbell.

Several of the girls attended the state convention of the Athletic and Recreation Federation of College Women, held November 4 at Wake Forest College. Most of the program was of the discussion type with topics such as: Awards for Intramural Program, Recent Trends in the Intramural Program, and Intramural Tournament.

At the present the activities of the group include pingpong and badminton. The play-offs will be held November 14, 16, and 21. They will be of the single elimination type.

Plans for volleyball have also been made with the play-offs coming on December 5, 7, 12, and 14. It will be double elimination. Plans for activities after Christmas are incomplete.

Six points are allotted for each victory.

For minor sports, the points are given out in this way: 10 points for entering; 20 for first place in singles, and 10 for first place in doubles; 16 points for second place in singles, and eight for second place in doubles; 12 points for third place in singles, and six for third in doubles; eight points for fourth in singles, and four points for fourth place in doubles.

It is hoped that interest in intramurals will improve. The intramural program can only be what the students make it.

Mike Sabino, of New Jersey, brought recognition to HPC campus by winning the NAIA District 26 cross-country meet at Catawba College.

Pageant Held

by JUDY ROGERS

Tuesday night saw the presentation of the annual Miss High Point College Pageant. The event was the climax of much hard work on the part of contestants and all the other people connected with the pageant. The chairman of the pageant was Charles Carroll; in charge of the parade was Margo Brewer; Nelda Murray was responsible for the tea and dinner for the contestants; Anne Welborn headed the committee which obtained the gifts for Miss HPC; Joanne Courie coached the contestants and Judy Fisher directed the talent portion of the pageant; Joan Barlett was in charge of publicity; Dave Holmes was chairman of the talent committee; Diane Lanier headed the stage crew; Bill Pritchard was responsible for the scenery; June Lee headed the crew that worked on lights; and Dot Barrick obtained the judges.

The judges were Mrs. Edwin Lippman, owner of Tobias; Mr. Raleigh Dingman, principal of Northeast Junior High; and Mr. Norman Schwartz, manager of Rousey. They were present at the tea and dinner for the five contestants. At this time the judges had a chance to meet the girls and judge on personality. The tea and dinner were preceded by the parade which presented the contestants to the general public.

The pageant opened at 8:00 p.m. with Charles Carroll welcoming the audience and introducing the Master of Ceremonies, Frank Smith. Mr. Smith in turn introduced Jerri Martin, Miss HPC of 1960, who did a baton dance. This was followed by a presentation of the contestants.

The general presentation of contestants was followed by the talent portion of the pageant, each girl being allowed four minutes. Beth Parks opened with a modern jazz comedy about a country girl coming to town; she was followed by John Thomas, who did a medley of Al Jolson songs in a song and dance routine. Libby Graham presented a song skit about three types of girls who try out for a Broadway Production; Margaret Hester did a modern dance; Judy Bengé presented a dramatic monologue; Louella Richards sang "I can't say No" from OKLAHOMA; Suzanne Ballard demonstrated in a dance how not to study on a dismal Sunday afternoon; Linda Ferran presented a fashion show of clothes she had made; Jackie Creech sang "Buttons and Bows"; Mary Lou Troutman sang "Alice Blue Gown"; Gail Geyer did a modern dance to "New You"; Sue Williamson did a pantomime to "I want to be Evil"; Vivianne "Smiley" Lloyd sang "I'm Always True to you in my Fashion"; Annette Young did a humorous monologue; and Doris Ann Joyce sang "Take Me out to the Ball Game."

During the intermission the Four Pointers sang in a barbershop quartet and the M. C. presented Miss North Carolina of 1961, Ann Farrington Herring. After the intermission the contestants were again presented, this time in evening dresses. Then Miss North Carolina talked about her experiences in Atlantic City during the Miss America Pageant while the judges decided upon the five finalists.

With much excitement and suspense the five finalists were announced: Libby Graham, Louella Richards, Linda Ferran, Gail Geyer, and Vivianne Lloyd. While the five finalists were all on stage, the wardrobe for the Miss HPC was presented by Lorna Dickson, Sandra Hooks, Mini Modlin, Betty Neal, and Marilyn Zoeller.

Then Miss Congeniality was announced: Jean Thomas, who was presented a skirt and sweater.

Miss HPC-1960, Miss Jerri Martin gave her farewell address while the judges picked the new Miss HPC 1961. When she had finished, Frank Smith announced the queen and her court. Fourth runner-up was Vivianne Lloyd, Linda Ferran was third runner-up, Libby Graham was second runner-up, and Lou Richards was first runner-up. The new queen, Miss High Point College 1961, a Miss Gail Geyer, a freshman, Miss North Carolina placed a sash around her shoulders, and Jerri Martin crowned the new queen.

Kappa Delta and Theta Chi Win Greek Sing

On December 2, Memorial Auditorium was the scene of HPC's first Greek Sing. The ten Greek organizations on campus entertained the audience with a wide variety of musical selections. The winning sorority, Kappa Delta, captured the trophy with a beautiful love song "There Are Such Things" and a rousing folk tune "Lollytoddum." Theta Chi Fraternity won with "Dreaming of Theta Chi" and "White Christmas." Judges for the occasion were: Mr. Roger Cole, Henry Whipple, and Dr. Lew Lewis. The sing, which was sponsored by the Panhellenic and Interfraternity councils, will be held again next fall.

Baltimore Orch. Gives Concert

The first Community Concert for this year was the performance of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, directed by Peter Herman Adler, with soloists, Frances Yeend and Charles O'Neill.

Tar Heel Governor Tapped

The appointment of Luther Hartwell Hodges as Secretary of Commerce was announced jointly by the North Carolina Governor and President-Elect Kennedy at a news conference several weeks ago.

The move came as no great surprise to political analysts who had predicted the Tar Heel Governor's reserved cabinet seat soon after Kennedy's victory. Kennedy described Hodges as a man of great competence who shall bring a wealth of experience and esteem to the office.

Hodges grew up as a meager farm boy who learned at an early age the value of an honest and industrious livelihood. On his own merits he worked his way through the University of North Carolina and was later on to be awarded an honorary doctorate from High Point College.

His alert business mind picked up the idea of an industrialized South long before Wall Street financiers could swallow the notion. For 17 years he worked with Marshall Field and Company and succeeded in moulding this organization into a textile empire.

Luther Hodges became Vice-President of Marshall Field before he decided in 1952 to enter the political arena. With only a short breath of political experience, Luther Hodges was elected Lieutenant Governor in 1952. Two years later when Governor William Umstead died, the gray-haired but game Lieutenant Governor stepped into the driver's seat and rapidly set out to make his dream come true.

In six years Luther Hodges has carried North Carolina up the ladder of Southern Leadership. In short, he has wooed the Northern Industrialist South to the tune of 1 billion dollars and carried some oppressed North Carolina farmers into high paying industry.

His ability as a businessman and his constant goal of perfection in business and politics alike will bring new energy to an always competitive International Market.

Republicans and Democrats alike acknowledge the Hodges Appointment as a strong move in terms of the National Interest. As a middle-of-the-road Conservative, Hodges will do much to promote Liberal and Conservative cohesion within Kennedy's Cabinet.

New Plans for Education Program

Something exciting is happening on our campus. This "something" is the planning which is now going on for the new program for Education for Leadership, scheduled for christening in the 1951 Fall Semester.

Perhaps there are many of you who don't understand exactly what this program will consist of, or who don't realize that much has been and is being done to translate this intangible dream into actual reality.

For your benefit then, I'll try as best I can to define the program. One reason why this is so difficult is because this program is something entirely new and different. The whole project is so abstract that one almost has to experience it to comprehend it. Education for Leadership has as its main objective the principle of emotional as well as intellectual learning.

It is believed that emotional learning and training is necessary for true intellectual learning to be possible, to make a real impression on the students' mind, to be applied successfully in expedition to this end is a form of group psychotherapy, and sensitivity training in which the person involved can actually feel what happens in a group, then relate it to life.

Well, what does happen when a number of people are combined into one body? Clear definition of this process is almost impossible, but the closest I can come is to say that those people use their individual personalities and strive together to sublimate their own ideas and thoughts into a single personality which is superior to their former independent personalities.

There is a pressure exerted upon each member by the fact of his knowledge of his duty to the group. This tension is then diverted into interaction and co-related thought. Perhaps this process could best be described as a sort of current running from one mind to another. The program is designed to create an atmosphere conducive to application in the "current" process in the daily lives of the participants, so that they are enabled to better their lives and those of their fellows. When one is made to see the components of leadership at work, he is better able to be a leader in any field.

Now as to what activity is going on to get this actual curriculum at High Point College, let me just say, "Plenty." Dr. Wendell Patton spent four weeks in New York City this past summer in just such a program as the one described above.

More recently, he made another trip to New York to talk with various people who could in some way aid HPC in obtaining the desired program. A few were the Education Editor of the New York Times, Mr. Heekinger, the Director of Education for Time, Life and Fortune, Mrs. Mary Johnson Tweedie, a prominent public relations firm, the Director of the National Training Laboratory, Dr. Lee Bradford, and the Ford Foundation.

Another person with whom our President met was May William Payson. Mr. Payson is an outstanding authority in the field of creating corporate images with which the public can relate certain articles or products. It is hoped he will do a public image of the theme of High Point College's new plan and also, a fund raising brochure. Some of the methods we might use to get the ball rolling in Education for Leadership are as follows:

1. The setting up of an advisory committee on leadership which would be composed of national leaders in the fields of religion, government, etc.
 2. Putting the new program in the catalogue.
 3. Formation of a special section on leadership in our library.
- Efforts are now being made to contact one of the few persons in the country who are capable of directing such a program.

Dr. Patton feels that offering scholarships to qualified students will be possible.

The program will be highly selective and demanding of the students who wish to enter it. Those who participate will probably have to pay no extra tuition charge, but it is likely that they will be asked to take part in related extra-curricular activities, preferably in positions of leadership.

Christmas Thoughts

Just Look

For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son.

Just think! Only two more weeks till we go home for Christmas. What do you first think of when you think of Christmas?

—a rest from school

—having a big time!

—worrying about the thousands of cards and gifts you will have to buy!

Well, most of us have the wrong idea. Christmas is the giving, not the receiving. Have you ever thought of what the world would be like if there hadn't been a Christmas? We would have to make our own. The world couldn't have stood the strain. Christmas is a time of goodwill, a time when we give of ourselves to others, a time when we forget ourselves. If we could only have the spirit of Christmas all year the unselfish love of the Saviour would exemplify the lives of His followers.

This is the day of the Prince of Peace. It is the time to cast aside all our worries and all our anxieties and to hear the message—"Glory to God in the Highest... Peace on Earth."

One day a mother was standing with her youngest in a department store. Dressed in simple but very neat clothes, they obviously did not have enough money to buy presents. They were not as fortunate as many of us who have our trees loaded with gifts. They were going to the department store to see the beautiful gifts that others were going to get.

Let us resolve to give thanks not only in word but also in deed. As God has given us, let us resolve to give to our fellow men. Let us never lose sight of the very heart of Christmas. The true and the commercialism of the season try to cover the message that God would have us see as He gives His Son to the world. As God gave love to the world, let us, practice it.

Think of all the things for which we have to be thankful. Think of how good God has been to us. How fortunate we are to be able to think clearly. So often we forget about the many who are mentally ill and who have not had the opportunity to be a part of their family circle and to enjoy the things of Christmas as we have. We who have the power to see have to thank God that we have been able to enjoy the candle light and the beautiful flowers and the looks of anticipation and the smiles of joy on the faces of children?

As you prepare for the season ahead remember this—Christmas is Spirit of Christmas?

To the Editors of the Hi-Po

The decorated Christmas trees, the wrapped gifts, the carols, the snow, the "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year," and Christmas cards are all component parts of the Spirit of Christmas. But these are only external resemblances of the true spirit of Christmas.

An underlying truth of the Spirit of Christmas is revealed through intangible objects. Thoughts that drive us back many centuries to an inn in Bethlehem should help us to visualize what Christmas really is. There should be an unending joy in our hearts for the great event which took place on that cold winter's night.

Then, if we possess this joy, we should transmit it to our neighbor and let him taste the Spirit of Christmas. Whittier says that the joy that you give to others is the joy that comes back to you.

Christmas should be a good time, a kind, forgiving, generous, pleasant time, a time when men and women want to open their hearts freely, both to man and to God.

To feel the Spirit of Christmas, we must not first seek happiness, but bestow it, for it will always come to us.

Next, we should be willing to forget what we have done for others, and think what others have done for us. We need to sow a few seeds of happiness, and to see that other people are human beings, too.

If we are willing to stop and consider the needs and desires of the unfortunate, give to them that which we have, then the brightened faces we see will be our reward of a true Spirit of Christmas.

As Christmas approaches, let us have a keen outlook for those we can help. Believe that love is the strongest thing in the world—stronger than hate, stronger than evil, then we can keep Christmas.

The "Spirit of Christmas" will shine as a symbol of life, joy, and peace on earth—everlasting.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Bibler

"YES, I FIND IT A LOT EASIER TO GET DATES NOW THAN I HAVE A CAR!"

Why Leadership

Leadership is necessary in any institution, administration, or organization. A blind man must have a dog or guide to be his leader. A trained animal must have a leader or trainer to guide his acts. So is the case of a college—a college without leadership is a college without a purpose. Leaders influence, guide, and correct our manner of living. Our purpose is to wander aimlessly without a purpose.

The question may arise, "Who should be leaders?" This question may bring debate and conflict. Every one cannot be a leader, but by participating in a leadership program one can make a program effective. A leader without followers accomplishes very little. With leadership our college will soar to new heights, bring honor and integrity to each student and the college. Leadership promotes purpose, and purpose promotes better life.

by JOAN SHOCKEY

While attending High Point College where he received his A. B. degree in 1946, Rev. Hips took an active part in campus life.

During his four years here he was editor of the Hi-Po for two years, editor of the college yearbook, and a member of the student council. He mentioned only a few honors. He was also president of the following: Ministerial Fraternity, Methodist Student Fellowship, Student Religious Council, Pan Hellenic Council and Delta Alpha Epsilon Fraternity.

After graduation from High Point, he went on to the Divinity School of Duke University where he received his B.D. degree in 1949, majoring in Christian Ethics. He received many honors here too numerous to mention, including the following interesting items. Upon graduation from the Divinity School of Duke, the faculty awarded an Honorary Degree of Doctor of Christian Rhetoric in recognition of his leadership in recognition especially folk dancing, during his student years at Duke. Of course, this was all in fun.

In 1959, he was co-author of A World of Fun—Manual of Instruction for World of Fun Records. Since 1949, Rev. Hips has been the Minister of Education at the West Main Street Methodist Church in Greensboro and is a popular speaker, teacher, and counsellor to youth.

New Plans for Mountain Program

The Mountain Program, which has been a part of the curriculum for many years, is being revised to meet the needs of the modern student. The new plan will include more practical applications and will be more closely integrated with the other subjects of the curriculum. The Mountain Program is a unique and valuable part of the curriculum, and it is important that it be kept up-to-date and relevant to the needs of the students. The new plan will be implemented in the fall of 1970, and it is hoped that it will be well-received by both students and teachers.

Mrs. McClure

New Housemother is Well-liked on Campus

"Hello, I just thought I'd drop by to see that you are getting along all right" is a common nicety of the New Resident Dormitory Counselor for Women's Hall . . . Mrs. McClure. She comes to High Point College from Spindale, N. C., where she was connected with a wholesale and retail flower business.

Mrs. McClure was born in Manchester, Georgia, but has lived in the Tar Heel State for over 25 years. She is the mother of three grown children who are all married and living in different parts of the state.

She attended Piedmont College in Dorchester, Georgia.

Her hobbies include collecting glassware and antique amethyst glassware. Another "hobby" is taking care of over 200 girls.

Since her job at HPC began, she has been busy making Women's Hall, Mrs. McClure planted a bed of passives for springtime. She put the Music line on the front door and worked on all the Christmas decorations for the dorm. She is always amiable and willing to do all that she can for "my girls."

When asked how she likes her job, she smiled, "I love it. I can't solve all the girls' problems, but at least, I can listen."

Jest 'Fore Christmas

by EUGENE FIELD

Father calls me William, sister calls me Will, Mother calls me Willie, but the fellows call me Bill!

Mighty glad I ain't a girl—rather be a boy.

Without them sashes, curls, an' things that's worn by Fauntleroy! Love to chaw'n green apples an' go swimmin' in the lake—
Not to take the castor-lice they give for belly-ache!
Most all the time, the whole year round, there ain't no flies on me,
But jest fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

Cot a yeller dog named Sport, sick him on the cat;
First thing she knows she doesn't know where she is at!
Long comes the grocery cart, an' we all hook a ride!
But sometimes when the grocery man is worried an' cross,
He reaches at us with his whip, an' larrups us his boss,
An' then I laff an' holler, "Oh, ye never teched me!"
But jest fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

Gran'ma says she hope that when I git to be a man,
I'll be a missioner like her oldest brother, Dan,
As was et up by the cannibals that live in Ceylon's Isle,
Where every prospect pleases, an' only man is vile!
But gran'ma she has never been to see a Wild West show,
Nor read the life of Daniel Boone, or else I guess she'd know
That buff to Bill an' cowboys is good enough for me!
Except 'jest fore Christmas, when I'm as good as I kin be!

And then old Sport he hangs around, so solemn-like an' still,
His eyes they seem a-sayin': "What's the matter, little Bill!"
The old cat sneaks down off her perch an' wonders what's become
Of them two enemies of hern that used to make things hum!
But I am so perlit an' tend so earnestly to biz,
That mother says to father: "How improved our Willie is!"
But father havin' been a boy himself, suspicious me,
When 'jest fore Christmas, I'm as good as I kin be!

For Christmas, with its lots an' lots of canides, cakes an' toys,
Was made, they say, for proper kids an' not for naughty boys;
So wash yor face an' bresh yer hair, an' mind yer p's and q's,
And don't bust yor pantsaloons, and don't wear out yer shoes;
Say "Yessum" to the ladies, an' "Tessum" to the men,
An' when they's company, don't pass yer plate for pie again;
But, thinkin' of the things yer'd like to see upon that tree,
Jest fore Christmas be as good as yer kin be!

This talent doesn't have to be the secret of the happy successful few. Its seemingly mysterious workings have been taken apart so that anybody can use how constructive ideas are produced.

by BLAKE CLARK

"Who, me? Why, I couldn't think of an idea if I tried." This is a typical response when anyone is asked to attempt something original most of us completely lack confidence in our ability to create. We cling to the belief that we are born creative or non-creative, and that nothing can be done about it.

This notion has recently been proved false. Courses conducted in colleges and industry over the past ten years have shown that creativity can be developed. For example, in one research project graduates of creative problem-solving classes at the University of Buffalo were pitted against comparable students who had not had the classes. The course-takers averaged 94 percent better than the others in ability to produce fresh and useful ideas.

With the same creative-development methods, men of industry are designing machines and manufacturers are finding more uses for their products. Some 150,000 personnel in course designed to make its engineers more creative. The 375 who took it in 1962 and 1965 averaged 100 percent better than the others in the same educational background took the test. Some 100 leading industrial firms now give some form of creative problem-solving courses to managers, supervisors and other employees.

At General Motors' AC Spark Plug Division in Flint, Mich., A. L. Simberg, supervisor of personnel research and development, selected two groups of hourly employees. One group had a high record of good suggestions for plant improvement; the other was low. Both received a ten-hour course in creative thinking. During the following year, the high achievers increased their number of usable suggestions by 47 percent. The others upped theirs by 47 percent.

This does not mean that you can take "ten easy lessons" and become a creative genius. But knowing the principles of creative thinking is a big step toward developing creativity. The rest, says psychologist J. P. Guilford, of the University of Southern California, depends upon "practice, practice, practice."

You learn to think more creatively just as you learn to write, paint or swim. You learn by doing. You learn by the experts-by doing it. So course-work consists of solving problem after problem. Classes usually begin with a few mental limbering-up exercises. For example, "How would you arrange four 9's to add up to 100?" the instructor may ask. About one person in ten gets this after wrestling with it five minutes. Try it. The answer is at the end of the article.

How many uses can you think of for a brick, other than for building? Beginners usually come up in five minutes with six or eight ideas, including doorknob, weapon, a weight to hold things down. At the end of a course, after practicing the principles and techniques of creative thinking, they average 15 to 20, including such uses as a block for ratholes, a weight to hold things down, a stage for a flea circus, and "point it gold as a Christmas gift for a bricklayer or a gold brickling sergeant."

Alex F. Osborn, a leader in the field of creative thinking, has studied the principles used, perhaps unconsciously, by the great natural-born creators and shown how to use them. His book, Applied Imagination, is the best used in most creative-thinking courses.

What are these principles?

First: Clearly define the problem. This sounds obvious, but even seemingly simple problems may not be precisely put.

A young mother in a class given by Lester Schneider of Rounoke, Va., asked, "How can I get my boy to eat his eggs at breakfast?" Others complained of the same difficulty with their youngsters. "Why do you want them to eat eggs?" demanded the teacher. "For the body-building protein," was the reply. Correctly stated, then, the problem became: How can I help my child to get enough protein? Soon, instead of rebelling against eggs, the youngsters whose parents were in this class were getting their protein from food they liked better, such as hamburger or peanut butter.

Second: Think of all possible solutions. Good decisions come from a choice of many alternatives. The fertile innovator approaches his problem from every point of view and lets the thoughts come tumbling. Most of us just don't have this fluency, so Osborn has found ways to help us achieve it.

If you want to have lots of ideas, says Osborn, postpone criticism. This is the basis on which Osborn initiated "brainstorming," the scheme whereby a group of 10 or 12 people suggests as many solutions as possible to a single problem. One person's thoughts stimulate another's to such an extent that a brief, well-conducted brainstorming session can produce an astonishing number of good ideas. The one strict rule is that all criticism must be suspended; no one is to make fun of another's idea.

For example, a group was asked what might be done to save a destroyer at anchor toward which a mine had already floated so close that there was no time to start up the engines and get away. After many suggestions, one person said laughingly, "Get everybody on deck and blow the mine away!" This patently impractical proposal led another participant to say, "Turn the fire hoses on it and push it back." And this was actually what the crew of one destroyer did when they found themselves in this very dilemma off the coast of Wonsan during the Korean War!

Teachers point out that you can brainstorm problems by yourself, by self-quizzing. Prof. John Arnold, of Stanford's mechanical-engineering department, has devised a useful list of "spur" questions, divided into these nine categories:

Other Uses? Major question in this area: "Is there a new way to use as is?"

Borrow or Adapt? Under this heading, we can prime our imaginations with questions like this: "What other ideas might be adaptable?" (Rudolf Diesel got the idea for his engine from a cigar-lighter.)

New Twist? A typical question along this line: "What other shape?" (Like the buggy-maker who powered the roller-bearing that Leonardo da Vinci had invented 400 years before.)

More So? The questions under this heading include: "Increase strength?" (Such as reinforced heels and toes in hoisery.)

Less So? One question: "Eliminate?" (Example: tubeless tires.)

Rearrange? One such question: "Transpose cause and effect?" (As doctors do in diagnoses.)

Reverse? Sample question: "Do the opposite?" (Elias Howe perfected his sewing machine by designing a needle with the hole at the bottom instead of at the top.)

Combine? Most ideas are combinations of other ideas. A typical brainstormer along this line: "Combine purposes?" (Benjamin Franklin, to avoid changing from one pair of spectacles to another, cut the lenses of each in half and stuck the halves together, with the reading lenses below. Thus he invented bifocals.)

Third: Forget the problem for a while. Teachers encourage students after a long period of seemingly fruitless work to turn the problem over to the subconscious. Here our infinitely complex computers make mysterious calculations and then, suddenly, in a day or a week or a month, an answer may pop into our mind.

George Westinghouse worried for years over ways to bring a long string of railway cars to a simultaneous stop. The answer came in a flash the moment he read that com pressed air was being piped to drillers in mountains miles away: he would pipe it along his line of cars and stop them at an air brake. But such inspirations come after long preparation and thought. Other things being equal, the person with the most knowledge in his field will be the most creative in it.

Fourth: Evaluate the ideas; select the best; act upon it.

The problems thrown at students vary with he subject matter of the course. Men in Dr. Harry Hansen's class in Creative Marketing Strategy at Harvard Business School attack actual problems troubling specific firms, study them for a term and present suggested solutions to company heads.

Some 40,000 college youths all over the country have taken Creative Thinking in connection with their Air Force ROTC training. They tackle difficult situations faced by officers during, for example, the Korean War. "You're a Lieutenant in command of the maintenance squadron at Fusan," says the instructor. "Your job is to keep 75 planes in repair for repeated missions. How would you organize your mechanics to keep the greatest number of planes in the air?" One trainee suggested an assembly-line system, where each mechanic checking the same parts every time. The instructor passed the idea on to a maintenance officer, who tried it, liked it and now uses it at his base.

Teachers and students agree that the most important benefit from a course in creative thinking is the change in one's mental attitude. Solving power after power, week after week, students stop fearing problems, gain confidence in their ability to solve them and even come to welcome them. They take on some of the spirit of the late Charles F. "Boss" Kettering of General Motors, who said that problems are the price of progress. Don't bring me anything trouble," he instructed his aides. "Good news weakens me."

Courses are stimulating, but many inventors and creative thinkers, however, surprised that he handyman had fixed a complicated machine, said, "Did you read the manual? No, I can't read," was the reply. "And when you can't read, you have to think." You don't have to read and sit at a desk and think. Anyone can follow the principles Alex Osborn has revealed.

If you have a problem, think it clearly. Then, alone or with the help of family, friends or business associates, invent all possible means of solving it, postponing criticism. When you run dry, apply the check list of "spur" questions and start the stream again. Write down all your ideas and, after a day or two, select the best. You may have the answer you're looking for.

Christmas on Campus

and BROOKS GARNETT

"Boddy, the Red-Nosed Reindeer" . . . does the tune sound familiar? Every time the main door to Woman's Hall is opened one chorus of the famous Christmas song tinkles out. But this wasn't the only song heard in the past week.

The girls were serenaded by the Delta Sigs early Tuesday night; and in turn, they, themselves, serenaded the boys dorm later on. Also one can hardly walk through the dorm without hearing either Johnny Mathis or some friends singing the Season's songs.

A tingle in the air . . . a carol on the lips . . . merriment in the heart . . . Christmas.

High Point College completely redressed to celebrate the occasion. Fraternity Row put pledges to work on adorning the outsides of each section. With creations including everything from the Nativity Scene to a tremendous Christmas tree around a door; red, green, and silver decorations along with electric lights soon illuminated this part of the campus until it looked like a Christmas Wonderland.

Atop Roberts Hall, everyone could see the new idea on campus—our own stained glass windows. With sheets of cellophane on the windows and lights behind them, the Tower was aglow with Christmas tidings, complete with cards from the chimes.

The girls' dorms were a confusion of ribbons and bells and tin foil. Most girls decorated the door to their rooms bringing out many original ideas. One door had a large "kissing ring" made of coat hangers with a tiny figurine couple placed inside, brightly obliquing the mistletoe rule.

Another girl completely reconstructed a fireplace with stockings and mantle decorations to put on her door. Yet two ingenious girls plastered a sign on their door declaring "We can't afford any decorations, but Merry Christmas to everyone but klansmen!"

And who can forget the parties? With all the yuletide spirit the fraternity and sorority parties couldn't help but be successes. The girls celebrated with their own party Tuesday night in the clubrooms of Woman's Hall. They had skits, a Christmas story, a visit from a Santa called "Frosty," and a report on money that the girls had given to a needy family.

The Poinsettia Ball Thursday night attracted a big crowd. With a band providing the music, everyone danced in their best party outfit, enjoyed an evening of holiday fun.

Vesper services and Wednesday assemblies complied with the Christmas theme. The choir left Wednesday for their annual Christmas tour.

Bright paper, jolly, buying gifts, getting bus tickets, packing for home, . . . yes, it's beginning to look a lot like Christmas!

Jerry Ramseur is busy putting up cedar branches to decorate the Lambda Chi section of Fraternity Row. Each fraternity decorated its section of the boys' dorm.

Delta Sigs plug in the lights for their "Christmas Tree on the Wall." This tree is an annual part of Christmas decor on campus.

Everyone is trying to finish up decorating details. Hammers, nails, ladders, tape, wire, and lights get entangled in the confusion.

"It's just about finished." A large cedar Christmas tree in Woman's Dorm is getting final baubles, icicles, and trinkets placed by (l. to r.) Pat Clark, Judy Mills, and Kay Thompson.

Al Thompson glues colored cellophane on the glass panes on top of Roberts Hall Tower. Alpha Phi Omega worked on this project which gives these windows a "stained glass" effect at night.

John Wine, Ronnie Sewell, and Tommy Ray unrolled aluminum foil to be used in making the Sig Ep decorations. Pledges are "given the honor" of designing and making the "Christmas attire."

National College Queen Contest Offers Large Prizes

New York, New York—The National College Queen Contest, to select and honor an outstanding American college girl, is again underway. This year, the National Finals will be held in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, with more than $5,000 in prizes to the new winner.

The competition will include a colorful Pageant in April of 1961. It will be a highlight of the Easter holiday celebration which annually attracts thousands of college students to Fort Lauderdale. The National College Queen Contest Committee is planning the event in cooperation with leading beachfront hotels and the City of Fort Lauderdale.

This will be the 7th annual contest, open to all undergraduate college girls between the ages of 17 and 22. Free entry blanks and complete details can be obtained by writing to: National College Queen Contest Committee, Paramount Building, Suite 1606, 1501 Broadway, New York, 36, New York.

The competition is a search to find a truly typical college girl who deserves the national crown. This is not just a "beauty contest." Only 50% of the judging will be based on attractiveness, personality, charm and appearance. Equally important will be scholastic accomplishments, campus activities, hobbies and interest in community affairs.

The new National College Queen need not be a "Marilyn Monroe," nor does she have to be a "Phi Beta Kappa." The Board of Judges seek someone who is a "happy medium" between these standards.

The prizes to the next National College Queen will include a two-week tour of Europe, visiting famous cities in England, France and Italy. She will also receive a complete head-to-toe wardrobe of high fashion apparel and many other merchandise awards. If she is interested in the theater, the winner will also receive a $1,600 scholarship to the famous Dramatic Workshop in New York City—to study with Dr. Saul Colin, who coached such as Marlon Brando, Shelley Winters, Geraldine Page, etc.

The National College Queen will also enjoy modeling assignments, network television interviews and a personal appearance tour. These activities will bring her added earnings and will be arranged so that they will not interfere with her academic schedule.

College girls in this area are now eligible, and may first become a Regional Winner. The regional prize is an all-expense-paid trip to Florida to compete in the National Finals. The finalists receive round-trip transportation, accommodations and meals at leading beachfront hotels in Fort Lauderdale, and are guests of the Pageant.

A committee of hostesses and alumni of women's colleges will direct all activities while the contestants are in Fort Lauderdale.

A coast-to-coast television program is now being planned to cover the Coronation of the new National College Queen. The program will feature each candidate and will pay tribute to her college and community.

Each Regional Winner will also receive a Citation Scroll, presented to her and her college in recognition of her accomplishments. Judges will include a panel of distinguished educators to score academic and current events questions . . . while other experts consider attractiveness, good grooming and personality.

In previous years, among the national judges were such well-known personalities as Col. Clarence E. Lovejoy, education counselor and author; Bess Myerson of TV fame; photographer Bruno of Hollywood, etc.

Upon entering this year's contest, college girls will receive a questionnaire. They will be asked to describe themselves, their campus activities and their post-graduate aims and goals.

The current National College Queen is Carole D. Reinhardt, 19-year-old sophomore at the University of Miami. She is an honor student, attending college on a scholarship. During her freshman year, her campus newspaper recognized her attractiveness and personality by naming her a "Hurricane Howey" in their local competition.

Second place in the 1960 National College Queen Contest was awarded to Patricia Merrill of Hood College in Frederick, Maryland. Third place was earned by Judy McGuire of Vassar College.

Any college girl, who is officially registered at this school and in good standing, can enter the new contest. Classmates (young men or young women) can also nominate a girl to be an entrant. Mail the name of a nominee to the National College Queen Contest Committee in New York.

Entries are now being accepted, and college girls in this area have a new opportunity to win a crown for themselves and acclaim for their college.

Vivianne Lloyd

"Smiley" Shows Stage Talent

Vivianne Lloyd matriculated to High Point College in the autumn of 1958. Since that time she has been more aptly referred to as "Smiley" and to friend or acquaintance this is no small wonder.

Her unique personality and ever-glowing radiance are often imitated but somehow never equalled, and her sincere efforts to add to the strength of High Point College have not by any means gone unrewarded.

Smiley was born in Ohio some twenty years ago but like many other enterprising young Americans she embarked for the Sunshine State of Florida at an early age. Tampa, Florida is now the place that Miss Lloyd calls home, but fate was to play another role in suggesting personality, surroundings, and, therefore, High Point College is now proud to claim her.

Smiley started her tenure as a popular campus figure from almost the very beginning. She was one of two girls from the Freshman Class elected as cheerleader in 1958 and ever since her lusty voice and school spirit have been almost an earmark for Panther enthusiasts. Aside of her athletic interests and academic pursuits, Smiley donates most of her time to Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority in which she is a sister, and the ever-enterprising Taper Players. A born actress, Smiley, according to Miss Jane DeSpain, can play the lead role of character role with a wealth of ease and talent. Will we ever forget "Tessie" of the August Moon? or the scope of Smiley's fine performance in the Miss HPC contest of this year when she personified the typical "Broadway Babe" in her rendition of "I'm Always True to You in My Fashion." Smiley was to be rewarded for this performance by being selected as a finalist.

And so it is with a gratifying smile that we salute "Smiley" as our Personality of the Month. It is truly a privilege to do so.

The ball is way up in the air, but the matter has long since been decided. Panther men Garrison, Buchanan, Sewell, and Daniel drive the final mile home as the Panthers romp to a 30-point-plus victory over a game but outmaneuvered Pfeiffer club.

to Pittsburg State in Pittsburg, Kan., where he was named to the NAIA (National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics) All-American basketball team and the All-Southern basketball team.

In 1942 he entered the Armed Services of the United States. While in service, he attended the Columbia University Midshipman School and the N. C. State Diesel Engineering School. After his discharge, Hamilton attended UNC and received his A.B. degree in 1948 and his M.A. in 1950. While at Carolina, he served as freshman basketball coach for three years.

After graduation he became basketball coach of Lenoir Rhyne College. He served in this capacity for seven years. "Pappy" left Lenoir Rhyne in 1957 to attend George Peabody College in Nashville. He returned to Lenoir Rhyne College as head of the Athletic Department in 1958. In 1959 Hamilton went to Europe on a grant from the International Education Exchange Service of the State Department. While in Europe he lectured—primarily on basketball—and served as coach for the Turkish Olympic Team for the National Basketball Federation.

Hamilton received his Ed.D. degree from George Peabody College in the summer of 1960. He assumed his duties at High Point College in September of 1960. Dr. Hamilton has made many other accomplishments including membership to the Helms Athletic Foundation Hall of Fame, which is one of basketball's most cherished awards; but perhaps his greatest accomplishment is his fine family. He was married to "Bill" Lloyd at Chapel Hill in 1949. They have two children—Bill, age 10, and Beth, age 7. The Hamilton family resides on West College Drive.

"Pappy," who is District 26 Chairman of NAIA (which includes North and South Carolina), enjoys such hobbies as fishing, golf, and just about any other activity that is not concerned with sitting behind a desk."

Dr. Hamilton is already known to High Point College students as a friend of the students and as one who has the ability and willingness to help students in any way possible. His warmth toward the students and his friendly personality have already made him scores of friends since he arrived on the HPC campus. Coach Hamilton said, "We have a great opportunity and a possibility of building a very outstanding athletic program here and with a lot of hard work we can have such a program. We are well on our way and the students are doing a tremendous job with their co-operation and help." Dr. Hamilton seems very impressed with the student body of High Point. And it is very evident that the student body is likewise impressed with its newly found friend—Dr. "Pappy" Hamilton.

PARTIES: The Delta Sigs held a "way out," wall climbing "Beastnik" party at the Thomasville American Legion Hut on November 19 in honor of the new pledges.

An open house is planned for brothers, pledges, and their dates on December 16 at the home of Major and Mrs. Howard Veach.

SERENADES: Judy Fisher, who is pinned to Tom Ferguson, will be serenaded by the Fraternity on December 12. Tom will then be the guest soloist at an old fashioned midnight swing. The following night the Delta Sigs will give a Christmas serenade for the girls' dorms.

ATHLETICS: Delta Sigma Phi's volleyball team in the Fraternity League is unbeaten in its first two starts, having beaten Theta Chi and Pi Kappa Alpha. The team looks like the team to beat. Delta Sig is secure in total points for all-campus trophy and with a first place in volleyball they could be well in first place.

In the Independent League, Delta Sig is sponsoring three teams; two are unbeaten and the other has lost but one.

BAD GRAD: Don Drapeau received his acceptance to the University of Connecticut graduate school of Speech and Drama.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Campus May Be Beautified

"I want the students to know that they have the city council's wholehearted support in any project that they undertake." This is a sample of Mayor Washburn's enthusiastic reception when approached by two members of the College-City Relations Committee.

This statement is only a small sample of the overwhelming support and backing that the committee has received, not only from Mayor Washburn and the College Board of Trustees, but from all the members of the Chamber of Commerce visited this far, including: Harold Cheek, City Manager; George Covington, manager of Chamber of Commerce; Hild McPherson, editor of the Enterprise; and Howard Pansack, director of Industrial Development for the city.

This committee is the cumulative result of three months of deliberation and planning by the Student Legislature. The program is completely student motivated, student activated, and student directed; however, it has been administration approved.

The underlying motivation of this movement can be stated in four points:

1. We the students feel that High Point College is undergoing a great change with the coming of Dr. Patton and with the coming of the new program that the college has adopted on leadership. We feel that this has been a motivating force in stimulating student action.

2. We recognize that the town is a great service to the college and we in turn would like to be of service to the town.

3. We know that we have a great college and we feel that it needs recognition.

4. We recognize that students from High Point College will be taking over leadership positions in their respective communities in just a short while. We also recognize that half of the students graduating from HPC will be making their homes in and around High Point, therefore, we feel that it is vitally important that they know the operation of the city before they graduate.

Exemplary of the suggestions that have resulted from committee action, and are now being acted upon are:

The beautification of the college campus by coordinated cooperation with the local garden clubs has met with considerable progress, under the direction of Bill Webb and Sandra Hooks. They have met with Mrs. H. regional president of the Garden Club, and have drawn plans to beautify various areas of the campus.

Another direction taken by the committee involves setting up a "Career Day" when experts in various occupations would visit the campus to converse with students interested in the sundry occupations.

Plans have been outlined for the city council to hold an official meeting on the campus. This would afford a personal-to-person relation between the students and councilmen, and would acquaint the city council with HPC's civic-mindedness. This undertaking might be invaluable to the Political Science students, as well as to the entire college.

As stated in the questionnaire given in Chapel Feb. 8, 1961, the committee is open for suggestions all times. One may contact any of the members of the committee whose name follows: Dan Earnhardt, Jim Edwards, Kaye Thompson, Sandra Hooks, Judy Fisher, Buddy Laker, Bill Webb, Marilyn Zoller, Louise Stokes, Mark Raby, and Brenda Laker.

Dilemma Of Sex To Be Discussed On Campus

On March 8, Mrs. Ethel M. Nash will come to High Point College to discuss "The Dilemma of Sex" with the student body.

She is being sponsored by the Student Christian Association. She is to discuss "The Current Attitude toward Sex on the college campus" in assembly, conduct an afternoon discussion for couples preparing for marriage, and speak to the general student body in an evening session in the auditorium.

Mrs. Nash is a nationally known psychologist and lecturer. At present, she works as the Family Life Specialist in the Department of Preventive Medicine and Geriatrics, University of Chicago School of Medicine. She has held positions as psychologist in Toronto City Schools, lecturer for the Association for Family Living in Chicago, and lecturer and marriage counselor for the Sociology Department at UNC.

She is the wife of Arnold Nash, Head of the Department of Religion at UNC, and they have two sons, 24 and 18.

Mrs. Nash was educated at the Universities of Liverpool, Yale, and UNC. She received a Ph.D. in Harvard, teaching on a foundation grant to teach marriage counseling in India.

As the author of With This Ring, she has been called on to lecture in universities and colleges throughout America, Canada, Britain, and the Far East. She has just returned from a visit to Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Russia, where she studied facilities available and work being done in marriage counseling.

Panthers Defeat L.R. in 89-88 Thriller

Combining some brilliant floor play with some clutch shooting, High Point's red-hot hoopers ended a 17 game Lenoir Rhyme win streak Saturday night at Alumni Gymnasium. In the final tabulation it was a hard earned team victory. The double overtime saw the Yowmen unusually calm and collective, taking advantage of every opportunity and redeeming every mistake. The one point difference at the second overtime's buzzer could just as easily have been a 20-point one, as far as the Bear-hungry Panthers were concerned. Watch us go in the tournament!

Four Freshmen Elected For Spring Formal

The student body's desire is the Student Government Association's achievement. The Four Freshmen have been booked to star at the High Point College annual Spring Formal. This event is scheduled for May 5.

The rise of the Four Freshmen has been quick and phenomenal. During the past few years they have had nothing but sell-out performances on campuses and night clubs all over the country.

But the foursome didn't always have fruitful years. At their start, brothers Ross and Don Barbour, along with Bob Flanagan, started singing and playing together when they were students at a conservatory in Indianapolis. Club boys around the city is just what made it possible for the boys to stay in school. These appearances also convinced them that they had something different and good in musical entertainment.

After Ken Errain joined the group, they struggled along for several years, stubbornly refusing to change their unusual style. Their faith in what they were doing paid off when Stan Kenton offered his valuable assistance and Capitol offered a recording contract.

One of the most interesting attractions of this award-winning quartet is that their talent doesn't stop at singing. Each member plays a different instrument and plays it well. Fine examples of Bob's trombone, and Stan's trumpet, Ross' drums, or Don's guitar may be heard in many of their selections.

The Four Freshmen's outstanding talents have kept them scoring solidly from coast to coast as a vocal group with vitality, fresh ideas, and a distinctive modern sound all their own. And again at HPC in May, they will add one more top performance to their list.

Nat'l. Lab Taps HPC

A new program coming to the High Point College campus this spring will be the Student Leadership Laboratory sponsored by the Student Government Association and supervised by the National Training Laboratories of Washington, D. C. The program is open to both men and women students and preference will be given those holding positions of leadership in campus clubs, activities, and government.

Those selected will spend the weekend of May 5 to 7 in Roaring Oak at Camp Chierio under the leadership and guidance of three or four professors from out of state who will serve as consultants. The activities will begin with dinner Friday evening and facilities will also be available Saturday and Sunday for swimming, archery, and canoeing.

Small functional groups will be formed and each student will act as both participant and observer giving him the chance to see himself as well as through a mirror. He will be able to see the reaction and emotions of others and the reason for them. These will be no formal training sessions at college but instead, each student will actively participate in the study.

There will be three types of groups formed in the study: the development mental session in which the students will develop and act as a group, the action session in which a group giving each the chance to become a leader. And last of all to be the most important, the action session will be made of the basic principles of one's emotions and feelings as he participates.

The cost of the leadership weekend will be $35.00 per student. The National Training Laboratories will assume $10.00 of the charges, the college will pay $15.00 and the student, the remaining $10.00. A brochure is now being printed with complete details and will be available soon.

The National Training Laboratories also conducts a two-week program each summer in Bethel, Maine, in which four students selected from each of 17 of the more prominent universities of the United States participate. This year, High Point College has been honored with the opportunity of joining in the program and four students will be chosen from those taking part in the May weekend conference.

Met Star Appears Here

The Community Concert Association presented recently Mildred Soprano, beautiful young mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, in a superb concert held in the college auditorium. To most of us who rarely have the opportunity to hear such a talented artist perform, it was a performance to be long remembered.

Miss Miller, who is a native of Cleveland, and who now commutes between Cleveland and New York City to sing at the Met, made her Metropolitan Opera debut in 1951 and has sung leading roles throughout the United States and Europe. She has gained a distinguished reputation as a concert artist and has the amazing ability to sing fluently in German, French, and Italian.

The concert on Wednesday night was an excellent sample of her versatility and expressiveness. She opened her program with four pieces sung in support of the Metropolitan Opera. After the intermission she sang four French pieces, several in English, and ended with a vocal highlight of the program, the Gypsy Song from "Carmen," by Georges Bizet. She was enthusiastically received by the audience who called her out for two encores, for which she sang a medley of Viennese waltzes and as a caper, a number, "I Wonder As I Wander."

Across The Desk

Wait! Here's How to Flunk

To the Editors of the HI-PO:

Are you tired of studying and making A's and B's and C's? Do you want to make D's and F's? Well, following are some tips on how to stop making those A's and B's and C's and begin making some of those D's and F's.

Some of the needs for making D's or B's or C's are noisy rooms, unlimited bull sessions, television programing, games, and extra-curricular activities.

Here are some pitfalls which can aid you in making D's and F's. Avoid attending class regularly. Stop preparing your daily assignments. Don't worry over your themes and research papers. Avoid getting eight hours of sleep. Stop going to see your professors about your problems.

The conference you have with the professor might do you some good. Avoid it. The professor might say something to you which would cause you to "break loose" and make an A or B or C. Avoid applying what you have learned to everyday life. Avoid a quiet room for studying. For certain avoid preparing for examinations. Don't get enough sleep; then you will do poorly because you set up your late night before the examination, and you can go to the examination in a state of confusion and anxiety.

Following are the performances you are to engage yourself in if you are to make your desired goal. Firstly, in order for you to attain this goal, you need not attend classes regularly. Don't keep up to date with your assignments. Try your best to make low grades on your examinations. Be for certain that you don't study for the test from the material which the professor has designated.

Don't smile at your professor; and if he should say a "hello," don't you dare be polite and answer with a "hello, sir," or "hello, madam." Secondly, don't sleep over five hours. Too much rest is not good for anyone—especially college students. In these days of participation in clubs, athletics, and late dances, the ambitious student who wishes to do well in his studies also is likely to get too little sleep. The less sleep—the more D's and F's you will be honored to receive.

If you sleep for five hours, you will have the remaining 19 hours to distribute between class attendance and socialization. You will probably attend classes four hours a day. After the four hours in class, you would have 15 hours to socialize. Thirdly, don't apply what you have learned to everyday life. You have gone over again and again the facts about lie and lay; yet you say, "The book is laying on the table." If you always think of learning as connected with school and book rather than activity and living, you will always remain a D and F student, unlearned and unsatisfied. Fourthly, don't find a quiet place to study. You should waste hours sitting and holding your books while listening to the radio or to others talk. Fifthly, don't learn to concentrate. Most of all, don't seek for meanings in everything you study. The meaning has no significance to you; therefore, you have no purpose in learning its meaning.

If you can survive this great tribulation, you will be happy to be a member of the blessed state of D and F-hood. The results or accomplishments are few, but pleasant. You are now among the select few of college students who want to go downhill instead of reaching for the top of the hill. You're proud to be a D and F student. And you're a little and you're "flunked" out of college.

ORCHIDS TO HPC?

Dear Editors:

I feel that recognition is due when one has accomplished something and although I realize that the one I refer to is plural, I shall use "one" as my reference.

As a student at High Point College I have found many things which have aided me in my education. As an enrollment here I have been concerned about the status and practices of this school. On this theme, I have seen High Point College make great strides toward a better institution of higher learning; however, it still leaves much to be desired.

Among the outstanding improvements are the social director, who has added much in her short period of service here; an additional nurse (and a very pretty one, too); requirement of college board exams for entrance; and several physical improvements to the campus. To those who are responsible, directly or indirectly, I speak for the student body in saying that we are grateful. We want a good school that will provide us with the best educational opportunities available and a conducive environment for our pursuits.

I feel that the response which we the students received from Dr. Patton's survey of last year indicate that he is aware of our needs and desires at High Point College. The "reading day" before exams and the day after exams (rest day) was most beneficial to the student body. The refreshments served during exams were also an added attraction to us students. We are slowly but surely realizing that the faculty, administration, and staff are working with us to improve HPC. We also want them to know that we are anxious to help improve this school (and from the comments which I have heard from some of the faculty, administration, and staff, I'm sure that this will gratify some and astonish others).

When is High Point College going to claim its own in the academic community of this world. It seems that we need a few adjustments in the practices and policies of our school. Isn't our system a bit out of date for mature college students? If you say "no" then I disagree with you. Some students might flunk out with a more liberal cut bank but I remember being told at Freshman Orientation that there were two applications refused for every one that was accepted—I believe these positions could be filled with mature students who would help to make this academic institution one of maturity.

Why don't we have an honor system? There has to be a beginning to everything and why must High Point College continue its trend of being an honor system which we must live up to? We must make it work. There are rumors that McCulloch Hall will be a paradise next year and that will really be surprising to the men who now live in its inferno confines. We are waiting with anticipation. (Demerit system, cleaning room, house mothers? Wow!)

College are not as cultured, wise, and hostile as one might think. They are responsible individuals and if given the opportunity they will help make High Point College the school which they, the students, as well as the faculty, administration, staff, and Board of Trustees desire. The students cannot do it alone and they also realize the one cannot do it without the help of the other. Let's create a more cohesive relationship in our great endeavor. We're just getting started on the way up—we can't stop by electing Roberts Hall's tower—Let's GO!

—(Signed) A Student.

Fundamentals First

High school students today can't spell. But they have a "better grasp of world affairs" than did their parents, are they told by the supervisor of an investigation on which these conclusions are based.

These findings provide the best possible commentary on the shortcomings of primary and secondary education. Here is a clear case of putting the cart before the horse, of trying to teach children to run before they can walk.

Educational fundamentals should be the primary concern of high school students, certainly of those ill able to spell and perform other such elementary operations. Mastery of fundamentals will no slight accomplishment is possible. It is a postponed while 'world affairs' are pondered.

TO BE BLUNT, THE ILLITERATE AND UNTRAINED MIND IS INCAPABLE OF GRASPING THE IDEOLOGICAL, SOCIAL, AND ECONOMIC COMPLEXITIES OF TODAY. ONE MIGHT AS WELL EXPECT A COMPREHENSION OF CALCULUS FROM A PERSON UNABLE TO COUNT.

The aforementioned "gap of world affairs" usually turns out to be mere indoctrination with whatever sociological fad, fancy, or fallacy happens to be current. The futility and grammatical voicing of uniformed opinion by young people is scarcely an accomplishment sufficient to offset inability to use the mother tongue correctly.

—Sent in by Walter Block, Head of English Dept.

Once there was a man named Joe McCarthy, who is historically unique because he led a sometime on, sometime off crusade against a treacherous cancer called domestic communism. In the late forties and early fifties being called a communist was a joke, being called a McCarthyist was a dead insult. Even to this day there remains a profound dread of the entire McCarthy era. Most of us can somehow recall these days because we were began picking up a newspaper for the first time. We can remember the smears and accusations, and the whole mess of Senate investigations. Quite a few of our leading journalists were even proclaiming that we were rapidly approaching a police state atmosphere. And with all due respects, there were inclinations of such a thing occurring. Yet the actuality of such an unforeseen event remained as remote then as it is today, or as it was at the Constitutional Convention. However, Joe McCarthy learned the hard way that if there is anything one cannot toy with, it is basic human rights. His censure, by the United States Senate, climaxed a career which might have had its shortcomings, but a career which at least in theory had honest scruples. If there was one thing Joe McCarthy hated, it was a traitor. And his over-anxiety to catch the fox made his crusade turn to the path of obsession. Joe McCarthy lacked that all important quality called tact.

Even his most ardent critics admit that no one loved his country more than Joe. He would frequently say that his greatest pride was the fact that he was an American. During an early political campaign, the ex-Marine with the shrapnel-scarred body told a reporter, "I have seen too many beardless kids spill their guts in the South Pacific to come home and watch a bunch of red rats grab the controls." Joe was a farm boy and when he could grab a vacation he would head South and sign up anonymously as a farm laborer, "just to keep in shape and enjoy the most wholesome type of living." When his staff would inquire as to an explanation for his absence he would casually ward them off, "just seeing my country and feeding my people."

A good friend and great American named Richard Nixon once warned Joe "don't ever overstate your case, always understate it." And perhaps in not abiding by this advice Joe committed the mistake that was soon to become a chronic one. He became a magnanimous burden to the Republican Party. His policy of one clean sweep ran into too many big toes. However, at least he succeeded in sending a few of the red rats back to the rat hole. His early death might well be attributed to the heavy axe of humiliation which fell upon him. The game of he is and he isn't played too often by Joe. We may parallel him to the boy who cried wolf too many times. And yet only time will tell whether or not Senator McCarthy was a credit of discredit to the American way. It was Nixon who said at Joe's funeral "he is a man history may do fair accord to." Regardless of the partisan side we may take in the McCarthy argument we must agree that men like Joe McCarthy did have, and still do have, a vital role in protecting the great fortress America. However, the way the role is played is of such vital importance because by our over emphasis on security we can easily injure some of our own basic principals. But let us not ever put our watchdog to sleep. In believing this Joe McCarthy was firmly correct.

Homecoming Is Spectacular

Homecoming Activities Described

by JUDY ROGERS

Dr. and Mrs. Wendell Patton and Mr. and Mrs. Porter Hauser helped welcome alumni who visited the campus at the afternoon open house at the Patton home.

HPC had a campus-wide pep rally with various organizations competing for awards. The rally took place in front of Roberts Hall with a multitude of students taking part.

"Goodness, this place hasn't changed a bit since I was here—only the faces are different." "Do you remember when the c o w was put in the auditorium?" "Walking around campus certainly brings back memories." "My, it's amazing how much this school has progressed since I graduated." "Well, hello you old coot; I haven't seen you in years. How are you getting along these days?" These remarks were among many made this past week end, which was Homecoming week end at High Point College. Not only was this a time of reunions for alumni but an eventful week end for students.

Saturday began with members of the various fraternities and sororities setting up displays depicting the Panthers' victory over the Mountaineers in the forthcoming game that night. Despite the cold and what seemed to be a sea of mud caused by previously inclement weather, the displays were completed in front of McCulloch Hall. These were judged early in the afternoon. Naturally all the fraternities and sororities were biased as to which display was the best, but the results announced at half-time were as follows: first place, Delta Sigma Phi; second place, Lambda Chi Alpha; honorable mention, Phi Mu.

Registration for the alumni began at 10:00 a.m. in the Student Center. The old grads were rather slow coming in during the morning, but as the day progressed, registration picked up. In addition to registering, they had a chance to obtain information about the day's activities and see old friends. Members of classes from 1927 to 1960 were present to greet the alumni as they came in.

From 3:00 to 5:00 p.m., alumni were invited to meet Dr. Patton and his wife in open house at their home on West College Drive. For many alumni, this was their first change to meet Dr. Patton.

At six o'clock the fraternities, sororities, and independents held a pep rally in front of Roberts Hall. The Appalachian team was present also to watch and sometimes joined in the cheers. Each group presented one cheer. The judges for the event were Mrs. Warren, Mrs. McClure, and Dr. Hamilton. They awarded first place each to Theta Chi under the direction of Tom Dean and Alpha Gamma Delta led by Ann Surratt.

Following a special supper at 6:00 p.m. the alumni were invited to the game between the Panthers and the Mountaineers at 8:00 p.m. and the dance afterwards in Harrison Hall. The game, which had been predicted to be a thrilling event, lived up to its expectations. Delirium reigned among the spectators after the game as they surged upon the court to congratulate the victorious Panthers and to express their happiness in general.

During halftime the Homecoming queen and dher court were presented. The members of the court with their escorts were. Dee Stone and Zane Daniels, Eunice Young and Larry Nolan, Sylvia Smith and Butch Bartlett, Judy Warlick and Gene Buchanan, Judy Lambeth and Phil Garrison, Kathy Sturm and Bill Fallin, Betty Neale and Tommy Skidmore, Sue Williamson and Wolfy Unger, Kay Phillips and Chalmers Sechrest, Sandy Wheeler and Joe Guzinski. The Homecoming queen was Miss Lou Richards, who was escorted by Jackie Short. She was crowned by Porter Hauser, president of the Alumni Association.

The crowning event of Homecoming was the dance held in Harrison Hall, which was decorated with the traditional colors of red and white, hearts and cupids. Music was provided by The Royalty.

HOUSE REPORT

Following the call to order, prayer, and reading of the minutes, the members of the House of Representatives heard reports from various committees.

One report came from the committee studying the Roberts Rules of Order. It was reported that each member of the House would be tested on the rules. The questions would come from study sheets that were passed out.

Dick Holt reported on the meeting of the Men's Dorn on February 2 with Dean Nelson. The following statements were made concerning the meeting:

1. A demerit system for the men will be set up for next year.

2. Next year all freshmen will be on second and third floor and, if necessary, sections J and K.

3. There will be an inspection made of the men's rooms. If the men are not in some of order and cleanliness, the occupants will be called before the dorm council and told that they must be clean for the next check. If the untidiness persists, a fine will be imposed.

4. Next year the members of the Men's Dorn Council will be paid.

5. By next year sections D, E, and F will be refurbished and painted.

6. Three new telephones are to be placed in different parts of the dorm.

Following the reports and the old business, the matter of interest in the House of Representatives was brought up. A discussion followed, centering around two points:

1. Is there a real lack of interest in the House?

2. Is there some certain factor within the organization itself that is bringing this lack of interest on?

A committee was appointed which will discuss the matter further at the next meeting of the House. All members were urged to think about the situation, however, and to bring with them one or more ideas on how it can be rectified.

SENATE NEWS

The High Point College Senate exist to improve all student activities within its jurisdiction. The Senate is working on various bills to make our campus more profitable and enjoyable. Your interest and cooperation would be welcomed.

We hope the locks and bars can be left off of the science building so as to permit students to work there at night. It seems most colleges do have their laboratories open at night.

The questionnaire you filled out in assembly was not just for a statistical purpose for the records. Definite steps have been taken to promote better relations between the city and college.

Believing that it is love that makes the world go round, Congressional rules have been changed. Boys may now enter North Hall club rooms anytime during the day. The girls in Woman's Hall will vote to determine if the same rule will apply there. A committee is working on a bill to provide an area for car talking parking. Good luck committee!

The act of feeding the face seems to be a universal necessity. The dining hall possibilities has been the topic of much discussion in the Senate. We would like to tune up the environment with music during meals. As a reminder, line breaking is a violation of student's rights.

Cheating has long been argued that it only hurts the one cheating. The Senate declares this untrue. Graduates of this institution give to society a reputation for all High Point College students. If a person cheats to get through school, he will be burdened to meet life's demands.

Cheating may be defined as willfully giving or receiving aid or attempting to do so. As a means of checking the unfair situation the Senate would like to propose an Honor System. As our college status progresses we must produce a better caliber of students. Cheating would never make a very good recommendation.

A definite pattern has not been set up by the Senate. Regardless of who's and who's not of the system it would be the responsibility of the entire student body to make the system a successful one. If we should decide to adopt such a program, each individual would pledge himself to an unwritten code not to cheat. In case it became necessary for one to cheat he should feel free to do so, but in the event that he did cheat it would be his duty to confess his cheating. The person might feel this burden too heavy. He could always ask a friend to do it for him.

Campus Profile:

BASKETBALL CAPTAIN IS VERSATILE

The captain of this year's Purple Panthers is a dynamic little six-footer by the name of Jack Short. Jack is a product of the Hoosier State where the game of basketball is second nature and where the rank of "star" is a very close third.

For three years now this young man has been setting an almost unbroken pace of consistency in the North State Conference. His dazzling floor play, uncanny field goals, and cut-like releases have sent many an opposing coach home disheartened.

However the full story of Mr. Short is a little further than the walls of Alumni Gymnasium. Jack is an exception to the fictional belief that all college athletes are poor students. Even during the rigorous season this young man from Indiana manages to maintain a "B" average as a major in Business Administration. As further proof of his varied accomplishments one should mention his membership in the Order of the Lighted Lamp as well as recent induction into the annals of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities for 1961-62. And yet with all these superlatives Jack can easily be labeled as a "regular guy." His modest sincerity and friendly disposition are evidenced by all who know him.

An average evening will find him energetically chatting away about a former game or watching a Western on television. He prides himself on the fact that he has not missed an episode of "Gunsmoke" since the series started. As if all this were not enough, Jack, along with teammate Gene Buchanan, directs the athletics program for the Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity in which they both are outstanding brothers.

After one more week at Lenoir Rhyne and graduation Jack will take the wedding march with his hometown sweetheart, a certain Miss Barbara Be. We only hope that Jack will be able to give to the employment of his choice half as much as he has given to High Point College and then we can rest assured that his future will be a bright one.

Spirited Panthers Down A. C. In Overtime

The Panthers of High Point College won their second game in a row Monday night as they defeated the Atlantic Christian Bulldogs 71 to 69 in an overtime contest.

The Panthers grabbed an early lead but the Bulldogs roared back to go ahead 43-34 at halftime. They led through most of the second half, and with about eight minutes left the Panthers suddenly came to life and with 2:53 remaining Joe Guzinski hit a field goal to put HPC ahead 60-68. AC hit a free throw to lock the game and throw it into an overtime which saw each club try several times, with an amazing lack of success, to hold the ball for the one winning shot. With 1:52 left to play AC gained control of the ball and maneuvered for the one shot. Suddenly Jackie Short stole the ball and as he started down court he was fouled by AC ace guard, Jack Boyd. With only two seconds left in the game, Short connected for two free throws and the game was history.

Joe Guzinski and Butch Bartlett hit the net for 21 points each. Short added 14. Freshman Phil Garrison grabbed 20 rebounds for the Panthers.

Coach Virgil Yow was very satisfied with the great comeback of his club. The Panthers, who are recovering from a January slump in which they dropped six of seven games, seem to have once again the confidence and spirit that they will need for the tournament which begins on February 22.

MEN'S INTRAMURALS by HARRY C. SMITH

Basketball intramurals are in full swing at the present. At the time this article went to press, the Pikes had a firm grip on first place in the frans and no losses. Their record was two victories came in thrilling overtime contests, as they edged out Lambda Chi and the TKE's. The TKE's have only one loss, that being to the Pikes. In third place are the Lambda Chi's, followed by Delta Sigma, Theta Chi and Sig Eps. A few of the outstanding players in the league thus far are, Dick Shackelford, Wayne Lewis, Ray Fraley, Charlie Willard, and George Sewell.

In the Independent league there were three undefeated teams as of February 13. They were the Jaybirds, Los Perros, and Bullets. They are followed by the Eagles, the Champs, the Gamets, and the Gumpers. The big guns in the league have been Jim Holleman, Aubrey Strother, Bill Norris, George Williams and Joe Foley.

Interest and participation has been very good in intramural basketball this season. It is hoped that this enthusiasm will continue in the remaining intramural sports.

New Coach Has Busy Post At HPC

by BERGE HATCHER

The ball was bounce-passed into the pivot, the big center uncocked a sweeping hook shot that gracefully sailed through the hoop. The place was Alumni Gymnasium; the event was a student-faculty basketball game. Although the game was strictly for laughs, Frank "the Tank" Hassell was exhibiting the same shot he used for Lenoir Rhyne College in his heyday as a basketball player.

Frank Hassell was born in High Point, N. C., where he attended the local high school. It was here Mr. Hassell lettered in the three major sports: football, baseball, and basketball.

After a short stint in the Marine Corps, Coach Hassell entered Lenoir Rhyne College in Hickory, N. C. He was very active in campus affairs and was a member of the Bears' basketball team for four years. Mr. Hassell received his A.B. degree from Lenoir Rhyne and his Masters from the University of North Carolina. After graduation, he coached high school ball at Bandys and Kannapolis.

Mr. Hassell returned to his native High Point in the fall of 1960 to join the physical education department of High Point College. Here he carries on his duties as Director of Men's Intramurals, assistant basketball coach, and head track coach. He coaches F.E. 103, 200, 202, 205, 206, 208, and 221. "I am happy to be back in High Point," he says. "I like the student body and enjoy teaching at the college."

Coach Hassell and his wife reside on 1114 Montlieux Avenue. They have three children: Frank, Jr., 6; Michael, 4; and Tammy, 2. In his spare time, Mr. Hassell likes to play golf or play bridge with Mrs. Hassell and their many friends. The Hassells are of Methodist faith.

WOMEN'S INTRAMURALS

VOLLEYBALL

"The Independents" won over Zeta Tau Alpha in the finals of women's intramural volleyball. The other teams entered in the field included Kappa Delta, Phi Mu, Alpha Gamma Delta, and another independent team.

PING PONG

Due to lack of interest, the ping pong intramurals were restricted to individuals only. Ellen Julian (Independent), and Ann Surratt (Alpha Gamma Delta), were the individual finalists.

BASKETBALL

The basketball campaign has not officially begun yet, but six teams will be entered in the program this year. Each of the sororities will field a team, plus two independent teams. A game between the independent teams, the sorority all-stars and the independent all-stars.

Short, Buchanan, Skidmore "Soon To Play Last Game"

Soon three members of the High Point Panthers will don their cage uniforms for the last time. These boys are: Jack Short, Williams, Indiana; Tommy Skidmore, Norwood, N. C.; and Gene Buchanan, Sanford, N. C.

Jack Short will probably go down as one of the better guards in High Point College history. Jack makes up for a severe height and weight disadvantage with a pair of the fastest hands in basketball. Jack is a sure bet for All-Conference honor.

Tommy Skidmore, who played only sparingly until this year, has seen a lot of action both as a starter and reserve. Tommy has always had the potential and only this year seemed to reach maturity, as basketball players go. Tommy has definitely made a fine contribution to High Point College's basketball fortunes this year.

The other senior, Gene Buchanan, a transfer student from Lenoir Rhyne College, probably has as much natural ability as anyone on the squad. Gene was humpered somewhat by only having two years of eligibility remaining when he transferred to High Point College. Gene has been a real competitor.

A well-deserved part on the back to each of you from the student body of High Point College.

Short, Skidmore, and Buchanan have been keeping the basketball court hot with outstanding performances. Soon they'll be playing their last college game.

Johnny's Scribblings

WHAT'S NEW IN SPORTS? — BASKETBALL

If you happen to be from Piedmont North Carolina, you have probably heard someone say, within the past few days, "Let's gather up our weapons and go to the basketball game." If you've been keeping up with your sports, you will undoubtedly know that basketball folks aren't convinced that college boxing is dead.

They're still in their swinging and they're still landing punches. It seems as though our good neighbors over at Chapel Hill are trying to bring together the sport of basketball with boxing and call it basketball. This sport was introduced at Wake Forest two years ago and UNC decided to try it again last week.

How fast and far this new sport will spread we just don't know, but the next time you attend a college game, be prepared. Ficks will be in their swinging and they'll be landing punches. Bring along your girl friend. She can use her scissors. You may lose a loved one, of course; but we must pay this price. The purpose goes beyond the selfish interest of our own safety. (And I do hope you enjoy the game.)

GOLFERS TAKE NOTE!

Many of us are inclined to look at professional athletes as a privileged race with lives filled with luxuries and five figured incomes; we see them as quite removed from all mortal harassment. We never hear of Mickey Mantle lying awake with heartburn, or Arnold Palmer's car battery being dead on a cold morning, or Bob Cousy's wife just loves to stay home with the kids.

Several days ago at the 90 hole Palm Springs Golf Tournament it happened. Don January drove the ball 148 yards only to find that it landed in the little cup. This simple act was worth only $50,000 to Mr. January. Imagine! $50,000 for only one swing of a golf club. Why that's more than most people make in seven or eight years.

But like every great tragedy, this story has a sad ending. In a TV interview the next day Don was asked, "What are you going to do with all that money?" Don lowered his head and answered, "I owe it all."

FOR GIRLS ONLY . . .

It seems as though most girls are boxing fans these days—especially since the handsome European, Igmarr Johansson, hit the headlines.

I thought you girls might like to know a few things about this handsome, muscular example of the beloved sex. He is dimple-chinned, blue-eyed, and often speaks of a need for "fantasy." He enjoys listening to Beethoven on the electric organ. He loves strawberry shortcake—but while in training he isn't allowed to eat any. He loves the sea and oh, by the way, I'm sorry to add that he loves the company of a cute little thing called Birgit Lundgren.

TOURNAMENT TIME!

In closing, here's a reminder! The North State Basketball Tournament will be held at the Lexington YMCA February 22-25. The Panthers' final game of the season will be at home on February 18, when they play host to the Bears of Lenoir Rhyne.

Talent Show Coming Soon

The Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity has announced plans for a campus-wide talent show to be held a short time after the Easter holidays. The event will be under the direction of Don Drapeau. Professor J. Fryhoffer is in direct charge of the affair. Anyone wishing to enter is asked to contact one of these gentlemen.

Arrangements have been made for several professional entertainers to appear on the program. Polly Yow will be one of the feature attractions. Students are asked to contact Dale Brown or Bobby Yates for tickets. Tickets will also be on sale at the Municipal Auditorium. Thad Lowry, local radio broadcaster, will emcee the event.

Forum To Be Presented Soon

The Library Committee announces plans for their third Colleague Forum to be presented on April 13. The subject for discussion is "Capital Punishment—Pro or Con."

Some of the panelists for this program include Judge Byron Haworth, High Point municipal judge; D. P. Walley, former prosecuting attorney of Guilford County; Bennie Jenkins, Vance Davis, and Dr. S. C. Deskins. Dr. W. R. Locke will serve as moderator.

A forum about capital punishment was suggested because of various data entered in this topic, and the forthcoming bill in the State Legislature on this subject.

Mrs. Murella Carter, head of the Library Committee, stated, "While student attendance at these forums has been fairly good, it is not good enough. It can prove quite embarrassing to invite special panels to come and only a few students turn up. The attendance at this forum may differ whether they are continued in the future or not."

The forums take place in the Student Center at 7:30 p.m.

Two Recitals Presented Here

by BETH LEBERMAN

The Music Department of High Point College presented two student recitals in the auditorium during the last week of March. On Thursday, March 2, several of these students giving music displayed their skill and the marked improvement which they have made.

At the organ were Annie Carol Boyd playing a "Chorale Prelude" by J. S. Bach and Judy Collins playing Bach's "Prelude in A Minor." The organ solos were followed by the string ensemble comprised of Bill also on the violin, Alvin McIlvaine on the violin, Dr. Lew Lewis on the viola, and George Bean on the double bass, playing a quartet by W. A. Mozart.

Chuck Miller, accompanied by Judy Collins, then performed Milhaud's "Caprice" on the clarinet, and was followed by Bill Barnes on the violin playing Vivaldi's "Concerto in A Minor," accompanied by Judy Collins.

George Bean, accompanied also by Judy Collins, played Saint-Saens' "Elephant from 'Carnival Des Animaux'" on the double bass, and Mike Carrington completed the program with Beethoven's Piano Sonata, Op. 6, No. 2.

On Sunday, March 5, Tom Gunn presented an organ recital in the college auditorium at 4:00 p.m. The last part of his program included two Bach chorales with chorale preludes, and Bach's "Prelude in G Major." He presented the Mendelssohn Sonata, Op. 65, No. 6, and concluded with the program "The Marche Relegieuse by Gignot, a Prelude on 'Jesus James Air' by Wright, and a Prelude, Op. 29, No. 1 in G Minor by Fauré.

HPC Studies Published

High Point College announced this week the publication of its first collection of scholarly research papers written by its faculty. This publication is entitled "High Point College Studies." Contributions were made to this scholastic endeavor by seven members of the faculty at the college. These are the first such studies to be conducted by the college faculty and plans are at present to publish at least one such work a year and if possible more than one in future years.

The editor of this publication is Dr. Walter Blackstock, Head of the English Department at the college, who himself contributed to this research project.

The purposes for these studies are many but two of the major ones are to give the faculty an opportunity to publish their research works and to further the purpose of the college in its new time theme "Education for Leadership."

The articles and their authors are: "The Vanderbilt Family: An Index to Aesthetic Tastes and American Art After the Civil War" by Dr. Walter Blackstock; "The Concept of Enslavement in the Characters of William Faulkner" by Dr. William J. Sowerder of the English Department; "The Land Tenure System and Its Achievements in Independent Latvia 1918-1940" by Dr. Alexander V. Berkis of the History Department;

"Front and the Symbolist Aesthetic" by Mr. Thomas A. Williams, Jr. of the Department of Modern Languages; "Latin America in Revolution" by Dr. Edwin A. Pleasants of the Department of Modern Languages; and "Poetry Contrasted with Science, Social Science, and Religion" by Dr. Lincoln Lorenz of the English Department. A special feature of this publication is a series of drawings by Mr. Raiford Porter of the Art Department. Dr. Blackstock also contributed a poem of his entitled "Word-Gamers."

Copies of this publication are being sent to learned societies, colleges and universities throughout the country and to high schools within the state of North Carolina.

Demo. Club Organized

This semester has seen the formation of a new club on campus—the Young Democratic Club, commonly referred to as the YDC. Officers have been elected and a constitution written and ratified.

The officers, whose tenure is only for this semester are: Allen Sharpe, President; Bennie Jenkins, First Vice President; Judy Austin, Second Vice President; Judy Rogers, Secretary; and Skip Callahan, Treasurer. The constitution, written by a committee headed by Don Neale, was approved shortly after election of officers.

Plans were made to have it printed and signed by the charter members of the club. Even though constitutions have already been printed, it is hoped that they can be printed in booklet form for more convenience.

As for campus activity, the YDC plans to do all that it can to expand its membership as much as possible. The executive committee voted to assess all persons interested in the club a dollar so that better idea of membership can be attained. Special emphasis has been placed on day students as they are more interested as a whole in city politics in High Point; membership in the YDC. This will give them a better chance to take part in political activity in High Point. However, dorm students are encouraged to join too.

The primary purpose of the YDC at the present time is to help city Democrats as much as possible. Thus YDC members will be helping out in the primary and in the city elections in May. Present emphasis is on getting people to register for the primary; later emphasis will be on voting in the city elections in May. The club has also had two prominent citizens to speak. On March 10, Gus St. St. Democrat candidate for mayor, spoke to the club on "Youthful Leadership in Government." March 17 had been scheduled for Hubert Bryant, the other Democratic candidate for mayor, but as he was unable to come, Mr. Clock, the city manager spoke instead.

Tower Players Present Irish Play

The Tower Players presented with pride their Spring play, JUNO AND THE PAYCOCK, on March 24 and 25. Reputed as one of the great plays of the Twentieth Century, this offering by Sean O'Casey is set against the blood-red and sorrow-black curtain of Ireland's civil war, 1922. However, the characters who appear for moments on stage and speak O'Casey's lines are not out of contact with people among whom he moved as Ireland's days of sorrow. The members of the tenement family for whom he writes, are very real in their times of laughter and sorrow, and the spirit of the severed country moves with spectre shape among the characters on stage. A brooding young man who lost an arm in Easter Week gasps in fear at a knock on the door; his sister comes alive with love newly born; their father "struts about like a peacock (peacock) from bar to bar with his irresponsible friend, 'Joey'; and their mother attempts to hold the family together by the main force of her character. Though it is not necessary to know the history of Ireland to receive the full force of the play, it serves to establish its place in time.

Bloody Easter Week, 1916. The Irish fight for Home Rule and a Republic. Dublin had become quite accustomed to the volunteers of the Irish Republican Army who drilled in the streets, so it was really nothing new that on Easter Monday morning a great number of them paraded through the streets. But this was new; this was organized rebellion against the 1,200 British troops billeted about the city representing the heavy hand of British rule. Within a matter of a short time barricades were thrown up in the streets and maimed. The Provisional Government of the Irish Republic was quickly set up in the General Post Office. Heading this movement were members of the Republican Brotherhood. So began Ireland's last great struggle for freedom from English domination.

This, however, was not the first stir on their part, toward the end of many centuries before had the banners of English troops begun the scourge of their squeezed out line resources, and political independence.

At the time of Oliver Cromwell, Ireland was Catholic. It had been hoped that under the Catholic-sympathizing Stuarts Ireland would fare better. However, the king of this family were swayed by the Protestant bigotry amid which they ruled. So Charles I. walked to meet the executioners, and Cromwell's Republic swept across England.

Cromwell was a fanatic in his Puritan belief; a genius when it came to organization and the military. In one hand he held the Puritan Bible while the other, holding a mighty sword, swept away the monarchy, the traitor to his government, and the heretic to his faith. Then came the chance to destroy the Catholic throne in the Puritan side. The Irish Protestants and Catholics united to attack a parliamentary force in Ireland. Cromwell destroyed parts of Ireland utterly, and in subsequent moves out of thousands, tore others from traditional lands, and settled these

"What in the name of heaven brought you out on the roof, Joey Dally?" Asked Juno (Viviane Lloyd) to the man crawling in the window (Mike Carrington). On the right, the Peacock (Phil Kinsey) looks on. This is a scene in the recent Tower Player Production.

Across The Desk

The chapel program of March 15 was indeed a noteworthy accomplishment for High Point College. The execution of one of our rare formal debates was polished, prepared, and at times even professional. Both sides are to be commended for the fine job they did in handling a ticklish and controversial topic-of-the-day. Doctor Deskins can rest assured that the student body's reception was proof enough that his long awaited dream is finally coming true. High Point College is definitely in favor of formal debating.

As far as any logical minded person could see, the only flaw in the program came at the mention of Barry Goldwater's name. It is unfortunate that the negative side, which was presenting such an air-tight case, had to resort to Senator Goldwater's philosophy in an attempt to strengthen their argument. There is no doubt that Barry Goldwater is a dedicated American. However, his brand of conservatism is not, by any means, the last word in good conservative thought. Mr. Goldwater is a more a self-appointed spokesman of the decaying Old Guard. The Republican Party sees this more and more at every convention and every election. The real strength of the Republicans rests firmly in the hands of moderate conservatives under Nixon, and liberals under Rockefeller. These two gentlemen are wise enough to realize that the Old Guard is long gone and that no one acknowledges this fact more than the young public. Senator Goldwater may have a best selling novel on the market, but he would be suicide on a national ticket. Ask any smart Republican. The new Republican strategy in the forth-coming congressional elections is to win the big city vote which they lost so heavily in the presidential election. They will never be able to do it with Goldwater. He may have gotten a big hand at the Republican Convention, but this is not always indicative of getting the vote. A fellow by the name of Adlai Stevenson knows this better than anyone.

Another point worth recognizing is that Goldwater's philosophy and Southern Conservatism are as different as night and day. Southern Conservatism is legitimate, practical, and enduring. It still maintains that Jeffersonian quality which the Old Guard never could swallow. How much do you think Lyndon Johnson and Barry Goldwater have in common? In closing we can all rest assured that fortunately Barry Goldwater will never be president and that the United States Government is a government "of the people, by the people, and for the people" not a "necessary" evil. Our Constitution was here a long time before THE CONSCIENCE OF A CONSERVATIVE and it will be here a long time after.

Again, a word of congratulations to the debaters for a job well done.

Why I May Transfer...

Recently, a meeting was held of all students who had requested transcripts to other colleges. I was among the group of students invited to attend the meeting.

We were asked to write on a card our reasons for wanting to transfer, and students wrote about everything from personality clashes to better schools for their major.

Two years ago, I entered High Point College full of various hopes . . . most of which have been fulfilled. At that time, I arranged my courses so as to be able to transfer my junior year, so this is not a sudden decision but part of a "long-term" plan.

To me, this little college for "discriminating students" has a great deal of raw material in talent and intellect in its student body. Under the guidance of Dr. Fattene, this quality which the Old Guard is progressing to greater heights each year, and every time that I hear of some of the plans connected with the "Education for Leadership" program, I know that I will be missing out on a great opportunity for advancement.

High Point College has given me a great deal. I have little to offer in return, but my sincere thanks and the hope that I will represent HPC well in the future wherever I may be.

And a final note: I firmly believe in Donne's statements—"I am part of all that I have met." Each of the wonderful students at this college has meant a great deal to me in each of their individual ways. Ideas in religion, social understanding, psychological comprehensions . . . all of these things and many others have been rounded out by my various experiences from his sessions on third floor to Fellowship Team visits to classroom arguments. I am sincerely and humbly grateful.

The Tower

Against the black cold moonlight night, stretching mightily towards the sky, stands a tower, a goddess of the soul, with its lamp of wisdom its story never told.

Mighty tower high and bold, what story have you never told? What secrets do you hold beneath your structure of wood and stone?

Pray tell us your tale of woe.

The years have come, and the years may go, but life to you is but one endless show. Of love and sorrow, bitterness and hate, of happiness and despair.

How many have toiled and walked beneath your breadth, and fail to realize the strength you possess.

How many cheers of gladness, and words of broken promises have been told to you unknowingly.

Tell us, O mighty tower, so we too may glimmer in our life. Show us your secret of success.

Tell us of the thoughts you have heard, carried by the zephyrs of the night.

Of lovers walking beneath your spire, speaking words tender and quiet, futures planned and futures destroyed, all because of romantic desire.

Of lonely boys and lonely girls, whose only wish is to be loved and shared.

Of sweat and toil for endless days, just to get a passing grade.

Speak now, O far flung tower, speak now so we may hear.

Listen quietly, ever so gently and you will hear the quiet breezes whispering through my trees.

Look, look over so sternly and you will see my belfry there.

All this doesn't make a tower or a man, only a image is what has appeared.

My strength lay not in my rotten planks, as they are old and beyond repair.

My strength, my friend, is what you think I am.

Suitcase College?

Dear Editor:

Why does our college have to be a suitcase college? Why do so many people go home every weekend? I feel that these questions may be answered by looking at the social conditions of our campus.

Except during basketball season, dating is limited to fraternity parties or to those couples who are "going steady" or "financed." Very few boys and girls date unless there is a special occasion such as a dance.

Unfortunately, our campus has a different attitude from those of other campuses its size. On other campuses the boys and girls are friends in the true sense. They eat together, talk together, study together — even though they may not date each other.

Have you ever noticed how the boys and girls segregate in the cafeteria?

Or how the boys stand in their little groups and the girls in their little groups in the book store?

Now the boys blame this problem on the girls—"they aren't friendly," etc., and the girls blame it on the boys, "they are stuck up," etc. I feel that this atmosphere should be changed. It could be changed if each person, boy or girl, would try harder to be friendlier and to take more interest in their classmates. If a new attitude were adopted, then all of our social functions on campus could be our real success everytime, and not just a half-way success.

A Concerned Student

Quit Griping!

Dear Editors:

Students are constantly griping about one thing or another, but few of them take the initiative to do anything about their complaints.

Agreed that many of the conditions found at High Point College are not comparable to those of larger colleges and universities, but there is a great deal of material aid at this college which is not even being used.

I remember an old quotation saying "Make the best with what you have." A few of the wiser students on campus are taking advantage of the opportunities that are being offered to them, instead of dwelling on those which are not offered.

Many of the community centers, local plays, sports events, forums, etc., are poorly attended by HPC students, and many of these things offer a wealth of opportunities for learning.

If one takes time to notice, a person is made a better man from advantages instead of disadvantages.

Sincerely,
L. C.

"Fellow Program" Progresses

The purpose of the Fellow Program at High Point College is to give everyone an opportunity to share importantly in the work of the College. It is a program designed to enlist greater community interest in the College and in the advantages the College offers to the community.

What is a Fellow? A Fellow of High Point College is a person who associates himself with the College by sharing and for that receives the honor and distinction of being one who actively fosters the work of the College.

The University of Oxford in England, and many other European Universities, have carried on a Fellow program for centuries. One of Oxford's most celebrated Fellows was John Wesley, who shared his abilities with the University for many years.

If one is vitally interested in the work of higher education and concerned with the development of young lives, one should be a Fellow. As a Fellow, one gains the inner satisfaction of sharing in the work of the College.

The College honors Fellows with complimentary invitations to all public functions and other meetings. More importantly, a Fellow is awarded a citation each year designating him a "Fellow of High Point College."

As a permanent testimonial to one's efforts as a Fellow, one's name is recorded in the College catalogue and Annual, and the name is placed also on the Fellow plaque each year. The following are the First Fellow Citations: Mrs. Myrtle H. Barthmaier, Harry G. Bell, Jack Burk, Jack H. Campbell, J. Harris Covington, Eugene Cross, R. Frank Dulak, Raymond L. Deal, Jr., Dock W. lands with English Protestant colonists. This was accomplished in 1650.

William of Orange drove the Catholics underground, outlawed the clergy, and saw to it that Ireland existed solely for England. For a long period of time, then, already-backward Ireland fell behind a veil of secrecy.

Famine fell upon the land when, in 1829, a blight fell upon the potatoes, which was the chief food, resulting in the loss of 400,000 human lives. During the first half of the 19th century, Daniel O'Connell became the first Irish Catholic to enter Parliament. Charles Parnell led the Home Rule party which he took over in 1875.

More than 700,000 died and over 800,000 left Ireland as a result of the Great Famine. This was the year 1845, and the famine lasted for four years. Not a few emigrated to America at this time.

The Fenian movement was begun in America in 1858 by Irish refugees. They were an organized part of the United Army in our Civil War, and along together with the objective of returning to their homeland to continue the fight for separation from England. The Sinn Fein was an organization begun around the turn of this century with ideals similar indeed as had been held by the Fenians. This group agitated for revival of, and the clinging to, traditional customs, the Gaelic language, and the hope of Home Rule, which meant withdrawing the Irish representatives from the English parliament and setting up a legislature in Ireland. This would mean a complete break between the two countries.

Because of mismanagement on the part of Volunteer groups throughout Ireland, only a few were on hand when the fighting began on Easter Monday, 1916. The insurgents held out for a week. When they surrendered, the General Post Office, heavily shelled was a heap of ruins. English soldiers marched seventeen fore the firing murders. An armistice was signed.

What followed was a prolonged interlude of fights, ambushes, kidnappings, and murders. It was Ireland's sons of the Irish Republican Army standing up to the "Black and Tans," an unruly mob hastily gathered of and sent in English uniforms of black and khaki. In 1921 de Valera made a truce with Lloyd George. The newly-formed Irish Free-State Government split over this treaty into two groups, the Free Staters and the De Harlds, and the country was plunged into civil war. Again the murders and ambushes, again the bloody attacks and bloody reprisals; but this time it was brother against brother, father against son. Homes were blown up, police lorries shot down innocent people in the streets, neighbors informed on neighbor, men took part in firing squads that killed ex-comrades-in-arms. Against this background is set the stirring drama by Sean O'Casey, JUNO AND THE PAYCOCK.

This play is under the direction of Miss Jane DeSpain with technical stage design by Don Drapreau. It has been cast as follows: Jack Boyle, Phil Kinney; Jung Boyle, Vivianne Lloyd; Johnny Boyle, Ed Stafford; Mary Boyle, Libby Graham; "Joner" Daly, Mike Carrington; Mrs. Masie Madigan, Ann Emery; "Needle" Nugent, Harvey Shaw; Mrs. Tancred, Linda Richards; Jerry Devine, Don Drapreau; Charlie Benham, Todd Lowrey; the I.R.A. men, Henry Mearns and Pat Conner; Cook Black vendor, Clyde Fitzgerald; Two Furniture Removal men, Bill Trevorar and Don Jenkins; Two Neighbors, Terry Lloyd and Cindy Floyd. This will indeed be a highlight of the year and a memorable experience.

Debate On Cap. Punishment

by JUDY ROGERS

Thursday morning marked an auspicious occasion for the members of the "Debate" at the North Carolina History class. A debate was held discussing the merits of the abolishment of capital punishment in North Carolina. Judges for the debate were Dr. Patton, Dean Conrad, and Dr. Peterson. Those making up the affirmative team were Vance Davis and Duke Brown. Jerry Haney and Benny Jenkins composed the negative team.

Arguments for the affirmative were first of all based on the fact that capital punishment is not a Christian practice. Secondly, the state has no right to allow laws that permit the taking of an individual's life. It should be up to the state to provide an environment of respect for law and justice. Any state that allows capital punishment is admitting that it cannot prevent conditions which are favorable for crime. Third, capital punishment is not a deterrent to crime. In fact, it has been shown that the states that have abolished capital punishment have a lower crime rate than those states which permit capital punishment. Society is too ungentle and demands punishment that is too harsh and unjust. Rehabilitation is more important as a crime preventive than is capital punishment which often deprives a man who could be rehabilitated of a chance to make something of his life.

The negative contended that the murder of one man affects all of society, then the ultimate punishment should be death—punishment by society for a crime against society. When a man deprives a man of life, and the pursuit of happiness, then he too should be deprived. Then it follows that society should be given the right to take away a man's life when he takes away the life of a man. Death is the only just punishment for murder. However, capital punishment should only be used as a last resort and as a prevention of further crime on the part of an individual. In such cases, it should be a preventive punishment, to use at the discretion of the judge. To deprive a judge of using capital punishment is to retard the courts from functioning properly.

After listening to the debate the courts decided that the affirmative had presented the best arguments as to whether or not capital punishment should be abolished. They also presented a critique along with two members of the class.

Student Borrowing At All-Time High

"Neither a borrower nor a lender be" may have been good advice when Polonius offered it to Laertes, but for today's would-be college student it makes no sense.

In fact, according to an article in the April Reader's Digest, borrowing by bright but broke students is at an all-time high, and college authorities couldn't be happier about it.

Not long ago, says author Don Wharton, if you didn't have the money to go to college, a scholarship was about your only hope. If you didn't get it, you went to work. Even with scholarships, many had to drop out of school because their financial needs weren't fully covered and they could not earn enough in part-time work to make up the difference.

Not so today. Thanks to a variety of student loan funds, thousands of students are able to go to college on borrowed money that totals as much as $5,000 each. Such borrowing has leaped from a 1958 total of 13 million dollars to an estimated 250 million dollars in 1960.

Although money is available through four separate channels, Federal loans issued under the 1958 National Defense Education Act has provided the greatest single total—more than $70 million to date. Under this system, the student applies to his college for a loan, which he has ten years to pay off. He pays no interest until a year after graduation, then only three per cent yearly.

The articles describe the other three major loan systems, and suggest that a student who needs additional funds to go to—or stay in—school, inquire what loan arrangement his school offers.

The article, "New Ways to Finance a College Education," is by Don Wharton.

Campus Profile: She's Always Busy

Each graduating class takes some people who are indeed hard to replace. Surely the Class of '61 will be no exception. There will be to many whom we will miss sorely. Judy Fisher is certainly one of this category. Her seemingly everlasting ambition and laquacious charm will certainly be missed come next fall.

If there's any one person who has engineered behind the scenes, most of the time it has been Judy. Her successes are not material but many and tireless energy is always ready to take on another task. The many contributions she has given to High Point College have not always been recorded, but their merit does not need publicity.

Judy came to High Point College in the fall of 1958 from her home town of Matthews, North Carolina. Her sincere disposition and easy smile rapidly acquainted her as one of the most popular girls on campus. If you have ever picked up a program concerning a campus function, you most surely have seen the name of Judy Fisher. Whether it is a Tower Flyers Production or just a pick-up committee, Judy's name is certainly there somewhere. If she is not acting she is producing, and if she is not doing either, she is always promoting.

Aside from her organizational gift, Judy is one of our most talented young ladies. According to Professor Fryhaver, she far and away tops the scale of being the finest song and dance performer we have.

Her gift for the musical arts is not the whole story, however. This year sees Judy as Secretary of the Student Christian Association and one of our Ten Top Seniors. Versatility never had a better example. Therefore, we suggest that the world had better get set, because after this May our selection for the national pageant will certainly make an obvious mark on it.

Nat'l Lecturer Speaks on Sex

Guest lecturer at the High Point College weekly student-faculty assembly today was Mrs. Arnold Nash. Her topic of discussion was "The Dilemma of Sex."

Mrs. Nash was sponsored on the campus by the Student Christian Association. She will also conduct this afternoon a discussion for couples preparing for marriage, and speak to the general student body in an evening session in the auditorium.

She is a nationally-known psychologist and lecturer. At present, she works as the Family Life Specialist in the Department of Preventive Medicine and Genetics at Bowman Gray School of Medicine. She has held positions as psychologist in Chicago Child Schools, lecturer for the Association for Family Living in Toronto, and lecturer and marriage counselor in the Sociology Department at UNC.

She is the wife of Arnold Nash, Head of the Department of Religion at UNC.

Mrs. Nash was educated at the Universities of Liverpool, Yale, and UNC. In 1953-54, she was at Harvard, teaching on a foundation grant to teach marriage counseling in India.

At the school of With This Ring, she has been called on to lecture in universities and colleges throughout America, Canada, Britain, and the Far East. She has just returned from a visit to Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Rumania where she studied facilities available and work being done in marriage counseling.

Student-Faculty Tea A Success

On Thursday afternoon, March 16, the Faculty Social Activities Committee of High Point College sponsored a Faculty-Student Tea. The special attraction of the occasion was music furnished by a string quartet from the Fine Arts Department and the reading of the original poems by Dr. Walter Blackstock, Head of the English Department. The tea took place in the Student Center on the campus began at 3:00 and continued until 4:30. Arrangements for the tea were made by Mrs. James T. Warren, Social Director at the college.

Playing in the string ensemble was William Barnes, violin; Alice McElwaine, violin; Lew Lewis, viola; and George Beane, double bass.

Dr. Blackstock read selections from his forthcoming book of collected poems "Leaves Before the Wind."

All faculty members and students of the college were invited to attend this tea.

Choir Attends Festival

The Concert Choir of High Point College went to State College in Raleigh to participate in the First Annual Choral Festival for colleges of North Carolina on February 17. The actual presentation took place in the State College.

Approximately 600 voices from schools over the state participated in the Festival. An orchestra accompanied the group on several of the songs. This is the first time a festival has been organized for college choirs and it is anticipated that with the cooperation of the choirs this will become an annual event.

Pancoast Awarded Fellowship

Mr. David L. Pancoast, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. Pancoast of 302 North Rotary Drive High Point, has been awarded a Woodrow Wilson study. Mr. Pancoast is a senior at High Point College where his majoring in the field of psychology. Mr. Pancoast is the first student attending High Point College to have received this fellowship award in the 37 year history of the college. He has made an outstanding record during his undergraduate years at the college and is most deserving of this honor.

Mr. Pancoast is one of 1,333 students from 381 colleges and universities throughout the United States and Canada to be awarded this Woodrow Wilson Fellowship for 1961-62, the largest number ever elected by the Foundation in its 15-year search for prospective college teachers.

In announcing the 1961-62 winners, Sir Hugh Taylor, President of the Foundation, estimated the total value of this year's awards at $3,000,000.

The fellowships cover the first year of graduate study and are meant to encourage the newly-elected fellows to consider college teaching as a possible career. Nominations for these highly-competitive awards are made by the students' professors. Screening of candidates also is done by 15 regional committees drawn from the academic profession.

"The unprecedented increase in the number of nominees," Sir Hugh said, "has enabled us, after the keenest of competitions, to recruit young people who possess the highest qualities of intellect and character, and particularly those who had never thought of a professional career, or at least were undecided about it." More than 22 fields of study, nearly all in the humanities and social sciences, are represented by this year's winners. Those in mathematics and natural sciences represent 15.3 per cent of the total. The winners, of whom 63.2 per cent are women, will be enrolled in 90 different graduate schools in this country and Canada.

In addition to the awards for first-year graduate study, the Foundation annually makes subvention payments totaling nearly $2,000,000 to the various graduate schools where Woodrow Wilson Fellows enroll. Three-fourths of the funds must be used for second-year awards to graduate students regardless of whether they are Wilson Fellows. The remainder may be used at the discretion of the graduate schools to improve library facilities, raise faculty salaries, provide counseling services, or otherwise to improve their program of study. Since the Fellowship program began, the Foundation has elected a total of 5,608 Woodrow Wilson Fellows, including those announced today.

"Rest!"

by BROOKS GARNETT

Carol slammed down her books on the bed and cried, "If I have one more test before Easter, I'll just commit!"

Her roommate remained immobile before the sink, looking into the mirror at the bags under her eyes. "Amen, Sister Carol," agreed Jan. "I took one look at the H.P. and just thought I studied every single mortal thing that he didn't ask. There just ain't no way to win in his place, man, just ask me!"

"You think that's bad? Well, my room didn't even make sense. I took an hour to decipher the directions and the rest was so long I didn't even near finishing. It wouldn't be disgusting if I hadn't bothered to study as hard as I did last night. I knew that stuff, for once," lamented Carol.

"Right, my friend, but you know as well as Einstein—and I that tests are never square—fair anyway. Everything is relative—like if sorority dies are complete or not. Et cetera, et cetera, et cetera," kidded Jan.

All the way to the cafeteria, Carol was silent. She thought about many things, but especially the fact that the harder she tried to make things right, the more mixed up they all became. When she entered college as a freshman, she was amid a collegiate pink cloud. She had expected life to be a big whirl of dates and basketball games and fraternity dances and pennants on the wall and fun.

But Carol had also expected to find something else . . . an intellectual charge, a stimulation to think. She had always known that she had the mentality to do just about anything that she pleased, but Carol was always looking for someone to kind of issue a special invitation to learn, one that would MAKE her "want" to learn.

Carol turned to Jan in the lunch line and asked, "Jan, is there something wrong with me, or is everyone like that? I guess I know what I ought to do as far as studying is concerned, but something just isn't there. Look at all these students. They are probably talking about someone of the opposite sex, griping about the food, or just watching everyone else—being numb to everything around them."

"Give up, buddy," quipped Jan. "You know this place as well as I do. Most of us don't have the vaguest idea what we'll really be doing five years from now. The girls take it for granted that they'll be married . . . an assumption I'm beginning to wonder about, no less! But anyhow, most of the boys are sliding through school, too. Sure they'll be working in five years unless they find another Barbara Duke, but they do have enough wits to realize that there aren't many Barbara Dukes around." Carol quickly retorted, "But Jan, something is wrong. These are supposedly the prime years of our lives, and as far as I'm concerned, I know that I'm not accomplishing as much as I should. Roomie, we could probably make Dean's List if we half-way tried, but—we won't."

"My cow, fellow roommate, if I even made my average, my parents would consider me Phi Beta Kappa, Incorporated," complained Jan. "What is the point of having a bunch of lists or a pile of facts that won't stick upstairs more than three days usually. Oh, I agree, I'm not getting any great academic enlightenment on my part, and sometimes, I feel like I'm wasting a lot of money on a semester of cigarettes and beer on a semester of cigarettes and beer sessions, but I kinda think I'm learning. You know, if I thought I could pass experimental psychology, I might get majoring in psychology. People fascinate me."

"Well, they fascinate me, too; but why do so few students, especially like you, try to keep from doing their very best in everything. I just don't know what's wrong with me!" declared Carol.

"I do!" quipped Jan. "You're thinking too hard. Fermez-la bouche! eat and—nope, that won't work. More interesting, like did you hear from Dave today?"

"Not hardly! My mailbox was jammed with mail from literally everyone—except Dave," said Carol. I got two bills and three library notices, plus a 'cut-card' from the Deano."

"Aaaaahhh, well, look at it this way: things are so bad that they couldn't get worse," counseled Jan. "Just think, I haven't heard from Stretch in seven days, three hours, and . . . 12 minutes. That's over a whole week!"

Several hours later, the two young college juniors were loafing in their room. Carol was staring disconsolately at Catcher in the Rye trying to decide what kind of complex Holden had when Jan suddenly moaned. "My dear roommate, did you realize that? Energy is the ability which a body has to do work?" Jan was reading her physics book, not because she had a craving to read physics, but she heard that a pop test was due in class tomorrow, and she was flunking. . . . And power is the rate of doing work."

"Whatever are you mumbling about now, Einstein?" muttered Carol.

"Hm, I have got to remember these stupid definitions for tomorrow, and they just aren't sticking. Any suggestions?" queried Jan.

"Yes, study silently!" answered Carol. "How can I concentrate on Salinger when you spouting off physics?"

"And did you happen to know that? A force is a push or a pull which tends either to change the state of rest or motion of a body, or to cause distortion of the body?" continued the persistent but failing Jan.

"REST!" yelled Carol. "Now just how are you going to be a well-educated college graduate with a smidgen of know-it-all in all subjects—without knowing these bits of physical laws?" teased her roommate.

Carol, in total lack of patience but too lazy to argue, listened to Jan re-read her definitions. Suddenly Carol started thinking about "force" . . . a push or a pull. That was the very thing that she was looking for and could not find!

About midnight, as girls were brushing their teeth, doing last minute errands before lights out, or plopping up the hall to the clubroom for an all-night cramming session, Carol still stared at the book in her hand. The last strains of "Imagination" were coming over the radio.

She turned to her desk and picked up her diary. As she started to write her day's activities, her mind became blank. "I haven't really accomplished much of anything today. Why?" questioned Carol. "Am I just too lazy; and am I wasting all my time? What should I have done today that I didn't do?"

Carol was concerned and disgusted for awhile, but she knew that tomorrow, and the next tomorrow would not be any different.

But as she went over to cut the radio off, she suddenly heard . . . Father, forgive them—for they know not what they do."

Blackstock Poetry - "A Joy"

Dr. Walter Blackstock, Head of the English Department at High Point College, has received a review of his recently published collection of poems, "Mischief of Flesh" in The Indian P.E.N., a literary review journal published in Bombay, India.

The reviewer, Mr. J. R. Nanda Kumar, had the following to say regarding Dr. Blackstock's book: Modern American poetry has become rather a profligate affair. There are hundreds of poets now turning out so much verse — amazingly enough, sometimes of very good quality too — that one wonders whether poetry has at a bright future, after all. Besides, there is now an abundance of university or college teachers who are also poets.

Either teachers write poetry defying the chilly atmosphere of the campus, or poet — after gaining recognition as poet — become university professors. Either way, it is an interesting phenomenon. Dr. Walter Blackstock is Professor of English at High Point College, North Carolina, and in his new effort of 41 pieces of poetry gives free-sh evidence of his sensibility and craft. He accepts the "mischief of flesh" that enables him to climb to the higher things: "Such serious unobscure poetry deserves a warm welcome, for it is a joy to read it and to respond to its music of ideas and sounds."

Dr. Blackstock has been at High Point College since 1958 and assumed the chairmanship of the English Department this school year.

Do all Air Force Officers have wings?

Decidedly not. In fact most executive jobs are on the ground. Of course, all officers may apply for pilot and navigator training if they meet the eligibility requirements. There will always be a need for piloted aircraft. And if it is irrefragable that in your working life time, there will be piloted spacecraft—piloted and navigated by Air Force officers.

Bright now, there is also a big future for college-trained Air Force officers on the ground. New and exciting technical jobs are opening up. Important administrative positions must be filled as World War II officers move into retirement.

How can you as a college student—become an Air Force officer? First, there's Air Force ROTC. Then for college graduates, men and women in certain fields, there is Officer Training School. The graduate of its three-month course wins a commission as a second lieutenant. Other ways are the Navigator Training program, and the Air Force Academy.

Some benefits that go with being an Air Force officer: Starting salary plus allowances compare with the average in essential civilian jobs. Then there's free medical and dental care, thirty-day vacation, the chance to win graduate degrees at Air Force expense, and liberal retirement provisions.

Now, Air Force officers do not need wings to move up. There's plenty doing on the ground. Perhaps you could be one of these young executives in blue. Ask your local Air Force Recruiter. Or write, Officer Career Information, Dept. SC13, Box 7608, Washington 4, D.C., if you want further information about the navigator training or Officer Training School programs.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The control group did not exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during exercise at the beginning and end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant decrease in HR and HRR at rest and during exercise compared to the control group. The control group had no significant change in HR and HRR. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.

There are several reasons why the results of this study may not be generalizable to other populations. First, the study was conducted in a single institution, and the results may be specific to that institution. Second, the study was conducted in a convenience sample of students, and the results may not be generalizable to other populations. Third, the study was conducted in a single semester, and the results may not be generalizable to other semesters. Fourth, the study was conducted in a single country, and the results may not be generalizable to other countries. Fifth, the study was conducted in a single discipline, and the results may not be generalizable to other disciplines. Sixth, the study was conducted in a single year, and the results may not be generalizable to other years. Seventh, the study was conducted in a single institution, and the results may not be generalizable to other institutions. Panthers Are North State Champs

by JOHN WARD, JR.

The High Point College Panthers, who had lost six games in a row at mid-season, roared back to win seven in a row including the North State Conference championship game in which they whalloped Atlantic Christian 88-73.

The Panthers despite the presence of three freshmen in the starting line up, were as cool and poised as a bunch of pros. Their tremendous desire and hustle throughout the tournament carried them to a last-second victory over Elon on the opening night and a pair of wide-margin victories over Appalachian and Atlantic Christian.

It was the first NSC championship for the Panthers since 1953, when they advanced to the second round of the NAIA national tournament at Kansas City. The Panthers closed out the regular season with a 11-7 conference mark.

Coach Yow labeled the final contest as definitely a "team victory." The five starters—freshmen Phil Garrison, Roy Bartlett, Bill Fallin; junior Joe Guzinski; and senior Jackie Short—performed in great style during the entire tournament with reserves continually coming through in the same fashion.

The tournament's most valuable player, Phil Garrison, and his former high school teammate, Roy Bartlett, topped the scoring column with 27 and 26 points respectively in the final game. Forward Joe Guzinski added 13. Jackie Short, the captain and ball-stealing guard, once again proved to be the best floor leader in the conference as he quarterbacked his teammates almost flawlessly from the floor.

Prior to defeating the Bulldogs of AC, who had previously trounced top-seeded Lenoir Rhyne, the Panthers upset another tournament favorite, Appalachian, 84-73. Once again it was Garrison and Short who led an inspired team effort for the Panthers as they out-shot, out-rebounded, and out-manuevered the Mountaineers in every turn.

The most thrilling game of the tournament was the first in which HPC downed Elon in the final seconds of the game 80-78. The Panthers were down by two points with less than half a minute to go when Larry Nolan suddenly stole the ball from an Elon guard and raced down court for the tying lay-up with 12 seconds left. Then with six seconds left, a bad inbound pass by Elon was grabbed by HPC's Garrison, who missed his shot, and Short got the rebound and put the ball back in for the winning points just as the buzzer sounded.

No one player can be singled out as the deciding factor of the success of the Panthers. Garrison was the tournament's most valuable player as he scored 83 points and grabbed 40 rebounds in the three games. Short—all-conference guard—who displayed superb leadership, was also tapped for all-tournament honors, as was freshman Roy Bartlett, who displayed calm and poised playmaking plus an additional 52 points. But it took more than all this to win. It took the rebounding of Joe Guzinski, who was chosen as a member of the all-tournament second team, and of Larry Nolan; it took the key shots by Bill Fallin and Tommy Skidmore; it took the dead-eye shooting of Willy Unger when it was needed most; it took the smooth ball-handling and playmaking of Chalmers Sechrest, Zane Daniels, and Gene Buchanan when the regulars needed rest.

Yes, truer words were never spoken when Coach Virgil Yow said, "It was a team victory all the way. The boys played to win and they played it unselfishly."

Panther captain, Jackie Short, receives the championship trophy from Miss North State Tournament of 1961, who is a student at Catawba College. Dr. Earl Ruth, the tournament chairman, looks on.

Bill Fallin struggles to shake loose from the Atlantic Christian opponent as Joe Guzinski (40) goes high into the air. Standing alert and ready are Roy Bartlett (30) and Phil Garrison. The Panthers took an 88-73 decision to cop the victory.

The tournament's most valuable player, Phil Garrison (24), portrays a familiar tournament scene as he fakes AC guard, Jerry Fritz. It was this type of play that enabled Garrison to lead the tournament scoring with 83 points. It was Garrison's unbelievable consistency that kept the Panthers alive. The Indiana freshman had perhaps the finest three games of his career in the tournament action. His services are indeed being looked forward to next winter.

Chalmers Sechrest chalks up two more for the Panthers as Larry Nolan (44) looks on. Zane Daniels (20) and Phil Garrison appear in the background. The Panthers grabbed an 80-78 victory in the final five seconds of play in the Elon game.

The Panthers' bench sees activity as Coach Yow gets ready to make a substitution in the closing minutes of the thrilling Elon contest. In the center of the back row is Jack Short who seconds later tipped in the winning goal with two seconds left to play.

Johnny's Scribblings

by JOHN WARD, JR.

Another basketball season has come and gone. Another record book has been filled. The baseball frenzy is upon us; but before I take my pad and pencil over to the diamond, let's take one more look at a few brief notes on the tournament which ended with our own Panthers coping the Championship.

Not only did the Panthers display the best team in the tournament, but High Point College also had by far the most vocal and most enthusiastic student support at all three games. Practically the entire HPC student body turned out for the final contest and they displayed some of the greatest spirit and finest sportsmanship that has ever been witnessed in the Lexington YMCA gym according to several veteran sports writers. Congratulations to our students! You did a grand job because your support won half the battle for our team!

I would also like to comment on the fine representation of our faculty and administration at the tournament. It really made a great impression on the students and players to see so many of our faculty members there cheering their team to victory.

The state of Indiana has truly blessed the Panthers with a pair of freshmen, Phil Garrison and Roy Bartlett, who were the top scorers of the tournament. Both were all-around players. Garrison and Bartlett are both attending HPC on a half scholarship, but there seems to be no question as to whether or not that full scholarship will come next year. Incidentally, Jackie Short also hails from Indiana.

There has been some question as to why High Point was not in the NAIA District Playoffs. According to HPC athletic director and District 26 NAIA chairman, Dr. Jim Hamilton, there is a rule of the NAIA playoffs that requires a player to pass 12 hours the previous semester even though the North State rule requires only 9 hours. The Panthers had a player who had passed only 11 hours, therefore making them ineligible. The decision to use the player was made in order to give the younger boys experience and to give the team the all important chance of winning the North State Championship.

It seems that though Appalachian coach Bob Light had to eat his words during the game of HPC. On the previous day he had been quoted as saying that he "couldn't handle" anything new in the Elton game and that he didn't feel that they would offer the Apps any particular trouble with any new tactics. The next night Coach Light, who seemed very stumped over his team's performance, had quite a different attitude Coach Yow's squad.

This year's tournament was a climax to a great career for Jackie Short, HPC captain, all-conference and all-tournament player. Short was one of the most lauded players of the tournament with his fine ball handling and leadership.

Coach Yow turned in one of the most sportsman-like gestures of any tournament. In the Elton game with less than 3 minutes left and the score 76-70, an Elton forward knocked his shoulder out of joint. The referee didn't notice his injury and HPC had the ball, so Coach Yow couldn't call time out. So Coach Yow used one of his much needed time outs to allow the injured player to get safely off the court. Elton coach Bill Miller commented later, "It was a very fine gesture."

And to end a successful basketball season, and as I close my file on the 1961 NSC Champions, let's get ready to support our baseball team with just a much enthusiasm as we did our basketball team.

It's Track Time Again!

The track team this year had a fairly well turnout, with approximately 25 boys going out for track. Some of the individual contestants will be: Medford Taylor, Hugh Barnes, Tony Benze, 440; George Srou, javelin throw, Doug Cox, broad jump; Tom Dean, shot-put, and Hal Snyder, discus throw. Others competing are Jack Wagner, Dave Baughn, Ken Sullivan, and Mike Sabino. The Hi-Po will cover the track team in more detail next issue.

Baseball Season Is Here

by HARRY C. SMITH

The High Point Purple Panthers opened the baseball season March 17 with prospects of a fine year. The Panthers will be led by pitcher-felder Joe Guzzini. The big junior is one of the best hitters and soliders in the North State Conference. Other hitting stars for the Panthers are Ray Fraley, Charlie Willard, and Gary Thornberg. The strongest pitchers are Don Cashion, Conrad Hawkins, Roy Grant, and Darrel Smith.

Last year the Panthers had a mediocre 8-15 record. The starters returning from last year's squad are Ray and Roy Grant, Bill Cook, Sam White, and Guzzini. The strength of returning players, newcomers and all-round team spirit points to a great improvement over last year's team.

The starting lineup will be as follows: 1B Ray Fraley, 2B Bill Cook, 3B Sam White, SS Charlie Willard, LF Craig Ford, CF Joe Guzzini, RF Gary Thornberg, and C Roy Grant. Ready and able substitutes are Quin, Jerry Koonze, Doug Barr, Bill Norris and Jim Bodman. One of these may take over a starting role before the season is over.

In their first game this year on March 17 the Panthers bowled to the strong Belmont Abbey Nine, 3-1, in a non-conference contest. The Panthers in this contest looked much improved over last year's team. The HPC team was leading until the last inning when Belmont scored 2 unearned runs to go ahead.

Portrait Of A Winning Coach

by BERGE HATCHER

"It's still a great thrill to win," said coach Virgil C. Yow after his High Point Panthers had won the North State Conference basketball championship. The Purple Panthers showed up the experts by playing fine ball in the clutch to win. This marks the fourth time High Point has won the tournament all under Yow. The win was a fitting tribute to Yow, who has now lived in High Point 25 years.

Coach Yow was born in Gibsonville, N. C. (near Greensboro), and came to High Point in 1926. He enrolled at High Point High School, where he played basketball and football. He graduated in 1930 and attended High Point College. While in college, Yow played football four years, basketball four years, and basketball three years. After receiving his A.B. degree, Coach Yow went to the University of North Carolina for his Masters Degree.

At present, Coach Yow teaches the following physical education courses at AAU Industrial League. He coached the boys to five national basketball titles and the girls won the international championship in 1951. Coach Yow accompanied the team to a tour of six South American countries, including Ecuador, Chile, Peru, Argentina, Bolivia, and Paraguay. Coach Yow has won North State Conference championships in 1936, 1939, 1942, and 1961. At present, Coach Yow teaches the following physical education courses at High Point College: 206, 324, and 421. He serves as head basketball coach and track coach. The high spot of his coaching career came in 1959 when Yow was inducted into the Hall of Fame. Coach Yow received the Helms Foundation Award for superior coaching. Yow is married to the former Miss Hazel Swartz. They have one daughter, Judy, who is a sophomore at the University of Florida.

The veteran basketball coach is very pleased with his team's showing in the tournament. He also expressed his appreciation for the loyal support given by the students and faculty of High Point College. "We were fortunate to win," he stated. He was particularly pleased with the three freshman starters, Phil Garrison, Butch Bartlett, and Bill Fallon. "This is the first time in all years of coaching that I've ever seen a freshman team win. We were especially fortunate in winning the Elton game. Larry Nolan stole the ball and scored a layup that tied the score in what I would call the turning point of the tournament. The boys had the desire and determination to win. We could have gone on to Kansas City if we had been eligible to do so. We were a great team at the finish of the season. We got together and came up to the tournament playing as a unit. It was a great team effort by everyone, including the ones on the bench. If you have a steady bench, you are hard to beat. We had a great bench and deserved to win."

As for next year's team, Coach Yow replied, "Since we are losing one regular, we should be even better than this year. We plan on being more power by giving 2 1/2 scholarships. Each player that played this year should again be tops in the North State Conference."

Men's Basketball Intramurals

by HARRY C. SMITH

Intramural basketball is over and the Jaybirds are champs. The Independent League Jaybirds beat the Fraternity League champs, the Pika's, for the title 67-53. The victory climaxed an undefeated season for the Jaybirds. The Pika's loss was their worst in the tournament. The top representatives of their respective leagues.

The Jaybirds this year were led by Aubrey Stother and Jim Holleman. Stother, a six-foot two "jumping jack," was almost untouchable under the boards. He was by far the best rebounder in either league. Holleman led the Jaybird attack from the outside and did a fine job.

The other members of the Jaybirds were Ray Davis, Ralph Clements, Ray Murphy, Charlie Wallace, Gene Heicht, Ron Bundy, and Don Tugge.

The Jaybirds were given a tough battle in their league by the Los Perros, who lost only one game, that being to the Jaybirds. The Los Perros were led by George Williams and Larry Davis.

The Pika's won their first two games in overtime and then lost to the Fraternity League champs. The Pika's hit well from outside and were very strong on the boards. The top players for the Pika's were Charlie Willard, Laine Maxburn, and George Sewell. The Pika's finished second to the Pika's losing only one game. They were led by Ray Fraley and Wayne Hancock.

The North State Extramural Tournament was held at HPC this year on March 11. Each team in the Conference was represented by its intramural all-stars. High Point lost to the first round to Catawba who went on to win the Tournament. The high point all-stars were Aubrey Stother, Jim Holleman, Sam White, Bill Norris, Charlie Willard, Ray Fraley, Dave Young, Dick Schickford, Wayne Lewis, and Jim Boyles.

SGA Officers Elected

For several weeks the question in the minds of everyone was, "Who will be the officers of the Student Government Association for 1961-1962?" This mystery has now been solved. The election of the 1961-1962 officers for the SGA was held April 29 and 27. Those candidates running were Len Lewin for president, Ted Brazzell and Bob Clark for vice president, Betty Neale, Brenda Dellinger, and Sandra Hooks for secretary, Jimmy Edwards and Jerry Kyle for treasurer, and George Wigglesworth for Hi-PO editor. A runoff election between Brenda Dellinger and Sandra Hooks for secretary was held April 28 and 29. The following people were elected to fill the various offices:

President — Running unopposed, Len Lewin was automatically elected president. Len is a junior from Camden, N. J. During the past year, Len has been president of Theta Chi Fraternity and participated in the Student Legislature. Len's major is psychology and philosophy. Also, he has participated in the various dramatic productions on campus.

Vice President — To fill the capacity of vice president of the SGA, Bob Clark was chosen. Bob, a sophomore, built from Kinston, N. C. He has been very active in Student Legislature, Fellowship Teams, and MSF. Recently, Bob pledged Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity.

Secretary — In a very close runoff, Miss Sandra Hooks, came out on top as secretary. A sophomore from Fremont, N. C., her major is general science. Some of her activities include recording clerk of the Senate, secretary of her freshman class, and next year she will be recording secretary of the women's dormitories.

Treasurer — Dale Brown relinquished his position as treasurer to Jerry Kyle, a sophomore from Oxford, Maryland. Jerry is majoring in business administration and is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity.

Hi-PO Editor — George Wigglesworth, a junior transfer from Mays Landing, N. J., automatically became editor. George is member of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity.

These are the students who will be your leaders next year. The 1960-1961 Executive Council wish them a year of success, but they must receive the support and cooperation of the student body in order to achieve this goal.

Conference Commissioner Rules Guzinski Ineligible

Dr. C. R. Hinchaw, Commissioner of the North State Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, recently confirmed the statements by Dr. James Hamilton, Athletic Director, and Dr. Wendell Patton, President of High Point College, that Joe Guzinski was ineligible for further collegiate competition. It was a regulation on both the basketball and baseball teams and a junior at High Point College.

In a letter to Dr. Hinchaw, Dr. Hamilton stated, "Mr. Guzinski signed a baseball contract under the alias of Joe Glenn with Bristol, Virginia, on July 8, 1954. He therefore participated as a professional baseball player for this team. We realize that this act made Guzinski ineligible to compete in intercollegiate sports in the North State Intercollegiate Athletic Conference."

"We assume responsibility for the negligence in not making a thorough check of Guzinski's record before he enrolled at High Point College. I can assure you that there was no intent on our part to deceive the other member of the N.S.A.C. I apologize to you and to the others for our error."

It has been informed Mr. Guzinski that he is ineligible to represent High Point College, in intercollegiate athletic competition.

Upon investigation, Dr. Hamilton discovered the professional status of Joe. Joe signed with Bristol on July 8, 1954, and played there for the 1955 baseball season. In 1956, Joe was assigned to the Winston-Salem team of the Carolina League, but he did not report for play. He was then optioned to Bradford, Pennsylvania, and was later released. He later signed with Fargo, North Dakota, but was soon optioned to Orlando, Florida, where he was eventually released.

Dr. Hamilton stated that Joe was aware of the professional status while he was participating on the High Point team, but Joe never told anyone of his situation because he had never been asked whether or not he had played professional ball.

Formerly, the North State Conference had a ruling which would have allowed Joe to play basketball for High Point, since his professional status concerned only baseball. This rule was eliminated several years ago in favor of one which states that a player who has participated in any professional competition is not allowed to engage in intercollegiate competition in the North State Conference.

After an investigation, Dr. Hinchaw ordered the forfeiture of the five baseball games won in which Joe participated. With this in mind, the looming question is, "Will High Point officially be declared conference basketball champions?"

The High Point team won the basketball tournament in Lexington by defeating Elon, Appalachian and Atlantic Christian. The championship is not officially recognized until the North State Conference meeting in the spring; the meeting this year is May 20. At the meeting, each college votes on the championship, and the championship is awarded by vote of this conference. It will be up to the conference whether or not High Point will be the conference champion. Dr. Hinchaw stated, "In my years as conference commissioner, the winner of the tournament has always been declared the champion. But nothing of this sort has ever happened to influence a decision. We can only wait and see what the outcome of the conference vote will be."

Elon basketball star, S. J. (Jug) Irvin, a forward and leading scorer in the North State Conference in the past season, was also ruled ineligible by Dr. Hinchaw. Irvin transferred to Elon from Campbellsville Junior College without having graduated from the Kentuckian college. The North State Conference has a rule that states a transferring player must have graduated from the junior college in order to be eligible to play for the North State Conference. Since Irvin, an Elon junior, did not graduate from Campbellsville, he is ineligible for intercollegiate competition in the conference.

Experiment Proves Successful

High Point College has this year, for the first time since its founding in 1924, conducted a formal evening school offering college level course work. The evening school was born as a result of requests from interested persons desiring to take course work but who were unable to attend the regular day-time classes. The success of this venture speaks for itself.

Under the direction of Dr. C. R. Hinchaw, the High Point College Evening School has found a place for itself within the community of High Point and surrounding areas. As the second full time semester of the evening school draws to a close, some interesting statistics have come out of the office of the director which indicate the growth and development of the school and the interest shown in the continuation of such a program by those participating.

During the fall semester, there were 15 courses offered which increased during the spring semester to 16. There were 10 instructors teaching courses during the fall semester and 13 during the current semester. By far the greatest growth to be seen in the increased enrollment for those two semesters. During the fall there were 111 town or non-regular students and 40 regular college students totaling 151 students enrolled. This figure was almost doubled in this current semester with 143 town or non-regular students and 128 regular college students enrolled making a total of 271 students attending classes during the spring semester. The overall enrollment for this the first year of the evening school is 352 students.

In discussing the projected growth of the evening school with Dr. Hinchaw, he indicated that the inquiries about the offerings met full certainty indicate that the number of students will continue on the upward grade. Dr. Hinchaw also indicated that the curriculum will be expanded so as to allow as great a variety of course work as possible to be made available to the students.

As it presents the following courses will be offered in the fall semester of 1961: Art 206, Business 219, Business 103, Business 303, Business 316, Business 308, Business 311, English 101, English 201, History 101, History 205, Geography 301, Political Science 302, and Physics 208. To this list will be added other courses as the desire for such courses arises.

In its effort to promote adult education within the community through the offerings of its evening school, Dr. Wendell M. Patton, President of High Point College, had the following comment on the development of the Evening Schools during this first year: "The college is pleased over the response of the public to the evening school. It was begun last year at the request of interested citizens and it now appears to be fulfilling a definite need in the community." Dr. Patton went on further to state, "The Board of Trustees of the college accepted the report of the Evening School at their spring meeting and pledged to the community to continue it so long as it was performing a community service."

Persons interested in taking course work in the evening school either toward a degree from High Point College, teacher certificate renewal, or for other personal reasons of advancement are encouraged to contact Dr. Hinchaw at the college regarding the work desired. Formal announcement of the fall schedule for the evening school will be made during the summer months.

This Evening School program initiated by the college this year is another in the action steps taken in the college's overall program of Education for Leadership. This program offers to the adults of the community along with the regular college offerings additional opportunities for formal training at the college level. It is the hope of High Point College to continue this offering and for its growth and development to continue in the future.

Panthers Boast Strong Track Team

by HARRY SMITH

High Point has a strong track team this year. The Panthers have won most of their meets and finished second in the N.A.I.A. district meet. The only weakness of this year's team is the lack of depth. The Panthers have one or two good men in almost every event.

The Panthers are particularly strong in the long distance events. The pride and joy of High Point's milers is Mike Schiano. Mike's best time for the mile is 4:27. Schiano also runs in the two-mile and three-mile events. Ken Sullivan is also a great distance runner. Max Wagner is a speedy runner in the quarter- and half-mile runs; he has been clocked at 1:56 in the half-mile run and 49 flat in the quarter. Mickey Dean has been the spark of the relay teams.

The Panthers have great strength in the field events also. Hal Snider has won the discus throw almost every time with throws up to 130 feet. George Srou's long javelin throws have won many points for High Point; he has thrown the javelin as far as 170 feet. The Panthers look good in high jumping pit with the jumping of Dave Young. Dave has jumped 5'6" or better every time out. High Point is proud of the pole vaulting of versatile Jack Short. Jack, who hadn't pole vaulted all year long, broke the record in the N.A.I.A. meet. He soared to a height of 11'8".

The Panthers should do very well in the conference track meet which will be held here on May 13. The students are urged to attend this meet and support their fine team.

Golf Team Places In Tourney

by BERGE HATCHER

The High Point College golf team recently placed second in the North State Conference golf tournament which was held May 8-9 at the Star-mountain Country Club in Greensboro. Nine schools participated in the 36-hole tourney, with High Point placing a close second to Atlantic Christian College. Here is a run-down of individual scoring for the tournament:

Stan Kinney	78-78	156
Joe Morris	86-77	163
Bob Veasey	82-81	163
Garland Kinney	83-80	163

The team ended the regular season with a 4-4 record. Larry Rodgers was a member of the squad over the regular season but did not participate in the tournament.

The golf team wishes to express their thanks to Dr. Hamilton and Johnny Johnson (Rial Park pro) for the time and effort spent in coaching the team this year.

Tennis Team Wins Final Encounter

by BERGE HATCHER

The High Point College tennis team defeated Atlantic Christian College 6-1, after losing their first four matches this season. The Purple Panthers have lost twice to Pfeiffer College, once to Guilford College, and to Appalachian.

Returning to the squad from last year's team were veteran netters Ken Foddrell and Preston Williams. Morgan Pope, handicapped by a bad knee, returned to action and gained status as number three singles player. Rounding out the squad were Craig Ford, Henry Tonn, Al Neal, Jack Mahan, Bill Barnes, and Sandy Sprinkle.

Coach Yow used the following seeding for most of the year: 1. Foddrell, 2. Williams, 3. Pope, 4. Ford, 5. Tonn, 6. Neal.

The Panthers have completed the season with a 1-4 record. The North State Conference tournament was held May 9-10 at Sedgwick and Guilford College.

Baseball Team Finds Going Rough

by BERGE HATCHER

When spring training drills began last February, Coach Hartman and followers expected this year's Panther baseball team to be a better than 500 ball club. However, the present 7-13 record made by the Panthers must be thought of as a disappointment. The Panthers have experienced special difficulty in the close games, losing six games by two runs or less. The club's defense and pitching depth have been the biggest problems.

The pitching staff has been steady at times, but for the most part has taken a beating. Roy Grant has failed to show the effectiveness that made him one of the top pitchers in the conference last year. On occasions Roy has seen action in the outfield. The ace of the staff, right-hander Darrell Smith, has had continuous trouble with pitching in the early innings. Don Cashion, Carroll Hawkins, and Chalmers Sechrist have pitched well on occasion, particularly in relief. Cashion was extremely effective in losing a 1-0 heart-breaker to Atlantic Christian. In desperation for mound help, Coach Hartman has used Charlie Willard and Joe Guzikski as pitchers. Guzikski went all the way to defeat Western Carolina in his first start. Willard looked sharp in beating Lexington of the class D Western Carolina League, 9-6.

Roy Grant is the first string catcher, backed up by Jim "Big Daddy" Boyles. Boyles was used in rotation with Grant until he was benched for lack of hitting. The club has a solid defensive infield with Gary Thornburg at first base, Bill Cook at second base, Sam White at third base, and Charles Willard at shortstop. Ray Fraley stars in left. Joe Guzikski plays center, and Roy Grant and Fred Quinn alternate in right field. Hartman has a strong bench of reserves to choose from in Jerry Koonitz, Bill Norris, Doug Barr, Craig Ford, Harold Terry, and Don Phillips.

Top hitter for the team thus far is center fielder Joe Guzikski. Guzikski, Sam White, and Ray Fraley are the only hitters over .300 at this writing. Charles Willard and Gary Thornburg have been consistent both at bat and in the field. Fred Quinn has been used as the number one pinch hitter when he doesn't start in the outfield.

The Panthers have single games to play with Atlantic Christian, Pembroke, and Elon. The Atlantic Christian and Elon games are home games.

Student Congress Convenes

On the 28 and 29 of April, the fourth annual Student Congress was held in the Fine Arts Building. Contrary to what a lot of people think, the congress is not the legislative body of the student government; rather, it is a non-authoritative congress that gives students an opportunity to see how a legislative body functions. Each organization on campus has the right to send one senator and that number of representatives is determined by the number of members comprising the organization. Each organization may or may not submit a bill, which may concern the campus, or may be on a state, national, or international level. At the end of each congress, the best speakers of the Senate and House, and the best bill of the congress are selected.

This year at the conclusion of the congress on Saturday afternoon, Tony LaSala was selected as the outstanding speaker of the Senate, and Thad Lowery was chosen the best speaker of the House. The bill selected by the Congress as being the one eliciting the most discussion, was the bill submitted by Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity for the U. S. Government to legalize prostitution.

Also on the business agenda, was the election of the officers of the Interim Council. The council is composed of the officers both sessions of both the Senate and House. Its function is to plan next year's Student Congress. Dan Earnhardt was elected president of the council.

YDC Elects Officers

May 8 the Young Democrats Club held a meeting for the purpose of electing officers for next year. Benita Jenkins was elected president, Roy Houser, first vice president, Judy Rogers, second vice president, Judy Austin, secretary, and Skip Callahan, treasurer.

During the meeting the club recognized that it has had a hard time creating interest among the students since it was founded second semester after the national election. It is hoped that more interest will be created in the club next year and that the club will be able to make a vital contribution to political life on campus. Several members also expressed concern for the fact that High Point College has become a one-party campus without the presence of a definitely organized Republican group. It has been hoped that organizing of the Y.D.C. would stimulate interest among campus Republicans for the formation of a Young Republican Club.

In discussing plans for next year President Jenkins announced that he hoped the club would be able to continue its policy of having political figures in the Democratic party come and speak to the club. Several people such as Horace Komegy, representative to the U. S. House of Representatives, have already consented to speak next year. Also, the club hopes that through its programs the ideals and purposes of the Democratic party will become a meaningful reality for the local club instead of more or less abstract objectives.

Dorm Elections Held

The Men's Dormitory elected its council May 2 and 3 with the following results:

President: Don Cashion
Vice President: Charles Willard
Secretary/Treasurer: Doug Barr
Head Hall Froster: Sam White
Judiciary Council Representatives: Tony LaSala, Dan Earnhardt.

These officers will be in training for approximately two weeks. After this they will be installed into their new positions. The old Dorm Council wishes these new officers the best of luck during the 1981-82 school year.

Best of Luck to Graduating Seniors

Annual Workshop Meets

The High Point College Home Economics Club sent representatives to the College Division of the North Carolina Home Economics Association Workshop which was held at Western Carolina College, April 14 and 15. These representatives were Marie Powers, Elizabeth Lanbush, Louise Fong, Caroline Prestwood and their advisor Mrs. Lois Livingston.

Louise Fong, who was the State Vice President for 1980-81, was elected the President for 1981-82. Mrs. Lois Livingston will be the State Advisor while Louise is in office.

HPC Has Leadership School

As a part of the Education for Leadership Program, High Point College carried out a "Leadership Laboratory" for 60 students for one week end at Camp Cherokee.

Funds for the experimental program were provided by Esso Foundation, National Training Laboratories, and student organizations on campus. The program was carried out with the help of the YMCA by use of their camping facilities and their transportation services.

Leaving on Friday afternoon, 60 student leaders and other faculty chaperones left for Camp Cherokee. The first program was a general session for group leadership led by one of the psychologists present. The students were then divided into groups and began their "group development."

One psychologist sat with each of the four groups. These psychologists were selected and sent by National Training Laboratories in Washington, D. C. They were as follows: Dr. Barry Oshry, Boston University; Edith Whitfield, special consultant, Columbia University; Dr. Roger Harrison, Yale University; Dr. Tom Gilson, Rutgers University.

Various experiments in group activities were carried out during the entire week end. The purpose of the leadership laboratory was to "create a set of conditions in which each member participating could gain individual learnings about himself, his functioning in small groups, his functioning in larger organizations and community settings."

Students were to experience an awareness of the progress of a group, a sensitivity to the member parts of a group, and a knowledge of how to co-ordinate with others to make a group succeed in accomplishment.

Most Outstanding Senior Woman

At the Junior-Senior Dance, a smiling blonde with happy gleams in her blue eyes received an award as "Most Outstanding Senior", presented by the Junior Class.

Eunice Young, a senior from Mehane, N. C., is "most outstanding" in all that she does. She has worked enthusiastically on a multitude of campus activities, always willing to do more than her part.

Her excellent academic record has been recognized many times. She has made Dean's List every semester, was inducted into the Scholastic Honor Society her junior year, and is a member of the Order of the Lighted Lamp.

Her service abounds in many corners. She was a member of Student Congress three years, a member of the Interim Council, and State Secretary of the Student Legislative Assembly. Eunice provided leadership as editor of an outstanding Zenth ('81).

An active Alpha Gam, she was second vice president this year, received the award for "Most Outstanding Sister," and is president of the alumni next year.

Eunice is Presbyterian and has always given her time and talents to Westminster Fellowship. During Christmas holidays, she was a delegate to Presbyterian Convention in Dallas. She has also served on the Student Christian Council.

Along with the many talents of this enchanting young lady, one cannot help but notice her unique beauty. As a fraternity sponsor, Miss HPC finalist, member of the Homecoming Court and May Court, and YMCA sponsor for two years, her Southern radiance always shines.

Eunice's most recent commendation came at the awards assembly held just this week. At the assembly she was named as the "Most Outstanding Senior Woman," and elected to "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

Next year, some lucky girl of first graders in High Point will have a bit of competition winning "teacher's best" because of a Northern interest. But this "most outstanding" person will inevitably have a "most outstanding" future.

The Wooden Eye

by MEDFORD TAYLOR

Lynda Payne, a freshman from Whitakers, North Carolina, admires the college campus as spring comes to HPC.

After several "D-Group" Sessions, High Point College students expressed various feelings including "I'm not getting a thing out of this" to "Our group is really going-to-town." By Sunday, the students had molded themselves into their groups and in a request for evaluation of the week end, every student stated that the week end experience had provided a vast insight into the workings and effects of group activity which could prove very helpful for campus organizations.

Those students attending the laboratory were as follows: Dave Giller, Margaret Damewood, Vance Davis, Ralph Holaback, Alice Hobson, Sandra Hooks, Janice Loflin, Thelma Mitchell, Jane Saferight, Allen Sharpe, John Ward, George Weiler, Eunice Young, Marilyn Zoeller.

Fund Set For African Students

A special Department of State grant of $100,000 has been made to the Institute for International Education to assist African students now at United States colleges and universities.

In announcing the grant, Kenneth Holland, President of the Institute of International Education, stated: "This action by the Office of Educational Exchange of the U. S. Department of State marks a departure from the traditional use of United States Government funds for foreign students. It recognizes that many able foreign students come to this country without United States Government assistance, either on their own limited funds or with private support from educational institutions or private organizations." Mr. Holland added that "The purpose of this Special Fund is to provide supplementary aid to as many of these students from Africa as possible."

All applications for individual awards from this Special Fund for African Students must be submitted to the Institute of International Education through the student's college or university. To be eligible for an award, a student must be enrolled in this country or for educational purposes, and must give written assurance of intent to return home upon completion of studies.

Preference will be given to African students from countries south of the Sahara, to undergraduates working toward a Bachelor's degree, and to those who request partial grants to supplement their present resources. Applicants for awards should have a good academic record, be interested and participate in extra-curricular activities, and be in a field of study important to the home country's development.

The Institute of International Education is one of the leading private organizations in the field of international educational exchange. It has planned and administered a large number of persons programs between the United States and other countries for more than forty years.
